HAPPY NEW YEAR

Dear Cruise Club member

Welcome to the winter edition of 'Into The Blue'. This is the third edition since launching our quarterly magazine in July this year and the feedback we have had from you has been fantastic so we'd like to take this opportunity to thank you for your continued support. In the first edition I stated our aim was to provide our customers with a greater insight into the world of cruising and with this edition we have once again taken this a step further.

Inside you will find all the latest cruise news and a wide perspective on the current hot topics within the industry. We have also brought back our well received interview feature. In the last edition we chatted with Managing Director of Seabourn UK, Lynn Narraway and this time we interview one of the new men at the helm of P&O Cruises, Marketing Director, Chris Edgington as he answers the questions on everyone's lips about the new P&O Cruises pricing policy. The article continues with a closer look at adult only cruising, including specific adult only ships and where to find the most peaceful spots on board. We also examine the rise of river cruising and how these unique itineraries continue to dominate the headlines with Viking River Cruises breaking the record for the most ships christened in one day.

Alongside informative articles giving you a behind the scenes look at our coveted partnerships with a wide range of cruise operators, we also deliver a further insight into the principles behind our successful business and the core emphasis of our quality renowned customer service.

Bolsover Cruise Club has been at the forefront of the cruising industry for many years and at the prestigious 'Carnival UK Cruise Awards' held on 11 November 2013 we once again cemented our position as 'Top UK Independent Agent' for both P&O Cruises and Princess Cruises. This is an accolade that we are very proud of and we're truly overwhelmed to have come out on top yet again. Our determination has allowed us to shine through as the industry's market leader and we're very privileged to have received this award amazingly for our 27th year. It really wouldn't be possible without the continued hard work and dedication of our staff and you, our loyal members. Read more about our UK Cruise Awards achievements inside along with the news of Bolsover Cruise Club being crowned winners of the 'Best Large Cruise Retailer' 2013 at the glamorous 'British Travel Awards'! We'd like to say a massive 'thank you' to everyone who took the time to vote for us; we are truly overwhelmed to have been recognised for our excellent customer care. We also recently auctioned a Cunard cruise with all proceeds donated to Bluebell Wood Children's Hospice. A grand total of £1,000 was donated.

Following the introduction of our 'Go Green' option helping the environment and the recent unveiling of the Cruise Club Forum - a brand new cruise community, it has been an exciting time here at Bolsover Cruise Club with plenty more to come in the future. Read all about our further plans along with features on a selection of our cruise partners in this edition of 'Into the Blue'. We hope that you enjoy the magazine.

Here's looking forward to another very eventful year in prospect.

Happy New Year! Yours sincerely

Michael WilsonManaging Director

DISCOVER THE MEDITERRANEAN

Mediterranean cruising offers one magical moment after another. It's no wonder the Mediterranean region remains the most popular cruise destination for British passengers with its warm climate, diverse cultures and number of countries to explore. Mediterranean cruises are so popular due to the perfect blend of the very best sights, attractions and activities; but what about the various options within the Mediterranean? We so often talk about this charming region as a whole that we forget its sheer size. Often our annual leave allowances only enable us to take in so much at a time. We decided to highlight some of the fascinating

A Mediterranean cruise holiday takes you to a sightseer's paradise, combining beaches, history and scenic splendours to great effect. Even better, the region is wonderfully accessible, either via Fly/Cruise or from the UK with the majority of cruises to the Mediterranean departing from and returning to Southampton. The extraordinary intrigue of this area continues to draw travellers from far and wide.

Of course along with the fantastic attractions of the Western Mediterranean including Barcelona, Rome, Florence and Monte Carlo amongst many more, there are also the beautiful ports of the Eastern Mediterranean. An area where Europe meets Asia and right in the middle are the mosques and minarets of Turkey's bustling capital, Istanbul. Colourful not only in terms of its people, crafts and buildings, the city pulsates to the sounds of children, hawkers and carpet sellers. Mediterranean cruise holidays, which include Venice cruises, Greek cruises and Turkey cruises, offer experiences like no other; places in which you can immerse yourself in the different culture, foods and architecture.

For many it's the best way to experience the Mediterranean.

THE HIGHLIGHTS...

