WELCOME

And just like that, we're saying goodbye to another summer. With the kids back at school and autumn in the air, thoughts naturally turn to holidays, don't they? There's something about seeing the end of the warmer months that makes booking some winter sun even more tempting. Our main destination feature in this edition is Sri Lanka and India, a part of the world that promises a feast for the senses and an exciting option for anyone looking for something a little more exotic over the coming months.

After almost a year in the planning, our Cruise & Stay service is now running at full speed and we have already created bespoke holiday packages for hundreds of you. With hotel stays, escorted tours, sailings and rail journeys in destinations around the world, it's the easiest way to extend your cruise holiday into something even more unforgettable. We've featured some of our favourite packages inside; where will we take you?

Looking ahead, we're counting down to the launch of new 2021/22 itineraries from Cunard and P&O Cruises, as well as more exciting updates on Iona in coming weeks. Stay tuned for more!

Finally, you may notice that the wrapping your Into The Blue arrived in feels a little different this time around. We've made the switch to potato starch to help eradicate single-use plastic for the sake of the seas we all love to sail; please do recycle yours.

I hope you enjoy reading.

Yours sincerely

A N T W E R P

Antwerp is an old eccentric, a place as cool as Brooklyn and as historic as Bruges. Getting lost in its old town sees you discover artistic treasures at Rubens House and uncover hidden medieval alleys in Vlaekensgang. There are hip eateries for sustenance and craft breweries for a cold Belgian beer, not to mention melodic carillon concerts, generations-old diamond dealers and even a train station touted as the world's most romantic. Of course, we'd rather you arrive by sea...

SEABOURN LAUNCHES PRIVATE JET SERVICE

Ultra-luxury cruise line Seabourn has announced the launch of its new private chartered jet service, Seabourn Private Air.

Designed for guests who prefer the luxury and convenience of private jet travel to commercial airlines, Seabourn Private Air will be able to accommodate groups of any size on a variety of aircraft. Guests will pay for the aircraft, rather than the seat, so the more passengers on board, the lower the cost per person. Flight costs will be in addition to cruise fares.

Amongst the amenities offered as part of the Seabourn Private Air package are complimentary transfers to and from the nearest airport and onward to Seabourn's cruise port, plus Seabourn signature food and beverages on every flight, including Regiis Ova caviar and Montaudon champagne.

Seabourn Private Air is available now.

PRINCESS CRUISES ANNOUNCE OCEANMEDALLION DEVELOPMENTS

Princess Cruises has made it easier for passengers to use its OceanMedallion experience both with and without a mobile phone.

A new, more inclusive version of the app, called MedallionClass, removes the need for passengers to download multiple apps to their phone and takes up less than a third of the space of the original version. Princess Cruises has also made the OceanMedallion experience available to those who do not wish to carry their mobile phones, instead allowing them to use the features of the service in their stateroom and on touchscreens around ship.

ROYAL CARIBBEAN INTRODUCES VEGAN MENU

Royal Caribbean has introduced a new vegan menu in main dining rooms on board all ships in the fleet.

Rolled out to each vessel as it returns to its homeport, the new menu features dishes such as edamame-stuffed Portobello mushrooms and a vegan spaghetti Bolognese, alongside dessert options. Vegan food will continue to be available in the Windjammer buffet, as before, but the introduction of a new menu in main dining rooms has been designed to give vegan passengers more options for formal dining on Royal Caribbean ships.

CELEBRITY APEX TO LAUNCH EARLY WITH UK PREVIEW

Celebrity Cruises has announced that new Edge-class ship, Celebrity Apex, will launch ahead of schedule and enter service in April 2020.

A special four-night preview sailing will depart Southampton on 1 April 2020, calling at Bruges and Amsterdam. The cruise will mark the beginning of a mini-season of five sailings from Southampton for Celebrity Apex following its launch, before she spends the summer in the Mediterranean.

Speaking about the early arrival of the second

Edge-class ship, vice president and managing director of Celebrity Cruises UK, Ireland & Asia, Jo Rzymowska said:

"After a phenomenal response to our game-changing ship Celebrity Edge last year, we couldn't be more excited that sister ship, Celebrity Apex, will take to the water earlier than expected. The four-night 'Preview Sailing' is the perfect introduction to luxury holidays at sea on a ship that breaks all the rules."

Celebrity Apex is on sale now.

PRINCESS CRUISES TO ATTEMPT VALENTINE'S DAY RECORD

Princess Cruises will attempt to set the world record for largest number of vow renewals at sea next year, with a ceremony onboard Regal Princess' Valentine's Day sailing.

The event will be part of a special seven-night sailing and will be officiated by Gavin MacLeod, who played Captain Stubing in popular '70s TV show 'The Love Boat', filmed on a Princess Ship.

Other 'romantic touches' are expected to be announced for the sailing from Fort Lauderdale on 9 February 2020 over the coming months. The itinerary will visit Ocho Rios, Grand Cayman, Cozumel and Princess Cays.

