WELCOME

Winter has officially arrived and with the turning back of the clocks comes the turning of our attention to holidays. We've got winter sun on our Christmas lists and with just six months to go until she arrives, Iona on our minds. There are also exciting plans to be hatched for further ahead, with new 2021-22 cruise collections from P&O Cruises and Cunard igniting our sense of adventure again.

This edition of Into The Blue shines a light on Norway, a natural beauty with 1300 nautical miles of coastline to explore and something for everyone on its itineraries. We've got 28 reasons why the country should feature in your holiday plans and we're also spending 36 hours in Oslo, arguably the coolest of all Scandinavian capitals.

You can also enjoy a chat with new Royal Caribbean International ambassador, Harry McNulty, go 'where the wild things are' in search of animal encounters, and embark on an indulgent girls' weekend away with Cunard.

With our new tailor-made holiday team settled in and selling, we're also sharing some of our favourite Cruise & Stay holidays inside. There's barely a place on earth our team can't take you, so do get in touch if you're keen to extend your next cruise with a hotel stay, land tour and more.

I hope you enjoy reading.

Yours sincerely

CÁDIZ

Cádiz is an anomaly. Sure, it's historic and curated in the way you expect an Andalusian city to be, all sun-warmed oyster stone, gazed upon with a mouthful of paper-thin jamón ibérico as you do when you're on holiday around these parts. But the local feel runs deep. It means the heart-wrenching flamenco plays to a raucous crowd of regulars. And that the plates of fried fish, devoured with your toes in the sand at a beachfront chiringuito, are dished up the same way they've been dished up to locals on a Friday night since the day dot. There's endless appeal in authenticity and Cádiz has it in spades.

ISLAND ARRIVAL

Introducing Perfect Day at Lelepa, the second private island for Royal Caribbean and the first carbon-neutral cruise destination in the world. Located in Vanuatu in the South Pacific, the new destination looks a lot like paradise to us.

Three places.... TO SEE THE WORLD IN BLOOM

KEUKENHOF

With 7 million bulbs planted each year at Keukenhof, it's one of the largest flower gardens in the world. A popular excursion from Amsterdam, it opens for just seven weeks between 21 March and 10 May 2020.

MADEIRA

The 'Garden Isle' will come alive with colour once again from 30 April to 24 May 2020, when the Flower Festival returns to Funchal to celebrate the arrival of springtime.

KYOTO

Japan's pink cherry blossoms, commonly called sakura, are at their peak from late-March to mid-April each year. Hanami, the act of admiring the symbolic blooms, is a national institution and a joy to watch.

ROCKY MOUNTAINEER

All aboard... THE ROCKY MOUNTAINEER

FOMO or 'fear of missing out' has had its day. We're all about taking it slow on long, lazy itineraries incorporating classic train journeys spanning days at a time, like Rocky Mountaineer's 'Journey Through The Clouds'. Turn to page 87 for more.

Switching on for... SEVEN WORLDS, ONE PLANET

Sunday at 6:15pm on BBC One

The nation's environmental hero is back on BBC One with a new series. With the legendary Sir David Attenborough at the helm and a soundtrack by Hans Zimmer, it promises to be perfect viewing for a Sunday night.

Hot off the press... TWAS THE NIGHTSHIFT BEFORE CHRISTMAS (ADAM KAY)

(Picador, £9.99)

More dark anecdotes of life on the ward from medic and comedian Kay, author of the multi-award-winning This Is Going To Hurt.

Five reasons to visit... NEW YORK IN WINTER

The holiday windows

Winter wonderlands in the windows of stores such as Saks Fifth Avenue, Tiffany & Co. and Macy's are enough of a spectacle to warrant their own tours.

Seasonal shopping

From the Union Square and Bryant Park Christmas markets to January sales that are a direct hit on your credit card, nowhere does retail therapy better.

Food, glorious food

Warm honey-roasted pecans from a street cart, gooey pizza hot from the oven at Lombardi's, stodgy mac 'n cheese and spicy buffalo wings; all in the name of keeping warm.

Ice skating

Take a spin on one of the city's temporary ice rinks, all of which come with a killer view. The Wollman Rink in Central Park is a favourite, but perfecting your pirouette beneath the Rockefeller Tree is real bucket list stuff.

The Christmas classics

Watch the Rockettes high-kick their way through the Radio City Christmas Spectacular or lose yourself in a sea of tulle and étendres at a performance of The Nutcracker by the New York City Ballet.