VENICE

This World Heritage city is just about the perfect cruise call because everything you want to see is so easily accessible whether the ship docks just down from St Marks Square or further up the Grand Canal at the main Venice cruise terminal complex. There are 500 historic bridges within the city centre and two main choices for getting around: the vaporetto (water-bus) network or just plain walking.

Start walking from St Marks Square, with its ancient Basilica, lavish Doges Palace and imposing bell tower, then follow signs for the shop-lined Rialto Bridge and the Bridge of Sighs. Wherever you walk, there are intriguing shops, museums and galleries plus cafés and restaurants along the way. It would be criminal to visit here without experiencing the run and romance of a gondola ride.

Magical Istanbul - 3,000 years old, spanning two continents and a crucible of cultures where East meets West - is a key Turkish homeport for cruise ships, and even those 'just visiting' usually spend a night as this wonderful city offers so much to see and do.

If this is your first visit, a tour of the main sights is a good introduction to the city's treasures, which include the world famous Blue Mosque and the equally impressive Mosque of Suleyman the Magnificent, the vibrant old city, the Grand Bazaar and the Topkapi Palace, famed for its jewels but which also has spectacular gardens. Also worth seeing is the ancient Hippodrome - now an open-air museum. And a boat trip across the Bosphorus to view the minarets and grand palaces of the city's skyline is an unforgettable experience.

DUBROVNIK

Sailing into the beautiful 12th century Croatian walled city of Dubrovnik is one of the great cruising experiences.

The spectacular Old Town - with its pretty harbour, towering ramparts, creamy stone pavements and red-roofed buildings is crammed with architectural wonders like the world's oldest pharmacy (est 1391), Onofrio's Fountain, constructed in the 1430s and the 14th century Franciscan Monastery, home to a wonderful statue of the Piéta carved in 1498.

Visit the magnificently Gothic Sponza Palace and the 18th century Baroque Church of St Blaise, Dubrovnik's patron saint. And, when you have had your fill of sightseeing, you will find pretty restaurants and cafés tucked away on Dubrovnik's narrow side streets – worth exploring as they also contain offbeat shops and art galleries.

We caught up with the new Marketing Director of Britain's favourite cruise line, P&O Cruises...

CHRISTOPHER EDGINGTON

Introducing Christopher Edgington, Marketing Director of Britain's favourite cruise line, P&O Cruises. P&O Cruises can trace its roots back over 175 years to the formation of the Peninsular Steam Navigation Company in 1837. The exceptional itinerary choices and service P&O cruises provide not only create memorable experiences, but are also great value for money. We wanted to get Christopher's thoughts on the future of the brand.

Firstly, how do you like our magazine 'Into The Blue'?

I think it is a really inspiring magazine because it represents everything that is great about cruising and at the same time demonstrates how committed Bolsover Cruise Club is to this extraordinary kind of holiday. I could not be more proud to be working with the team at Bolsover Cruise Club; indeed when i joined P&O Cruises they were my first visit!

P&O Cruises have a great heritage and history, how do you feel to be part of this as you settle?

I am quickly realising that I have so much to learn. The daily challenges are significant but as long as we focus on two key things, our customers and our agent partners, we'll Exciting times at the moment with the announcement of Britannia and the changes to the pricing programme; what was the reasoning behind the change?

Our pricing structure was simply wrong and our customers and agent partners told us so. After much consideration we have changed it for the better because it allows customers to find the right price based on what they want from their holiday

Can you explain how 'The Select Price Fare' is different to 'Vantage Fares' and can you highlight the benefits of booking under this promotion?

We changed our pricing structure after talking extensively to customers and our travel agent partners. What was clear was that the added value contained in our Vantage fares was well liked, but our prices were not always competitive and loyal customers did not feel that they were rewarded for booking early. We therefore decided to keep the features of Vantage in the Select Price but reduced the price of over 200 cruises to make them more competitive thereby negating the need to discount later. Those buying the Select Price choose a specific cabin and have first priority for dining and upgrades.

The 'Early Saver Fare' looks like this has been aimed at people who want to pay based on price only. Can you explain the thinking behind introducing this fare?

The Early Saver is a limited availability offer for customers who are willing to sacrifice choice of cabin and dining as well the added value features that our customers tell us they like, in return for a lower cost cruise.

Can you advise what restrictions are in place if you book on an Early Saver fare?