THE SPICE OF LIFE

If variety is the spice of life, a holiday to India and Sri Lanka lifts the lid on the whole spice rack. This vast part of the world is a feast for the senses, a delectable, diverse, delicious locale, where vivid colours, heady scents and a cacophony of sounds surround and surprise you. There's nowhere on earth quite like here; multi-cultural, historical, modern and overwhelming in a way that will leave you feeling like you've had the adventure of a lifetime in a place where few are fortunate enough to wander.

You could spend years exploring all on offer, from the grand palaces of India to the beaches of Goa and jungles of Sri Lanka. But who has all the time in the world with which to play? An ebb and flow of unspoilt beaches one day and frenetic, friendly cities the next, a cruise here is effortless and unforgettable.

The Taj Mahal

COCHIN

Bohemian Cochin is the cultural capital of India and visitors have been welcomed portside here for over 600 years, ever since the spice trade put the then Portuguese settlement on the map. Over time, the city has only gotten more charming, an amalgamation of influences meaning Chinese fishing nets suspended against sunset skies, India's oldest synagogue giving a nod to Jewish culture and colonial buildings standing as regal reminders of Portuguese and Dutch occupation.

Cochin offers much to its guests, but its star attraction are the backwaters, meandering canals and lagoons shaded with coconut palms and with a shoreline scattered with tiny communities. Most excursions board in Alleppey and navigate the waterways that cut through lush paddy fields and jungle vegetation, often calling at historic Fort Kochi to visit St. Francis Church, India's oldest European church and the burial place of explorer Vasco da Gama.

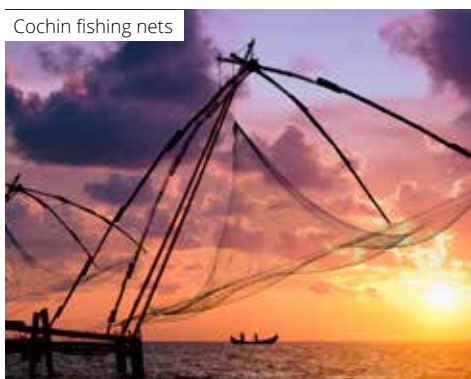

With the swaying palms and rice paddies of Cochin rolling by, you'll get an idea of rural India away from the excitement of the cities, where life is slow and steady against spectacular scenery. It's a part of any India and Sri Lanka cruise itinerary that isn't forgotten in a hurry. In fact, for many, Cochin is the highlight of a holiday.

GOA

Back in the day, Goa held reputation as a hippy enclave awash with tie-dye trousers and yogis. But India's smallest state has more to it than that. Nestled in the south of the country, Goa's 40-plus miles of coast are its lifeline. They welcome sunseekers with perfect sands at the likes of Calangute and Cansaulim, and appeal to bargain hunters with famous beachside flea markets at Anjuna. Life here is lived by the beach and who doesn't long for that?

If even paradise can't persuade you to sit still for long, excursions from the port in Mormugao to the capital, Panjim City, will walk you through the intriguing Portuguese Latin Quarters, where red-roofed houses date back to the 18th and 19th centuries. For a capital city, Panjim sure is laidback and you can lose hours just meandering and snapping shots of its churches and chapels. Don't worry if natural beauty is more your thing; Goa's spice plantations blanket acre upon acre in nutmeg, cinnamon and bay trees. After all, they don't call India 'the land of spices' for nothing.

COLOMBO

Back at the beginning of the year, Sri Lanka was named the world's top travel destination for 2019 by Lonely Planet. Fast forward to Easter and tragedy struck. But Sri Lanka has bounced back spectacularly, emerging stronger than ever and with a lust for life that reminds us why we're so desperate to visit a place Marco Polo described as 'the most beautiful island in the world'. With the FCO advisory lifted, there has never been a better time to beat the crowds and visit Sri Lanka.

Sri Lanka's capital, Colombo blends Portuguese, Dutch, English and Indian influences to create a cultural hotchpotch that's intoxicating. The Pettah bazaar is a hive of activity and the pavements around it see fresh fruit stalls stacked high beside street food stands, not to mention Sea Street, a mile-long stretch of jewellers where all that glitters is gold. Jeep safaris put you closer to the local wildlife in Udawalawe National Park and the calm waters of Bentota beach beckon the sun-starved.

There's an air of mystery to Sri Lanka, the land of elephants and leopards, ancient ruins, bold colour and fragrant spices. Colombo is where past meets present, old and new contrasted at every turn, reminding you that there's more to the destination than beautiful – almost deserted – beaches.

MUMBAI (BOMBAY)

Welcome to Mumbai, birthplace of Bollywood and labyrinthine land of temples. Mumbai is beautiful chaos, its streets packed to the rafters with some of the friendliest people in the world. City tours throw you into the hustle and bustle of street markets like the Chor Bazaar and navigate hypnotic traffic to take you to the ornate Gateway of India or the humbling Gandhi Museum. Elsewhere, excursions out of the city promise an opportunity to delve into the carved Elephanta Caves complex or take in India's most fabled mausoleum, the Taj Mahal.

Many cruise lines earmark Mumbai for their overnight stays on India itineraries, meaning more time to venture past landmarks that are unmissable but by no means all the destination has to offer. Known as the lungs of the city, Sanjay Gandhi National Park is a breath of fresh air just 90 minutes from the manic metropolis. The sprawling tropical forest is home to leopards, monkeys and many exotic flora, but the Kanheri Caves are the real star. Built for monks over the course of 1,000 years, the 109 monastic buildings carved into a ravine side are mesmerising and less-visited than the better-known caves of Elephanta.