28 REASONS TO VISIT NORWAY NEXT

Loen Sky lift

There are countless reasons why Norway is wasted on your wishlist. From the North Cape to the Northern Lights, the whales to the waterfalls and fjords, even a local cheese that divides opinion more than Marmite, here are 28 reasons the shining star of Scandinavia should finally make it onto your itinerary in 2020.

LOEN SKYLIFT

With a head for heights and a thirst for adventure, the Loen Skylift will take you 1011m from the Nordfjord to the top of Mount Hoven.

FLÅM RAILWAY

All aboard for a train ride described as one of the world's most beautiful. Take the scenic route from Aurlandsfjord to the high mountains at Myrdal.

NORTHERN LIGHTS

From early September to late May, the skies over Norway dance with shades of purple, green, red and gold. It's on your bucket list, isn't it?

THE SEVEN SISTERS

Look up from the deck of your ship as you cruise the Geirangerfjord and there, just to left of fairytale farm Knivsflå, sit seven icy streams plummeting into the inky waters below.

BRIKSDAL GLACIER

Nestled in the Jostedaalsbreen National Park is a stop-you-in-your-tracks section of Europe's largest ancient glacier, its ever-changing ice meaning it'll never look quite the same again as it does right now.

PULPIT ROCK

This splintered rock suspended above the Lysefjord serves up views worth every footstep of the hike it takes to reach it. Weary legs will be happy to hear of a boat trip alternative.

SOGNEFJORD

They call it the 'King of the Fjords'. The longest and deepest, with navy waters and emerald green slopes giving way to monumental mountains that reach 5,570ft into the sky.

NAEROYFJORD

This magical arm of the Sognefjord is considered by some to be the most spectacular of all Norwegian fjords. More importantly, it inspired Disney classic, Frozen. Do you want to build a snowman?

MIDNIGHT SUN

There's something mythical about those months when the sun never quite sets over Norway, dropping low on the horizon but never quite disappearing between the end of April and mid-August, depending where you are.

THE BIRDLIFE

Each spring and autumn brings migratory birds in their thousands, making Norway's coast a mecca for avid birders with binoculars peeled for white-tailed eagles above and puffins within touching distance.

WHALE WATCHING

...from the deck of your ship or the seat of a kayak.

GEIRANGERFJORD

Mother Nature outdid herself when she sliced through the heart of sky-reaching rock to create the mountain-backed Geirangerfjord.

BERGEN

Once the home of the Hanseatic Trading Empire. Today Bergen is the gateway to the fjords, though the paintbox houses of Byrggen remain as bright.

ALESUND

With its fairytale turrets and pastel facades, some might say Art Deco Alesund is Norway's most striking city.

SEAFOOD

Norwegian seafood is the second most exported in the world, so you've probably tasted it already. But it tastes better here...

KING CRAB SAFARIS

From fishing holes carved in the ice of a frozen fjord, monster crabs spanning 5ft or more are hauled in their catch pots in the name of protecting the delicate Norwegian ecosystem.

ALLEMANNSRETT

Allemannsrett or 'all man's right' is an ancient bylaw affording anyone access to uncultivated land across Norway. And that means mind-blowing hikes straight from your ship.

NORTH CAPE

If the northernmost point on European mainland feels a little like the end of the world, it's because a location high above the Arctic Circle means it very nearly is.

KAYAKING

Take a seat and watch the fjords rise around you like giants.

BRUNOST

Think savoury-sweet, dulce de leche meets Cathedral City. You'll either love it or hate it, but you have to try it.

THE ARCTIC CATHEDRAL

Glowing under the midnight sun or set beneath the light show of the aurora borealis, the shard-like structure of Tromsø's Arctic Cathedral is soul-stirring.

VIKINGS

They paved the way for a maritime history that put Norway on the map. Hear their story at Oslo's Viking Ship Museum.

SNOW

On mountain tops, beneath your feet and the rails of sleds, feeding into glaciers in spring and dusting fishing villages like sugar in winter.

Discover Norway

The Norwegian fjords encompass a mesmerising natural wonderland, ready-made for smaller ships to explore. Sheer cliffs plunge in glassy water as mountains preside over an amphitheatre of drama. Lush valleys ascend into steep forest. A host of iconic fjords includes the UNESCO-listed Geirangerfjord and Nærøfjord.