Early Saver fares are available for a limited period and are not offered on all cruises. They allow a choice of cabin grade, but not a specific cabin and are only allocated dining time and table size after the wishes of those buying the Select Price have been accommodated. Early Savers do not receive the complimentary port transfers provided to Select Price customers, although they can charge them to their on board account They cannot change their dining time once on board and are second priority for upgrades. Deposit and payment terms are currently the same as the Select Price.

With Britannia's arrival, what can we expect from the new member of the fleet?

Britannia will bring the "best of the best" from our other 7 ships and add some exciting extras and new experiences that will amaze and excite our past passengers as well as persuade new cruisers to get on board. We'll be announcing some of these features in the new year so there's not long to wait

Do you yourself have any plans for cruising in 2014?

Yes, I plan to get onto all of our ships next year, as well as those of our competitors and to meet and spend time with passengers whenever possible. If any readers see me please do come and have a chat! How about a free spa treatment for anyone that does!?

On first glance, during your time so far, do you have a favourite ship?

Ask me that this time next year...

We've seen so much from P&O Cruises over the years, where next for Britain's favourite cruise line?

We have so many exciting plans for P&O Cruises and I commit to making sure that I talk to our customers and agent partners as we go through these changes - I want everyone to share in our future successes. After all, I can only improve the P&O Cruises experience if I know what my key audiences are saving!

We'd like to thank Christopher for taking the time out of his extremely busy schedule to answer our questions and wish him good luck with his new role at P&O Cruises.

Includes guest appearance from English Tenor

Alfie Boe

Azura • Belgium & Guernsey • 26 May 2014 • 4 Nights

We are offering our readers the opportunity to win this fantastic cruise holiday. The cruise includes a guest appearance from English tenor Alfie Boe. The Rise of River Cruising

There is no more relaxing or rewarding way to see the world than from its great rivers.

Throughout time, rivers have served as the world's natural highways, facilitating trade and travel, connecting people and cultures. As civilizations developed along riverbanks, history's footprints have remained along their shores, making a river journey simply one of the most culturally enriching and rewarding travel experiences you can have.

We often have clients call our office in search of a new adventure, something different, unique, maybe something they wouldn't normally look at. This could be you. You may be sat at home thinking, "I've done most things, I've cruised the Mediterranean and the Caribbean, I just want something different". Well what you might be missing is the rest of Europe and the world. We say this because, as you are probably aware, most cruise ships these days are unable to head off the beaten track and therefore tend to stick to coastal city ports of call such as Barcelona. However, there is a big wide world out there and we intend to tell you all about it.

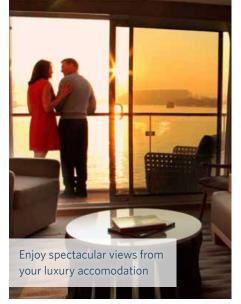

Many of the world's most exciting and attractive cities lay within easy reach of beautiful rivers which are not able to accommodate the modern day cruise ship. Enter the world of river cruising. This wonderful cruising niche is rapidly increasing in popularity. River ships were once considered bleak and bland but now modern day creations continue to blossom, exuding style and offering something different to an ocean liner. A river cruise is ideal for passengers who enjoy the comforts and variety of a cruising holiday yet have the desire to see more of the world and explore new areas. It isn't just Europe you can enjoy by opting for a river cruise; there are also excellent itineraries around the world such as the Yangtze River experience in China for example. The options are endless and it really does open up a whole new world for our clients looking to indulge in a change.

Now that we've addressed the topic, let's look at what you can expect from a river cruise. The itineraries are always excellent, port intensive and certainly provide a unique opportunity. Cuisine is outstanding, something you may not expect from a river cruise but you would be distinctly mistaken. The on board experience is great with a laid back, relaxing atmosphere whilst still offering a wide range of entertainment. The passenger capacity on board is relatively small, as you would imagine, but there is great emphasis on service with the crew to guest ratio. A major benefit of a river cruise is that it is often the case that many excursions are included in the overall cost of the cruise, without the need for added expense, thus offering exceptional value for money. There will be 'added extras' on board that you have the chance to opt for, usually for a small charge, but most things are included which is excellent for planning the places you wish to see most without having to worry about cost. Another huge positive to river cruising is that for anyone that sometimes struggles to find their sea legs, you will find the waters much calmer than the ocean and therefore much easier to get used to. Let's take a closer look at the accommodation. Often many people have the perception that the smaller the ship, the more you're going to be packed in like sardines, well it is the complete opposite. The staterooms on board are superbly laid out with space a major factor. You will find just as much room aboard a river cruise ship as you would find on a larger ocean vessel. The amenities are excellent and on board some of the brand new long boat designs you can expect state of the art design and technology at your fingertips. Beautifully designed suites are available at an extra charge and come with certain added perks such as priority embarkation, but the standard sized cabins are more than comfortable.