Exotic adventures

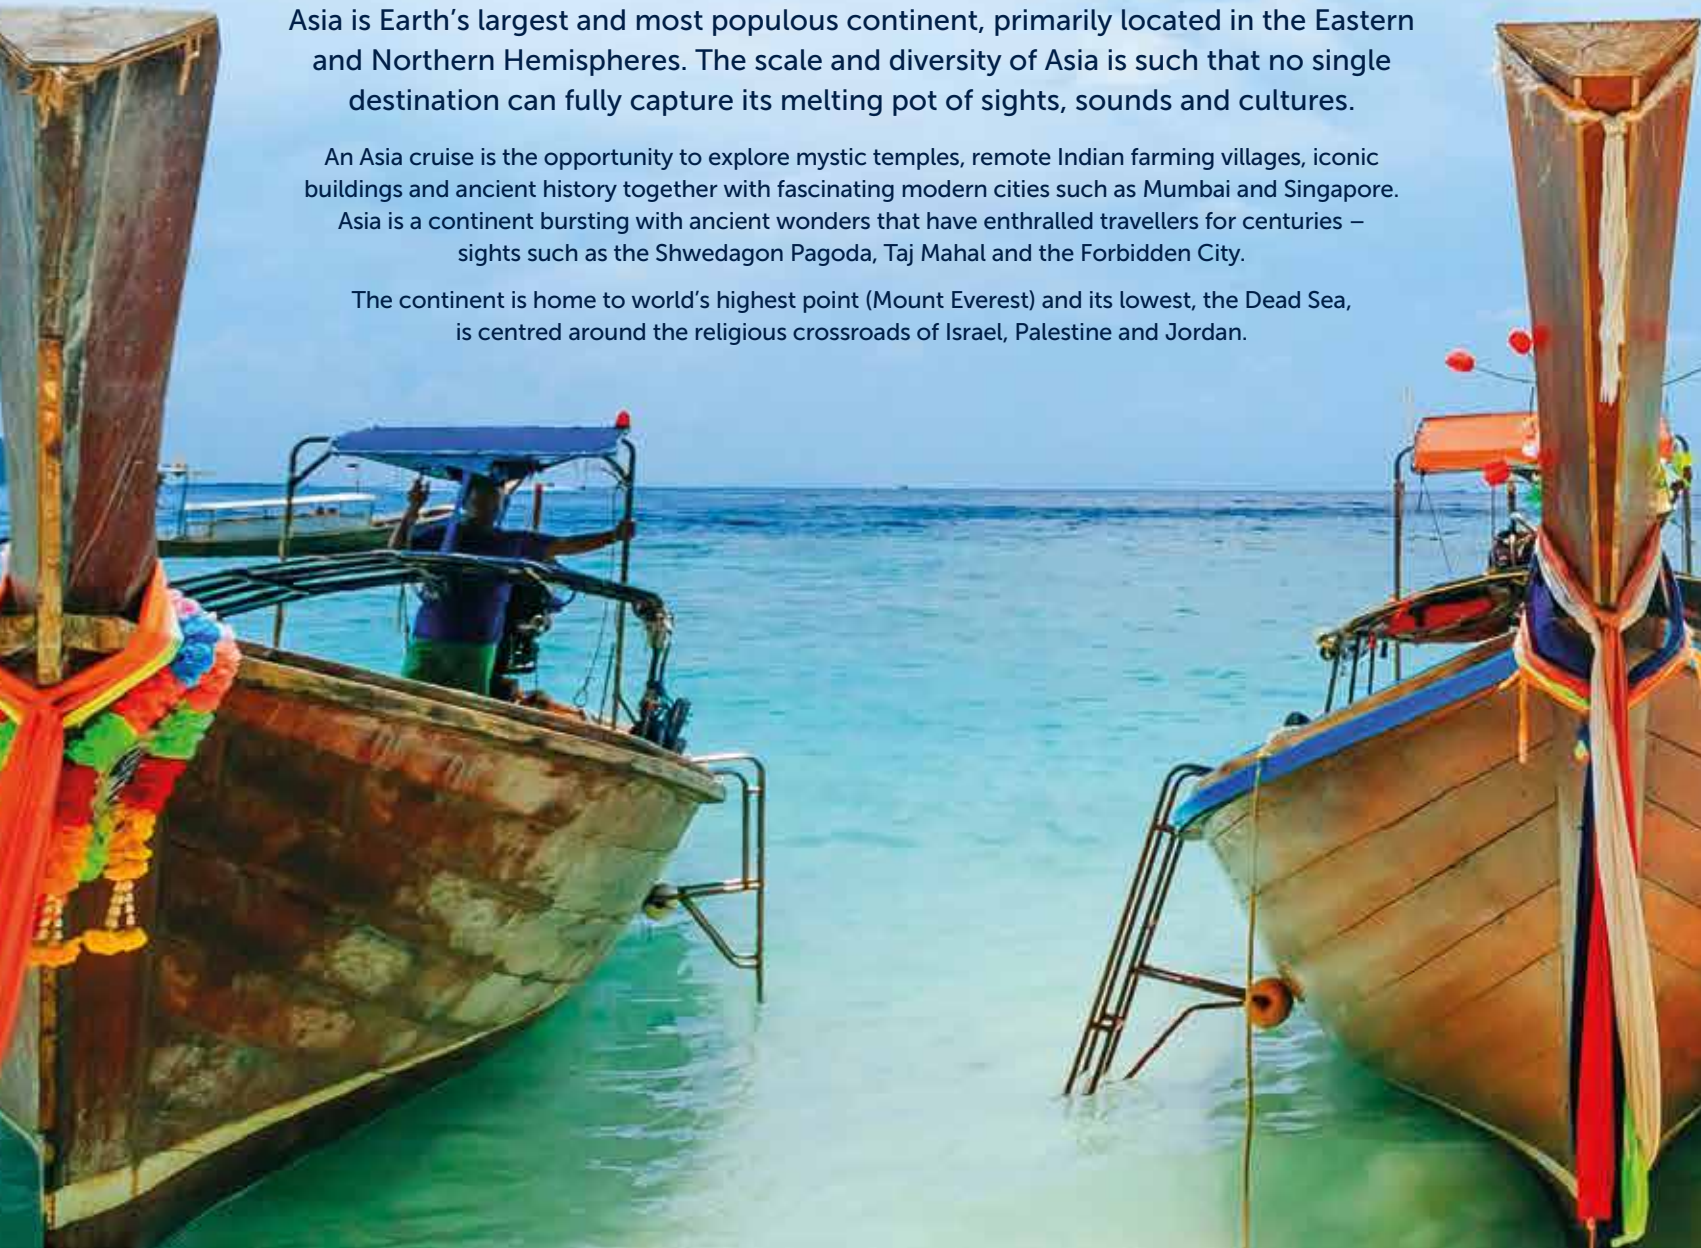

Bring you closer to the destination

Asia is Earth's largest and most populous continent, primarily located in the Eastern and Northern Hemispheres. The scale and diversity of Asia is such that no single destination can fully capture its melting pot of sights, sounds and cultures.

An Asia cruise is the opportunity to explore mystic temples, remote Indian farming villages, iconic buildings and ancient history together with fascinating modern cities such as Mumbai and Singapore.

Asia is a continent bursting with ancient wonders that have enthralled travellers for centuries – sights such as the Shwedagon Pagoda, Taj Mahal and the Forbidden City.

The continent is home to world's highest point (Mount Everest) and its lowest, the Dead Sea, is centred around the religious crossroads of Israel, Palestine and Jordan.

RIVERS OF GOLD

Following AmaDouro's introduction to one of the oldest wine countries in the world, Into The Blue's Rebecca Martin embarked the namesake AmaWaterways ship that is bringing a touch of gold to Portugal's Douro River.

There are certain things that can't help but make a town feel like fun. Having experienced Porto, I can confirm that riversides lined with port wine merchants and cavernous cellars converted into divine dining spots are amongst those things. For those first few hours in Portugal's second city, AmaDouro becomes a haven-like place in which to retreat after sampling the wares of a place that is intoxicating in every sense. And then, after a day and a night, it is beneath the Louis I iron bridge from which the local lads swan-dived the afternoon before we go.