Beyond these striking waterways, the like of Briksdal Glacier and the Flam railway lie, set within an idyllic countryside decorated with delightful towns and villages. Meanwhile, ancient attraction-packed cities display thousands of years of history with pride. Whether visiting for the first time – perhaps on a 5 night taster cruise – or the umpteenth, cruising with Fred. Olsen is surely the ultimate way to experience this breath-taking region.

Choose from over 20 cruises discovering Norway in 2020/21.

WHERE THE WILD THINGS ARE

Lions and tigers and bears, oh my! Cruising may be better associated with the deepest blue but there's a whole wide world and its wildlife out there for the exploring. Go where the wild things are on itineraries designed to put flora and fauna front and centre.

Magellanic penguins

Chilean Fjords

SOUTH AMERICA

From the Chilean Fjords to the Falkland Islands, cruising Cape Horn gives rise to scenery that is just about as spectacular as it comes. It's barely surprising then that you can expect some pretty special wildlife sightings while you're there. Hefty walruses grunt and groan making their presence known in Ushuaia's Parque Nacional Tierra del Fuego, while scuttling rockhoppers and timid Magellanic penguins well outnumber their human counterparts in the Falklands, not to mention majestic king penguins lording over the crowd. Throw in some of the best birdlife anywhere on earth and South America's menagerie status is complete.

Svalbard

SVALBARD

Svalbard is scattered somewhere between the Norwegian mainland and the North Pole, an icy haven for everything from the timid Arctic fox to seabirds in their thousands. There are walrus and reindeer too, but truth be told, you come to Svalbard to see the King of the Arctic. The polar bear is one of nature's most predatory beasts, a sight to behold as it prowls Svalbard's sub-zero surroundings from a drift ice platform. You won't find endless diversity of species here but those that do call the exceptional eco-system home will deliver some of the most memorable wildlife watching experiences you'll ever have.

ALASKA

Alaska's wildlife is abundant, from the humpback whales breaching outside your balcony to the bears that skulk along the soil on dry land in a place better known as The Last Frontier. Alaska's untamed wilderness even has its very own Big Five: bears, moose, caribou, wolves and the Dall sheep. Whether you're looking up at a bald eagle soaring overhead or down at salmon attempting the journey upriver - each one a prospective lunch for some of the tens of thousands of black and brown bears that call Alaska home, all creatures great and small are present and accounted for.

GALAPAGOS ISLANDS

The living laboratory that inspired Charles Darwin's 'Theory of Evolution' may have soared in popularity in recent years, but stringent rules and regulations governing access to the archipelago mean it remains a hotbed for protected species found nowhere else on earth. Marine iguanas with no fear of the human race are happy to amble alongside you on hikes and Pacific green turtles compete with sea lions for your attention in the underwater theatre that surrounds the islands. When UN Patron of the Wilderness, Ben Fogle embarked on a Galapagos Islands adventure recently, he described it as an experience his family would never forget.

HAPPY FAMILIES ON IONA

Iona is set to be the ship of the summer, joining the P&O Cruises fleet in May 2020 following years of anticipation. Having been designed to elevate everything you know and love about P&O Cruises, while introducing some new, exclusive features never seen before in the fleet or on any other ship in the world, she promises to be one of a kind. And so, for the coming months, we'll be shining a spotlight on Iona. Adventurous, delicious, fun, Iona. First up, it's all about family.

Splash Zone

Scubas

Surfers

Splashers

FAMILY FUN WITH A CAPITAL F

If there is one thing we've established about Iona, it's that the biggest ship in the P&O Cruises fleet will be the most family-friendly so far. We all know that happy kids make for happy parents and a happy holiday all-round. Iona will deliver the most fun-packed family facilities ever seen on a P&O Cruises ship, taking things up a notch with tons of new additions to the already impressive kids' facilities found on its fleetmates.

The Reef will return with free on-board activities for children aged six months to 12 years. Anyone who has already holidayed with P&O Cruises as a family can vouch that the Reef Rangers are heaven sent when it comes to keeping kids of all ages not just occupied but excited to head back each day. Along with the usual Nursery, Splashers, Surfers and Scubas clubs, Iona will also introduce Scene, an on-board hangout for teens aged 13 to 17. Located on Deck 6, separate from the rest of the kid's club facilities, chilled-out Scene will be nirvana for gamers, with interactive gaming tables and the latest technology. And when there are no teens on board? Say hello to Iona's newest adult-only venue.