So, you've got to the point of thinking maybe this could be worth looking at but now you arrive at the question; who shall I look to travel with? This is the next step and we have the perfect suggestion; Viking River Cruises. This exceptional cruise line is at the forefront of the river cruising industry and offers a fantastic range of itineraries throughout the year. Viking has once again revolutionised the market with the introduction of their brand new long boat design in 2013, breaking the world record for the most ships to be christened in one day. This cruise line will continue to enhance their fleet with even further additions planned for 2014 enabling them to offer even greater on board facilities. huge reason we recommend Viking River Cruises is due to the access you will enjoy at the various ports of call during your cruise. Many river cruise lines will arrive in port alongside other river vessels, docked together in a parallel line equiring guests to walk through each ship before reaching shore. With Viking River Cruises this is not the case; the majority of the time they have their own private berthing slots, especially at the major ports of interest, therefore making access easy and efficient; completely hassle free. As a highly regarded agent it is always our aim to work with the best operators possible and it is for this reason that we continue to recommend Viking River Cruises.

River cruising offers access to some of the world's most amazing cities so if you are thinking about your next holiday you should really check out the itineraries available. We are here to answer any questions so please do not hesitate to give us a call, we would be more than happy to discuss the best river cruising options with you.

Treat Your Taste Buds

can now expect to experience world class food in a wide range of exciting restaurant venues.

Cruise lines are also expanding their relationships with world renowned celebrity chefs to develop interesting and varied menus befitting the luxurious surroundings on board. Simply put, cruising would not be the same without the standards of dining that have been set. Cruise operators love food, not just for what it is, but for what it brings with it and the pleasure it provides for their passengers; exquisite surroundings, great company and conversation, the silver-service experience from waiters who become friends and we cannot forget the magnificent array of fine wines from around the world that accompany the spectacular dishes.

Dining has become a distinctive method of creating a unique point of difference between competing cruise lines. Our 2013 summer edition of 'Into The Blue' introduced many of our Cruise Club members to the fascinating speciality dining venues aboard Oceania Cruises and these remarkable innovations will continue to take centre stage aboard most cruise ships as we progress through 2014. Many cruise line chefs are also members of highly regarded prestigous societies. P&O Cruises for example induct all their chefs into the esteemed 'Chaîne des Rôtisseurs', a society devoted to promoting and developing gastronomic values, and their passion for premium quality is clearly reflected in every

OLLY SMITH

Jean-Marie Zimmerman has a longstanding partnership with Cunard Line. Having joined the cruise line as an Executive Chef he has gone on to become a Corporate Executive Chef and a highly regarded consultant. The role put him at the very heart and soul of shore based operations at the cruise lines Southampton headquarters, tasked with the challenge of raising the already superb standards set on board.

As Executive Chef, Zimmerman is responsible for the kitchens on the world's grandest ocean-going liners – the incomparable Queen Mary 2, Queen Victoria and Queen Elizabeth.

It must be quite an honour to be Cunard's Culinary Ambassador. Could you tell us a bit more about the role and what it involves?

I am responsible for the quality and style of the gastronomy in all Cunard restaurants and work on designing the operational side of all new restaurants. I am responsible for establishing the food specifications for our menus and work very closely with our purchasing department. I am involved in choosing all the suppliers for Cunard and will only work with the freshest and highest quality produce. I introduce menu changes when necessary throughout the year and ensure that we are keeping within our food budgets.

Are there any particular trends in on board cuisine at the moment?

Guests seem to be increasingly enjoying the opportunity to dine in alternative restaurants, as well as new International cuisine in a more familiar setting. Being on board ship guests have greater confidence in the source of the ingredients and know that the kitchens will be spotless and that the chefs are well-trained.