We're bound for a week of wine on the 'River of Gold', so called by the Romans because the sun setting on its water reflects with a golden glow that means AmaWaterways' gilded AmaDouro blends seamlessly with her surroundings. So much so, in fact, that you can't help but feel like nobody else in the world could show you the Alta Douro region quite so well.

By the time Fortunata has refilled my glass and I've made myself comfortable in one of the rocking chairs that sit front and centre at the bow of the ship, the scenery has already started to change. Porto's riverside bairro of Ribeiro gives way in a colourful blur to plumes of eucalyptus trees and greenery that grows to the very edge of the river, give or take a beach or two. On a Sunday in the summer, those sandy slips and their cherry-red parasols break up the great panels of green hillside, simultaneously breaking the silence with little kids playing and big kids living it up on the back of boats. It's a reminder that a good life is lived on the banks of the Douro.

AmaDouro

AmaDouro Pool

The nature of the river and a lack of artificial light means that all sailing is done during the day. This means you don't miss a thing, whether you position yourself in the lounge with your book or by the pool with a drink. With only 100 passengers, the ship feels utterly serene, the quiet giving way only to the toot of a horn at a passing pleasure boat or to birdsong, the singer heard but rarely seen. Quintas and villas emerge at the end of roads to nowhere as you roll on by. Some are charmingly unassuming, timeworn white with olive shutters and washing flapping in the wind. Others are palatial, fronted by manicured gardens and with a boat or two waiting on the water for the lazy days of summer.

You sip and sup your way through days on the Douro. Tippy travel - or enotourism, to give it its 'proper' name - has become big business here in Portugal.