That said, P&O Cruises have also acknowledged that family holidays are all about finally getting to spend some precious time together. The Club House will be Iona's happy space, with an indoor/outdoor location that's all about getting some fresh air and afternoons of games and entertainment with a focus on getting the whole family involved. Spa days are no longer reserved for the grown-ups with a new spa area for teenagers and a menu full of age-appropriate treatments.

When it comes to cabins designed with comfort for families in mind, P&O Cruises have broken the mould.

A four-screen cinema complex known as Ocean Studios will bring the excitement of Saturday night at the movies to the seas. Screenings will vary from action-packed blockbusters to family-friendly classics, all with plenty of popcorn, ice cream and snacks, naturally. Finally, don't forget to look up; Iona's standout spaces, the Grand Atrium and the epic SkyDome, will thrill guests of all ages with surprise pop-up aerial and circus performances when they least expect it.

When it comes to cabins designed with comfort for families in mind, P&O Cruises have broken the mould. There will be two special family suites at the very front of the ship, plus kid-friendly cabins designed to maximise space by day and create more flexible sleeping arrangements at night. All balcony cabins will have interconnecting doors and all four berth cabins will have either one upper berth and one sofa bed or a double sofa bed, as opposed to the usual two uppers seen on other ships. Handily, there'll be no need to pack a case full of adapters for all those iPads and everything else that travelling with toddlers and teens in tow means; all Iona's cabins will have USB charging ports right by the bed.

FOR THE PICKY EATERS & THE 'EYES BIGGER THAN YOUR BELLY'

Mums and dads know that the art of dining out with kids is best described as abstract. There are the picky eaters and the never fulls, the can't sit stills and the can't wait to get back to their mates. Iona has all the above covered with more flexibility for family dining, plus a combination of all-new restaurant concepts and much-loved signature venues that'll give new meaning to the word 'choice'.

Even the faddiest appetites are in for a treat at The Quays, a whole new multi-venue dining concept for P&O Cruises that is all about fun, flexible, family-friendly mealtimes. Like the street food markets whipping up a culinary storm in capital cities, The Quays will be a hive of activity as a place for dining, drinks and watching the world go by. There'll be all-American soul food at The Boardwalk Diner, take-away Asian-inspired fare at Fusion and good old British fish and chips at Hook, Line and Vinegar. The Quays will extend onto the Promenade Deck too, so meals with a view are on the menu. If al fresco dining and global cuisine is your thing, look out for Taste 360 too; the on-deck dining experience is brand-new for Iona, created in partnership with its new Food Heroes from around the world.

When it comes to dining in the main restaurants, Pearl, Coral, Aqua and Opal, Iona will introduce some more relaxed approaches intended to make the whole experience a little more laidback. Freedom dining in all main dining rooms means that, while you'll still enjoy a real sense of occasion each evening, you can enjoy far more flexibility in terms of having to get the gang dressed for dinner and being back at the cabin for early bedtimes.

Speaking of getting dressed for dinner, Iona's itineraries in the Arendelle-esque Norwegian Fjords are enough to have the best of us reaching for our Queen Elsa outfits. While fancy dress isn't allowed for adults, kids are free to release their inner Elsa, Anna, Olaf and whoever else at dinner. It's also worth noting that children under 17 aren't required to follow the dress code on Iona's formal nights.

When it comes to drinks, families on Iona won't go thirsty. The Children's drinks package includes unlimited soft drinks, selected juices and primo hot chocolates and costs just £7.95 per child, per day. Alternatively, if you purchase the Ultimate Drinks Package and are travelling with children aged 16 and under, their drinks are included for free.

Lastly, no family holiday is complete without the good stuff like ice cream and cake. Iona's sweet treats and pick-me-ups range include scoops of gelato in exclusive flavours at Gelateria and ice cream at Sundaes. And in Vistas Café Bar in the Grand Atrium, master pâtissier Eric Lanlard's cakes and pastries are served with a side of aerial circus performance to add to the wow-factor, as if they weren't delicious enough.

The Quays will be a hive of activity as a place for dining, drinks and watching the world go by.

Family zip wire

Family hike

Open-top buggy

MAKE MORE MEMORIES

Iona will spend her first season sailing to destinations in Norway, Spain, Portugal and the Canary Islands over the course of the year, so whether you're a family of sunseekers or adventurers, there's fun on the horizon.