Having started life as a scriptwriter for children's television show Pingu, Olly Smith has gone on to become one of the leading wine experts winning the contest 'Wine Idol' to set him on his way. Now the wine connoisseur and TV presenter is the man behind The Glass House, a wonderfully innovative venue on board P&O Cruises' Azura and Ventura.

What qualities do you need to become a wine connoisseur?

A good memory to remember not just the flavours and aromas of a wine, but its label, price and which foods to pair it with. Anyone can taste wine – and the more you taste, the better you get!

What's the secret of pairing wine with food?

If you like it, then it's the best match in the world! There are helpful guidelines which I've written about in my first book, Eat & Drink: Good Food That's Great to Drink With, and some good principles to follow. For example, salty flavours work with bright, sharp wines – similar to the complementary flavours of salt and vinegar. I love experimenting, too – for example, bubbly Prosecco with creamy mozzarella is a total winner!

What was your vision for The Glass House?

To make wine as informal and enjoyable as possible and to offer wines from off the beaten track to surprise and delight. I passionately believe there's a wine for every palate and pocket.

You create the wine list and blend house wines for the rest of the fleet. Where do you start?

I try to pick wines that are surprising as well as world-class, such as Gaia's Wild Ferment Assyrtiko, a Greek white from Santorini that is unique in the world and of superb quality. For the house wines, it's a combination of listening to passengers' palates and hunting the very best value.

After leaving school without any qualifications, the young Marco set his sights on becoming a chef. Arriving in London at 16, he began his classical training at Le Gavroche, run by Albert Roux and Michel Roux. As well as becoming the first British chef ever to win three Michelin stars and, at 33, the second-youngest chef in history to do so, he trained the next generation, including current three-star holders Gordon Ramsay and Heston Blumenthal. Famous for his larger than life character, he revolutionised the reputation of British cooking.

He has been involved with P&O Cruises since 2008, when The White Room was launched on Ventura, while the rebranded Café Jardin opened on Oceana and Café Bordeaux on Aurora. They have since been joined by Ocean Grill on Adonia, Arcadia and Oriana. Marco is just as passionate today about providing a highquality dining experience as he was when he first started out in his career. "I think people's expectations are far greater today than they were 30 years ago," he explains. "People are more well-travelled, they're used to eating in better-quality restaurants, they dine out more often and therefore when they come on to a ship, they are your greatest critic. I'm a great believer that when people go on holiday, food plays a very large part," Marco continues. "If you eat badly, whether it's in a resort or on a cruise, it really affects your holiday. You have to give people a sense of occasion "

Head for Ventura's The White Room and you'll find a mouth-watering menu including starters of Velouté of Wild Mushrooms and Madeira Cappuccino with Truffle Foam and Mediterranean Prawns, King Scallops and Tempura Oysters with Vegetable Fritters and Sweet Chilli Sauce. Mains include Lobster Tartufi with Saffron Risotto, Green Asparagus and Black Truffle Butter, and Crusted Rack of Lamb with a Panache of Tuscan Vegetables.

Exclusively for Solution

Cruising has fast become a family favourite with many passengers now travelling with children, and why not, cruises are perfect for children – there is so much for them to do! However, some people may seek a cruise that allows complete peace, quiet and relaxation – a time to unwind and recharge in a child free environment. Adult only cruising provides just that, it is a holiday that appeals to honeymooners, people whose children are grown up and single passengers. Although the majority of cruises are aimed at families, adult only cruises are becoming more commonplace in today's cruise market and demand is certainly evident.

Who'ssettingthetrends?

P&O Cruises are leading the way in their dedication to adult only cruising. This cruise line began catering to this niche by transforming Arcadia, Oriana and most recently Adonia into leading cruise ships for the adult only preference. Tranquil and serene, these adult only selections offer that extra special touch of relaxation to give guests a real break away from the strains of day to day life. Oriana is a timeless classic that continues to impress whoever sail aboard her, whilst Arcadia recently underwent a thorough refurbishment in November 2013 that included a new deckhouse concept, a makeover for the Crow's Nest, new carpets, curtains, incabin entertainment and shops. Arcadia also received a brand new dining venue in the form of Atul Kochhar's 'East'. Adonia is also a fantastic ship but differs from the others in size. Her intimate size allows her to head off the beaten track and take in destinations other larger cruise vessels could only dream of.