You sip and sup your way through days on the Douro. Tippy travel - or enotourism, to give it its 'proper' name - has become big business here in Portugal, following in the footsteps of California and South Africa. While the country might have been late to the wine tourism party, its demarcated wine region is the oldest in the world, dating back to around 1756. The Douro Valley is the only place in the world which produces those divine port wine grapes, but the region's expertise extends to table wines too. Over the course of my week on AmaDouro, I enjoy an education on both, some of the most esteemed wineries in the region serving as my classroom and generations of winemaker my teacher. My 'classmates' have travelled from around the world. There are Brits and Brits abroad, including a couple who upped sticks to start a new life and winery in the hills of El Dorado. Fast forward a few years and those seedlings have grown into grapes that scoop awards on the California wine scene, something that's no mean feat given the region's accolade-heavy appellations.

Californian wine aficionados are a common theme amongst AmaDouro's guests, confirming that Portugal's tipples have a reputation for being worth travelling for. The wine-mad aside, the passenger demographic is varied, from the young South African family dabbling in the Douro as part of an extended trip to Europe, to the dashing Scandinavian teen holidaying with his uber-glamorous grandma and taking an air of aristocracy with him on every excursion. Such a varied crowd – and the most fun and friendly crew I've come across on any of Europe's river cruise ships – meant a lively atmosphere on board and a real team spirit ashore. For such a small ship, it's easy to spend time alone on AmaDouro, but with a group of guests and crew like this, you really don't want to.

We bond over wine tastings ashore and slices of almond cake aboard, catching up at the coffee machines with a wink of unspoken understanding as another cookie falls from the jar with less than an hour until lunch.

Excursions on AmaDouro offer a choice of active levels, although even the most strenuous break only a light sweat. Mostly, they serve to showcase the region's allure

Wine tasting

and imbibe guests with its produce. In the gardens of Quinta da Aveleda, with seven regal peacocks for company and the sun setting over the vines, we learn about Portugal's Vinho verde from the family whose estate is known as one of the very best. Walking under centuries-old trees, having sampled the produce over a traditional Portuguese dinner, is a real pinch-yourself moment.

The next day, our arrival into port at Régua brings us to the Shrine of Our Lady of Remedies in Lamego. Fronted by 686 steps and decked in azulejos, it's a sight to behold. Some scale the steps, others do it twice (what a way to burn off all that cheese and wine!) and others enjoy a leisurely saunter down to the foot of them, where Lamego sparkling wine and delicious Bolas de Lamego rewards everyone's efforts regardless.

Just the one wine tasting a day won't possibly do, so it's onto Quinta da Roeda for a port wine education in its old stable building. As you'd expect from one of the famous Port Croft estates, the vintages hit the spot and see a lengthy queue for souvenir bottles to be enjoyed at home.

The next day, Pinhão brings sweet ginjinha liquor and sugar-crusted almonds at the baking-hot hilltop town of Castelo Rodrigo. It's our most leisurely day of the week and everyone laps up the opportunity to relax and soak up some of that Mediterranean sun back on board.

The Douro becomes impassable once you reach the Spanish border, but there's time for a jaunt into Salamanca before doubling back along the river. 'The Golden City' is a sea of sandstone and an academic powerhouse with the fourth-oldest university in the world. There's a youthful energy and regal history in a place where adventurers like Christopher Columbus and Hernán Cortés concocted grand plans to explore. In the studious surrounds of Salamanca University, you can be forgiven for thinking that the sound of footsteps on flagstones is you stepping into a Dan Brown novel.

Our final day is a favourite, starting with a pastéis de nata demo with sous chef Raúl in the lounge and rounding off with visits to two quintas, naturally. Quinta de Avesada sits pretty in the village of Favaio, where views from a wine-glass shaped infinity pool stretch for miles. Dinner is a Portuguese feast of local dishes, each served with a glass of its Muscatel produce and introduced with a story of how the estate at the heart of the region kept wine production alive during tough times. This, combined with our animated host and the poached pear with red wine, cinnamon and brown sugar dessert, saw it deemed by many as a standout experience of the trip.

Last, but not least, was Mateus Palace and Gardens, creator of the Mateus rosé that kept a generation refreshed from its flask-like bottle during the summers of the '70s and is experiencing a revival after a recipe tweak.

And then, after a slow and fond farewell to those vineyard-stacked valleys from the decks of the AmaDouro, it was back to Porto to end the trip with an afternoon and evening in the city where it started. Cork souvenirs were purchased, and one last glass of port was raised to new friends brought together by booze and leaving with plans and promises of winery visits and international catch-ups.

AmaDouro is resolutely local, with the crew, the food, even the furniture all hailing from Portugal. But while all of the above was fabulous, not to mention the ship itself, for all the food and wine that played a part in our week, the real star was the river. Meandering along in all its golden glory.

IN THE SPIRIT OF DISCOVERY

Within hours of debuting in Dover, Spirit of Discovery had shattered any misconceptions that Saga equals staid. We boarded the first-ever new build for the cruise line fast becoming one of the UK's favourite, gathering some first impressions of a ship as stylish as any boutique hotel you've ever stayed in, only with sea views and new destinations every day.

There's something quintessentially British about the recently redeveloped Dover Western Docks that makes Spirit of Discovery seem right at home there. It's probably the White Cliffs in the background or the great British seaside that sits at the foot of them. Maybe it's a subconscious thing, knowing you're just a stone's throw from a cream tea. It was almost definitely helped by the retro swing band that played away – all pin curls, brogues and braces – while we waited to board our ship. Whatever it was that day, the sense of occasion surrounding Saga's new arrival, a ship set to call Dover home and set off from the coastal town and cruise capital Southampton to the world, was palpable.