Family-friendly shore excursions will open their eyes – and maybe even yours – to new cultures and cuisines, at the same time serving up all the fun you could want for on cable cars, zip-wires, waterslides and all those other adrenaline-heavy activities that keep the kids coming back for more.

Madeira is a real fan favourite for cruisers and the island's experiences are as varied as they come. One minute you can be hurtling down the hill in a wicker sled, the next you're sampling sweet Madeira wine in a rustic family wine lodge in Funchal. Likewise, Cádiz is equal parts beachy paradise and adventure playground. The Entre Ramas Adventure Park is just the place for monkeying around on zip-wires, rope bridges and treetop swings that'd leave Tarzan weak at the knees.

Make a splash at Gran Canaria's Aqualand Maspalomas Water Park and whip up a treat in Lisbon, home to hot, flaky, creamy egg custards called pasteis de nata. The world has the Catholic monks of Jerónimos Monastery to thank for introducing us to the cinnamon-sprinkled confections that have become Lisbon's greatest gastronomic gift.

Tear through country roads to Jostedalbreen National Park in an open-top buggy, eyes peeled for the white and blue of the Briksdal Glacier.

And as for Norway, it's time to blow off the cobwebs in the great outdoors. Shake off the monotony of work, homework and housework, take a deep breath to fill your lungs with fresh mountain air and prepare to experience wonders of the wild like epic glaciers, crashing waterfalls, vast pine forests and inky blue fjords. Tear through country roads to Jostedalbreen National Park in an open-top buggy, eyes peeled for the white and blue of the Briksdal Glacier. Find yourself dwarfed by the mountainsides of the Geirangerfjord as your kayak glides silently through the glassy waters. Concoct stories on the way life is on tiny farms that cling to the hillsides and listen for the thundering sounds of the Seven Sisters waterfall.

If there were ever a destination with something for everyone, it's Norway. Peaceful villages like Alesund and Hellesyt are an insightful lesson on local life, while the likes of Olden and Bergen thrill with stories of Vikings and the gentlemanly Hanseatic League. And it isn't all fjords and farms; there are beaches too. Sola Beach is Stavanger's Riviera, a place where you're as likely to see windsurfers whipping across the horizon as you are fishing boats bringing in the catch of the day. Because there's more to a family holiday than just buckets and spades.

MEET HARRY MCNULTY: SHORE EXPLORER

When Royal Caribbean announced the ultimate apprenticeship (with extra emphasis on the ship), tens of thousands of people battled it out to experience everything the adrenaline-fuelled cruise line has to offer over three weeks of unfathomable fun. Harry McNulty reigned supreme and our editor Rebecca Martin caught up with the Instagram star, better known to his 10,500 followers as @SaltyNuts, when he returned.

HARRY, HOWZIT!

Thanks for making time to chat to us amidst a busy travel and rugby schedule.

A pretty action-packed Instagram suggests that you've barely stopped since becoming Royal Caribbean's 'Shore Explorer' back in July. The experience is up there in the dream jobs category and you beat off competition from over 37,000 hopefuls to win 'the world's best apprenticeship'; how did you find it?

It was an amazing experience that I still find hard to describe. As I've said before, I was delighted to be nominated for the top 20 with so many great entries, so to win was crazy! The trip flew by and I had such a great time in each destination. Every port of call was completely different and offered so many amazing experiences – and the highs really were high! I did everything from the highest waterslide in North America at Perfect Day at CocoCay (Royal Caribbean's private island), to a helicopter ride over a glacier in Alaska. A trip I'll never forget, that's for sure.

Let's rewind to the beginning when you caught the travel bug as a kid; what sparked your love for adventure?

I grew up travelling with my family which started me off on that track, and I also watched Nat Geo and the Discovery channel all the time! I loved learning about the animals and the people associated with each country. Steve Irwin was, and still is, an idol of mine. So basically I'm now just a bigger version of my child self!

Navigator of the Seas was your first cruise and you sampled some of the best excursions on earth as Royal Caribbean's 'Shore Explorer'. How did your perception of cruising change?

People often think that cruises are not for young people, but I would dispute that immediately. When I boarded Navigator of the Seas, I was blown away by the amount there is to do for people of all ages and really surprised by how full the schedule was; one night there was laser tag and the next night that same room was an ice skating rink, can you believe it? I loved The Blaster, which is the longest waterslide at sea, and then you've got theatre shows, outdoor movies, a night club, rooftop cocktail bars, the list goes on! There was so much to do and it really was a lot of fun.