Luxury cruise lines are also an excellent choice when looking for adult only cruising. Choosing a luxury cruise line such as Seabourn, Silversea, Regent Seven Seas or Cunard would be a good start, as they tend to provide less programs and activities to cater for young passengers. River cruises are also favoured by adults and an excellent option for relatively child-free cruising. Avoid the larger family friendly ships, knowing that the majority of families will opt for these ships leaves other less family orientated ships almost child-free.

Seekingoutchild-freeareasonboard

Whilst purpose-built adult only ships may be few and far between, many cruise lines are waking up to the idea that having specific areas for adults only on board is a necessity to cater for modern day demand. Guests seeking tranquillity require areas where they can go to simply relax. The introduction of quiet, adult only areas on board has been a revelation. It was Royal Caribbean that initially identified the need for such areas and responded by introducing adult only solarium areas on board. This began with basic facilities but has gone on to now provide stunning attractions including tile mosaics and tropical foliage, music channelled underwater and fascinating features such as two large hot tubs cantilevered out 12 feet from the sides of the ship. Princess Cruises have created The Sanctuary, a beautiful retreat located at the forward area of the ship. This hidden treasure for adults is adorned with plush loungers and massage cabanas along with its own private pool. Norwegian Cruise Line responded with the introduction of such concepts as the 'POSH Beach Club' aboard Norwegian Epic at the peak of the ship and most recently the stunning 'Haven' on board Norwegian Breakaway.

Planyourcruise

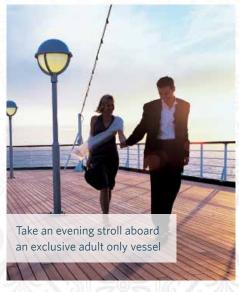

Plan ahead when you're looking to cruise. If you're looking to sail outside of school holiday periods then it's likely there will be very few, if any, children on board but if you are restricted to these dates then consider a P&O adult only cruise or look into the aforementioned options and allow our cruise consultants to point you in the right direction. We'll ensure we find a cruise with as many adult only options on board as possible for you to enjoy.

A Star Clipper cruise in the Mediterranean can bring you. perfect moments... The sun has set and the twinkling lights. of a Mediterranean harbour are reflected in the water. It is 10pm sail away time, dinner has just finished and you stroll. up on deck to catch one last glimpse of the yachts and holidaymakers dining at waterside restaurants. The strains of Vangellis 1942 conquest of paradise can be heard as the ship pulls away and heads off on its cruise.

The Clipper fleet are beautiful re-creations of the 19th-century tea clippers that used to ply their trade around the world; all teak surfaces, polished brass winches. towering masts and great swathes of sail that unfurl.

The ships are quite stunning and draw admiring glances every time they are within sight of land.

There are plunge pools, suri loungers, a piano bar and an outdoor bar and deck covered by an awning, ideal for early evening cocktails.

CARNIVAL UK 2013 CRUISE AWARDS

The 2013 Carnival UK Cruise Awards took place aboard Cunard's Queen Mary 2 on Monday 11 November 2013 and the evening once again proved to be a special occasion for Bolsover Cruise Club. Scooping the widely coveted awards for "Top UK Independent Agent" for both P&O Cruises and Princess Cruises for the 27th year in succession, we continue to be hailed as the official number one agent for two of the biggest cruise brands in the UK.

A key fixture in the cruise calendar, the highly prestigious annual awards ceremony is always a momentous occasion and this year was certainly no different. Held in the port of Hamburg, Germany aboard Queen Mary 2, the esteemed event was attended by some of the UK's top performing agents in a bid to see who truly is the best of the best. Bolsover Cruise Club Director Julie Straw was accompanied by Sales Manager Helen Moore, Sales Administration Manager Wendy Flegg, Sales Team Leader Craig Booker and Senior Sales Consultant Amber Lynn-Harness.

"This is an accolade that we are very proud of and continue to strive to achieve each and every year. Our determination has allowed us to shine through once again as the industry's market leader. We are very privileged to have received this award for our 27th year and it wouldn't be possible without the continued hard work and dedication of our sales staff." said Managing Director, Michael Wilson.

Bolsover Cruise Club had a great evening and the staff were extremely proud to be acknowledged once again for this outstanding achievement. Alongside 'Top UK Independent Agent', Bolsover Cruise Club also won the 'Greatest Growth Award' for Cunard, another prestigious achievement.