Saga's long-awaited third ship is the first of two new-builds for the cruise line. Accommodating just 999 passengers, she's positively diminutive by comparison to her more colossal counterparts, something that has led to Saga CEO Robin Shaw hailing her as 'Britain's first boutique hotel at sea.' Having spent two days cruising off the coast of Kent making our acquaintance with Spirit of Discovery, it's hard to disagree.

It doesn't take long to realise that Saga have looked to the luxury leaders for inspiration in terms of décor.

This is classic British cruising with a boutique touch that starts at the décor and goes way beyond. The crew, cuisine and entertainment standards are characteristic of the Saga we all know and love, as are famously good value fare inclusions that range from travel insurance to gratuities, wine, Wi-Fi and chauffeur transfers. But beyond that, Spirit of Discovery signals a new dawn for the cruise line, with interiors that wouldn't look out of place in London's most esteemed hotels and dining venues that could knock some speciality dining options on ultra-luxury ships out of the water.

It doesn't take long to realise that Saga have looked to the luxury leaders for inspiration in terms of décor. The contemporary vibes run deep, from the buttermilk yellow and bold teal highlights that cut through otherwise classic Art Deco interiors in The Britannia Lounge, to the sugared almond pink armchairs in the library and the 1,000 pieces of art dotted around the ship. Amongst them are 400 original works from British artists such as Evelyn Binns, Helen Amy Murray and David Harber, part of a collection commissioned over a number of years and curated to showcase the landscapes and colours of the British Isles. It's a bold statement that confirms this is an unashamedly British ship, built consciously to reflect that by its British cruise line. The result is enough to have you redesigning every room in your house within an hour of being on board.

The décor continues through public lounges and into cabins, all of which have a roomy private balcony, whichever of the 12 categories you choose to rest your head. In a happy – and necessary – development for solo travellers, 20 per cent of cabins on board have been

Anyone who has ever experienced the cruise line's famous seafood buffet will rub their hands in glee at the thought of sitting down to dinner here.

The Club with Jools designed especially for solo occupancy, a huge increase on the industry-average of five per cent. The 100 cabins aren't your usual shoebox-sized sleeping quarters either. For starters, they have balconies where usually you'd be lucky to find a window. Solo travellers can choose Standard, Superior or Deluxe Single Balcony cabins, or the Single Suite with Balcony if they're feeling indulgent and it happens to be available (highly unlikely during a wildly popular inaugural season, but worth a try regardless). Best of all, the beds are enormous, so you can starfish to your heart's content.

When it comes to what's cooking, the answer is quite a lot, actually. The Club by Jools is undoubtedly the dish of the day with its Manhattan-esque interiors, all mahogany wood and maroon gentleman's club leather. With an open kitchen, a resident swing band and guest appearances from the man himself when Jools Holland joins Saga for selected sailings, we'd argue that it's the smartest supper club we've seen at sea.

Joining The Club amongst the included speciality options is East to West, which promises a taste of the Orient in terms of both décor and fine dining.

Joining The Club amongst the included speciality options is East to West, which promises a taste of the Orient in terms of both décor and fine dining. Last but not least is Coast to Coast, Saga's first ever seafood restaurant. Anyone who has ever experienced the cruise line's famous seafood buffet will rub their hands in glee at the thought of sitting down to dinner here. There's room for just 74 diners a night, but with options like the Coast to Coast seafood platter, a delectable lobster thermidor and a signature line-caught fish and chips that promises a taste of home anywhere in the world, it's well worth jostling for a spot. And whenever – wherever – you dine, be it The Grand Dining Room, The Grill (a small but sleek buffet with seriously good food) or one of the aforementioned speciality restaurants, leave room for cheese; Saga touts itself as the owner of the most extensive 'fromagerie' at sea and little could beat the joy we felt at seeing the cheese cart roll around with the latest selections each evening.

While her dimensions make her a mid-sized ship by definition, Spirit of Discovery's tendency to tempt you into cosy hideaways around her many public spaces makes her feel half the size. Hidden nooks in The Library are crying out to be curled up in on a sea day. It's one of the best-stocked libraries at sea too, lined with row upon row of petrol blue bookshelves, plus a coffee corner stocked with snacks. If your holidays are about hiding away, this is the place to do it. Elsewhere, in The Living Room and even the expansive entertainment area, The Britannia Lounge, spaces are divided into areas for mingling and others for escaping. It's a clever design approach that gives Saga's newest addition a small-ship feel without compromising on the sense of space.

After two days, we'd got a real feel for Saga's boutique beauty. If you love small-ship cruising from the UK but don't want to sacrifice on space, and if you revel in those little British touches that make a ship feel like it was built with you in mind, we'll see you on board soon.

36 HOURS IN

Hamburg has a history and identity tied inextricably to the sea, so there's little wonder that the destination is a clear winner with cruisers. Germany's second-largest city and biggest port has been a major player in maritime terms since its role in the Hanseatic League back in the Middle Ages, and its port area remains the place to be if you want to really get a feel for the place. From the eccentric to the extravagant, Hamburg promises it all in the confines of its diverse neighbourhoods. Here's what to see in your 36 hours there.