You started your trip in Miami, the sun-soaked starting point of many a Caribbean cruise itinerary. Tell us how we should spend a day there before our next cruise?

Wake up for sunrise and go down to South Beach to watch the sky fill with stunning colours. You'll also be able to take in the amazing Art Deco buildings that fill the streets. If you can, have a swim and then head to Under the Mango Tree for breakfast.

Around lunch, head to Wynwood walls and enjoy all the amazing art, cafés, restaurants and hip bars. From there, head to Little Havana and try some of the staples; Café Con Leche, a Cuban sandwich, Cuban cigar, and of course a Mojito. I guarantee you'll feel transported straight to the heart of Cuba. Be sure to enjoy some live music and dancing!

LISBON

Cruising is unique in the way it allows people to see so many destinations in such a short space of time but six totally unique countries in a little over three weeks is no mean feat! How did you make the most of your time in each place and how do you plan your travels to make sure you see as much as possible?

I had a great team behind me who helped to organise and book my shore excursions in each destination. It worked out to be roughly one excursion per day; as they were mostly in the morning, it gave me the opportunity to still go on an adventure on my own. For me, that was the perfect way to travel because I saw and experienced so much, but I also had the freedom to try and find my own experiences.

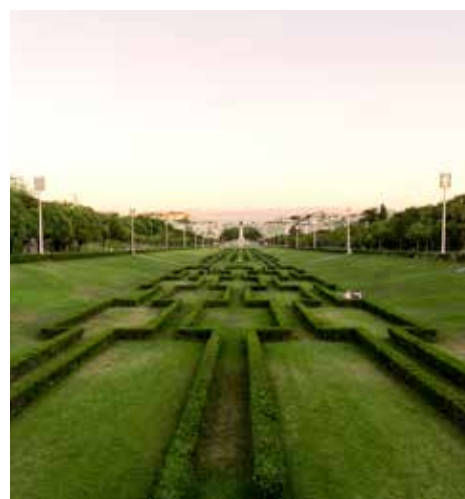

When planning I try and research where I will be based, and then what the area has to offer. From there, I can decide on the best way to get around and plan my route.

As a rugby player, eating well and keeping fit goes with the territory. How did you find the gym on Navigator of the Seas and how do you fit in exercise when travelling?

The gym was great and actually a beneficial change for me on my trip. My goal was to exercise every other day so I was doing 20-30 minute body weight workouts in my room. To have access to a fully-fledged gym with all the bells and whistles was fantastic, and allowed me to have a session that I would do on a daily basis with rugby.

You became a fledgling Samurai in Kyoto, took a helicopter flight over glaciers in Alaska, embarked on a desert safari in Dubai and more. Which experience stood out as your most memorable?

I have to say the helicopter ride to the top of a glacier in Alaska to do dog sledding was incredible. We had blue skies and the sun was shining, which is not that common in that part of the world. I also had the opportunity to drive the sled and then meet all the huskies after! All of the activities I did in Juneau (Alaska) were amazing – I also experienced a sea plane glacier tour, zip lining and axe throwing!

When you visit a destination, you delve right into it, going beneath the surface by trying local dishes and getting to know the people. Why do you think it's so important to travel like this?

At the end of the day, it's the locals who make the destination. I make meeting them a big part of my experience and always find myself having a much better time when I get to learn new ways of life. It's a nice way to get out your comfort zone.

You live in Dublin, another popular cruise port. Can you give us some secret tips for seeing the city like a local?

Head to the area with Fade Street, South William Street and Georges Street, where you'll find a lot of really amazing food spots, local filled bars, antique shops and Georges Arcade Market. Spend some time at The Bernard Shaw bar; it's a really hip place that has an amazing food yard attached – Eat Yard. One of my favourite spots to go!

Dublin is also ideal for sport, so depending on the season head to a GAA, rugby or soccer match, either in Croke Park or the Aviva Stadium.

You've spoken in the past about your ambition to eventually combine photography and video with conservation to help 'educate and inspire change'. What steps do you take to be a more environmentally conscious traveller?

I aim to do everything I can when I'm home to be environmentally friendly, to try and offset some of the impact I have when I'm travelling. Public transport is much more efficient, so it's great to use that when in a new destination. I bring reusable straws and cutlery with me to try and avoid using plastic and have also started using Raw Elements sun screen which is skin-safe and reef-safe. It's a product that most people don't think much about, but the chemicals in common sunscreen is harmful to you and the waters you enjoy.