HAMBURG

DON'T MISS

As you might expect from the second busiest port in Europe and a place with maritime links that have stood strong for centuries, much of what there is to do in Hamburg is centred around the water.

The view from it is as impressive as that of it, with an observation deck and excellent café featured in the Plaza on the top floor.

The HafenCity waterside quarter has only been around a decade but in that time, it has become a hub of activity for tourists and locals alike. A combination of heritage buildings and cutting-edge architecture jostles for space along the edge of the Elbe, and it's from here you'll depart on Hanseatic tours of the city by boat. If you only do one thing in HafenCity, aside from sample a fischbrötchen (more on that later), make it a visit to the Elbphilharmonie. Hamburg's tallest building is topped with thousands of curved reflective windows that imitate the waves and shimmer in the sunlight. The view from it is as impressive as that of it, with an observation deck and excellent café featured in the Plaza on the top floor. Inside, the Great Concert Hall is considered one of the most acoustically advanced venues ever built and the Elbphilharmonie Orchestra mustn't be missed if the timings are right for your visit.

The HafenCity
waterside quarter

Encompassed within the boundaries of HafenCity is Hamburg's Speicherstadt, or the 'City of Warehouses'. With gabled red-brick facades and criss-crossed canals, the Speicherstadt is the most photogenic part of town, particularly when lit up at night, and it's where you'll find some of Hamburg's best museums. Miniatur Wunderland fills an entire warehouse with the largest model railway in the world and it's a must for model train fans or anyone visiting Hamburg with kids. Be sure to watch the technicians at work as they continue to grow the exhibit; it's set to expand right through to 2028, with new parts of the world added all the time.

Equally fascinating and only a short walk away from Miniatur Wunderland is the International Maritime Museum, distinguishable by the huge propeller that sits out front. All kinds of curiosities reside inside, from letters written by Admiral Nelson to a 3,000-year-old canoe discovered in Hamburg harbour. It's a must for any keen cruiser.

A little further along the river is the Elbe Tunnel. Cruise ships sail from the opposite side of the water to the city centre and this epic feat of engineering connects the two from 24-metres below surface level. When it opened in 1911, the 426m tunnel was unlike anything ever seen before and its vintage signage, wrought iron staircase and maritime motifs alone are worth the trip.

TUCK IN...

While the Reeperbahn might be mentioned in the guide books as a highlight of the city, we found it to err on the wrong side of seedy. Instead, stop just short of the area at the Spielbudenplatz of St Pauli. An urban beer garden in summer and Winterdeck with mulled wine and hot cocktails in winter, street food sessions here are a highlight of short breaks in Hamburg at any time of year. Food trucks roll in under various guises, from farmers markets to currywurst-heavy beer festivals and even vegan street food parties.

Hamburg has enough signature dishes to see you through a whole day of dining.

Hamburg has enough signature dishes to see you through a whole day of dining. Start your morning with a fronzbrötchen at Klein Konditorei. Found nowhere but Hamburg and translating simply as 'French roll', the doughy buns see flaky pastry wrapped around a divine concoction of sugar, butter and cinnamon. They won't help your waistline, but they'll warm your heart.

Walking along the waterfront, it quickly becomes apparent that there is only one dish taking pride of place on the menu; fischbrötchen are found everywhere in Hamburg but they taste best by the river, where kiosks called fischbrötchenbude serve various versions of pickled, fried and smoked fish in a crusty roll. Another place to get your fill is Hamburg Fish Market, an institution since 1703 and a place where the night owls and early birds meet at 5am for fish sandwiches as the sun rises over the Elbe. Don't worry if you're less keen on a dawn start, they're open until 9.30am.

DRINK UP...

One of the most memorable drinks you'll have in Hamburg follows one of the most memorable experiences. Dialogue in the Dark is an experiential exhibition that sees visitors led by blind guides in absolute darkness, negotiating the everyday situations anyone with 20/20 vision takes for granted, like crossing a busy road or walking in the park. You can't help but feel affected after the experience, which has now been rolled out from its original Hamburg location to 41 countries around the world, and drinks at the Dark Bar afterwards are a great place to discuss it.

Anyone with a penchant for gin and a fancy for something a bit special should pay a visit to Clockers Bar. It isn't easy to come by – you'll find nothing more than a door marked with the number 27 – but the out-there bar inside is seriously cool, with moss on the walls and a tree spreading its branches across the bar. Clockers produces its own gin and has come to be known as one of Hamburg's best bars.

Find the perfect restaurant in the middle of nowhere.

If anything sums up the freedom of a Cunard voyage, it's the array of places to eat. From healthy to hearty and from light bites to haute cuisine, often what's on offer reflects where you are in the world as the chefs use fresh local ingredients. In addition to the main dining rooms, there are an array of alternative dining experiences on offer, allowing guests to fully experience the fantastic choice and variety created by Cunard's talented chefs.

Steakhouse at The Verandah.