Which destination sits right at the top of your wish list for the next few years?

Tonga, to swim with humpback whales, and also Mount Kilimanjaro.

Finally, what won't you leave for the airport without?

A 5-plug extension cord! Even though, for the first time in years, I forgot it for my Shore Explorer trip!! It allows me to bring just one adapter and have access to all my local plugs, and a lot of hotels only seem to have two plug sockets as well. It definitely makes life a little easier.

Private Chengdu Highlights Panda Experience

This private day tour puts you closer to Chengdu's cutest inhabitant, the giant panda. You'll arrive at Chengdu Panda Base for feeding time, before calling to see baby pandas at the Chengdu Research Base of Giant Panda Breeding. After lunch, you'll tour the nearby alleys to the Panda Post, the only postal service in the world with a giant panda theme. Send postcards home, stamped with the giant panda motif, then head over to Chunxi Road for a photo call with artist Lawrence Argent's 45ft-tall panda structure.

THE grown-up girls' GETAWAY

Girls just want to have fun. And a little luxury. Perhaps a couple of cocktails and a spot of shopping. Fortunately, a short break on Cunard's Queen Mary 2 promises all that and more. Rebecca Martin sailed from Hamburg to sample high life and high tea on a new, altogether more grown-up version of the classic girls' getaway.

Queen Mary 2

There's a transitional quality to weekend getaways with the girls. We start young in UK cities chosen for their propensity to party and cheap-as-chips hotels. Next comes the mini break abroad, a bit of sun and a smattering of cultural sights as obligatory as Aperol when it comes to the prerequisites of a good trip. Adulthood proper sees a gradual drop in numbers, marriage and kids clawing away at the time and money once reserved for afternoon tea and spa days. And then we arrive here; all grown up and desperately seeking somewhere new to convene on that weekend once a year when the stars align and you're all free at the same time. Which is exactly how a friend and I came to be wheeling our cases onto the Queen Mary 2; a day in Hamburg behind us and two frivolous nights at sea ahead.

While the ferry over to Amsterdam is a stalwart of the girl's weekend away, a full-on mini cruise with all the bells and whistles always felt a little indulgent. Look at the costs involved and you quickly realise that it's anything but; Cunard's full-board short break to Hamburg with flights comes in well under £300, a figure that'd barely cover flights and accommodation for a city break, never mind the food bill. Add a drinks package and you'll save money there too, meaning more Sauvignon Blanc for your buck and enough spare change left over for 'sorry I left you, here's a sweetener' presents for the kids.

There's a regal air aboard the Cunard flagship that leaves you feeling a little Downton Abbey, particularly when you're tucking into finger sandwiches and sipping Earl Grey in the Queens Room before you've even left port. That said, Queen Mary 2 is a lady that shows no sign of aging. Her interiors are as sophisticated as any institution of the London hotel scene, all Art Deco accents and touchy-feely panels of engraved bronze. Rails of Barbour, Mulberry and Ralph Lauren merchandise meant that the Mayfair Shops were as dangerous to our credit cards as any spree in the area after which they are named.

Hamburg at sunset

Similarly, the Canyon Ranch Spa Club is akin to the most esteemed luxury retreats hidden away in Kensington, though the cost of our passes to its Aqua Therapy Centre paled in comparison at just $40 a day. Better still, book a treatment and access to the facilities is free.

Late in the afternoon, full of the deliciously guilt-inducing carbs no girl's weekend is complete without, we made our way up on deck to watch as the ship left Hamburg behind. The crowds had gathered to see us off from what seemed like every spare inch of the Elbe's riverbank. Everybody waved, from summer houses, from tiny man made beaches, from the bows of passing pleasure boats; I couldn't help but think how amazing it must be to experience the same sense of occasion as you leave New York on a Transatlantic crossing, the Manhattan skyline in the background and nothing but ocean ahead.

By the time we had bid Hamburg farewell, embarked on a self-guided tour of the ship and called into the Golden Lion for a drink and a game of darts that convinced us the sea must be very choppy indeed (it wasn't), it was time to get ready for dinner. Meals on Cunard ships feel like a sophisticated affair, thanks to cavernous dining rooms reminiscent of those on the ocean liners of old. Tonight's dress code was more casual than tomorrow's black tie, but we were on holiday, so the heels and dresses were on regardless and we toasted the loss of Wi-Fi with a bottle of bubbly that had been generously left in our room for doing just that.