Steakhouse at The Verandah takes influence from both sides of the Atlantic. Cunard's chefs have curated a menu showcasing prime USDA grain finished New York strip steak, Maine lobster, and Alaskan king crab, alongside dishes celebrating British provenance such as Scotch grass-fed dry-aged beef and Salt Marsh lamb rack.*

Golden Lion.

For an atmospheric setting which is slightly more relaxed and informal, the ever-popular Golden Lion Pub welcomes you with traditional gastro-pub fare. You'll find great beers, live sport, pub games and a delicious menu.

Tempting dishes include, Tandoori Spiced Dorset Lamb Shank, 6oz 28-Day Aged Prime Angus Beef Burger with Crispy Pulled Brisket, and a delicious sharing platter of Lobster Scampi, Salt and Pepper Squid, Sole Goujons and Scotch Eggs.

Afternoon Tea.

If anything perfectly encapsulates Cunard's service and sense of occasion, it is the prized daily ritual: Afternoon Tea, served by white-gloved waiters as the orchestra provides a melodic backdrop. For an especially decadent afternoon treat, Cunard's Champagne Afternoon Tea offers savoury bites and delightful individual desserts, all accompanied by a glass of Laurent-Perrier champagne*.

* Steakhouse at The Verandah and Champagne Afternoon Tea are subject to a modest supplement.

CRUISE INTO CHRISTMAS

Time at sea with all the trimmings is the perfect antidote to the usual family feuds and apocalyptic high street scenes that Christmas tends to bring back home. There's still time to grab a deal if a cruise is on your Christmas list for 2019. Planning further ahead? Join Santa at sea on an exotic trip to toastier climes in 2020 or embark on a mini-cruise that'll ease you into the festivities effortlessly.

WESTERN EUROPE

Amsterdam's charm is only emphasised by the Christmas lights that sparkle in its canals come winter. Sailing from Southampton over a weekend in mid-December, before the real festive madness goes up a notch, the itinerary sees you spend the night in Europe's mini-break capital of cool. Stock up on Delft souvenirs for presents and tuck into hot waffles in Dam square. You could even head for the ice rink at Museumplein's Ice Village, if you're feeling particularly nimble.

BRUGES SHORT BREAK

Have a very Cunard Christmas as Queen Victoria invites you to wind down ahead of the big day on a sailing to Bruges from Southampton. Picture the scene – you head for the ship on Friday morning, knowing that you've got all the festivities to look forward to when you're home and perhaps even with no work until next year. Bruges is a real charmer; the Grote Markt could have come straight from a Christmas card and Belgian chocolate beats any you'll find in a selection box.

The opportunity to fly straight to the sun while everyone at home shivers on a last-minute trudge along the high-street is hard to pass up. Shrug off your coat and slip on your swimwear on Celebrity Reflection's 9-night Western Caribbean itinerary. The roundtrip sailing from Fort Lauderdale blazes a trail to the region's hottest islands and locales, with San Juan, St. Thomas and St. Maarten readying the rum and reggae as another beach day comes into view. With Christmas Day spent at sea, breakfast on the balcony in your new Christmas pyjamas is a given.

The festivities have never looked so much FUN as they do on a family cruise to the Caribbean over Christmas. Harmony of the Seas embarks on a seven-night sailing from Port Canaveral, just a stone's throw from Orlando's incredible theme parks and the Kennedy Space Centre. There's an action-packed visit to the all-new Perfect Day at CocoCay, Royal Caribbean's private island resort, where chills and thrills come in equal measure. You'll wake in Mexico's Costa Maya on Christmas morning and instead of spending Boxing Day battling your way through the sales, you could be diving the coral reef coastline off Roatán. There's just enough time for toes in the sand and tacos for lunch at Cozumel before you head home.

SHORT BREAK

If you fancy a short break but you've ticked the classic Christmas market destinations off already, Fred Olsen's five-night sojourns from Southampton to two of France's favourite ports of call are a great alternative. Rouen is the picturesque port city on the Seine that inspired many a Monet masterpiece, but its proximity to Paris – and the fact you have an overnight stay to play with – means the City of Love is always a good idea. Rounding off an itinerary that does French river cruising well is another overnight call, this time into quaint and historic Honfleur.

CARIBBEAN

This Caribbean Christmas cruise isn't your average. Fly into Fort Lauderdale, the 'Venice of America' and a place where malls and marinas jostle for space on the map. Mountainous Montego Bay and famously flamboyant Cartagena are your first ports of call, before a partial transit of the Panama Canal leads to Christmas Eve in Cristobal. You'll wake up on Christmas morning in Limon, a slice of Costa Rican paradise with pristine beaches and sprawling banana plantations. Grand Cayman is your final pristine port of call, with unmissable dive sites and rum on tap to fuel the journey home.

A Christmas cruise to the Canaries with Cunard promises winter sun with added festive spirit. Sail from Southampton and spend a little time winding down from the Christmas rush as Queen Victoria takes your favourite festive traditions to the seas with everything from carols around the tree to icing-sugar scattered gingerbread towns. SACHERTORTE

It's best indulged upon in the opulence of a Viennese coffeehouse, the sounds of a Strauss waltz in the air, but Austria's delectable signature dessert is to die for anytime, anywhere.

DIRECTIONS

- Preheat the oven to 190c.