We found that evenings tended to begin with drinks and hors d'oeuvres in the Golden Lion, with many reconvening there again later, after dinner in the Britannia Restaurant. It's surprising how quickly things become routine and this was one we were happy to fall into from the first night on. Dinner itself was fab, a four-course feast that left us wondering how we'd find room for wine later (sore heads confirmed that we did) and the immaculate service and surroundings only served to emphasize the feeling that this was a real treat of a weekend.

The next day, our only sea day, passed by in a haze of breakfast in Kings Court, followed by window shopping in the jewellers, stargazing in the planetarium, then a whistle stop visit to the kennels; there are 24 on the Queen Mary 2 and seeing a crowd of bichon frises jostling for space at the fire hydrant with a bemused husky was a novel way to pass ten minutes in the sea air.

It was cold for June and we decided that the only possible way to warm up was with warm, gooey Godiva chocolate fondue at Sir Samuel's. The special Godiva Afternoon Tea is the ultimate indulgence here, but plates of flaky croissant, strawberries, handmade marshmallow and glutinous melted chocolate did the job just fine. Never ones to leave that last piece of croissant behind, we left feeling a little too full and conscious that we had indeed ruined our lunch with too much sugar.

A visit to the Cunard bookshop saw 'Charles' Grand Adventure' bound for two-year-old Beyer's book collection, joining an adorable plush bulldog decked out in his own QM2 dog coat and some trinkets sourced in Hamburg on the pile of presents filling mum's case.

The gym had impressed us when we called in to take a look the day before, so we did something absolutely unthinkable on a weekend away; we worked out before dinner. Oddly, time seems to pass more slowly at sea and the thought of filling an hour with a leisurely gym session, completely undisturbed by emails or the demands of kids, felt like an utter treat. It's also worth mentioning that the fact Godiva chocolate practically flowed through our veins by this point meant there was a conscience cleansing element that couldn't be denied.

The Grand Lobby

It just so happened that our time in Hamburg had coincided with sale season on some of the best shopping streets in Europe, something that inevitably led to the outfits we had planned for gala night being relegated. Instead, it was an oyster satin halterneck for me and a Seventies-style lamé maxi that would have had the whole of Studio 54 swooning for Lauren. There were heels and shoulder-skimming earrings, plus enough hairspray to sink a ship (excuse the pun), but this is black tie night on the Queen Mary 2; there is no such thing as overdressed.

Dress codes on cruise ships divide opinion but there is something about Cunard's British sensibilities and classic design that makes wearing your most OTT evening dress feel perfectly acceptable, if not expected. And let's be honest, chances to 'don your finery' like the darlings of Downton are in desperately short supply.

We resumed our routine of nibbles and drinks in the Golden Lion, before a show in the Royal Court Theatre and a special gala dinner. From here on in, Queen Mary 2 let her hair down and took her guests with her. Karaoke brought down the house in the Golden Lion, the traditional pub barely containing the crowd. After an encore, the party relocated to G32, QM2's resident nightclub where shapes were thrown and appetites worked up for the midnight buffet.

So, how did a Cunard cruise fare for a girl's weekend? The answer is rather well actually.

Having ticked the usual city break spots off the list over the years, often-overlooked Hamburg was an unexpected success story of great shopping, a lively waterfront with fab food and drink options ranging from farm fresh and local to stodgy German signatures, plus architectural highlights that left us wondering why Berlin and Munich hog the limelight.

Of course, Hamburg was just the aperitif. Queen Mary 2 was the main event and what a host the flagship of the Cunard fleet proved to be. This was to be a grown-up weekend away and Cunard's signature experience was indulgent and extravagant enough to be just that, without the eye-watering price tag you might expect to come with it.

The only thing better than being ladies who lunch is being ladies who lunch with a sea view.

O 36 hours in S | l o

There's a name for the way Oslo makes you feel. The Norwegians call it 'kos' but it's less a word than a state of mind, an instant happiness that comes with feeling safe, warm and good together. Akin to that feeling on a cold morning when everything just feels right with the world, kos lingers in the air when you're cradling hot coffee and cinnamon buns on the cushioned window ledge of a café (those Scandinavians really are the space-saving experts...) It's there when you pause to take in the view of the islands from a bench in the Ekebergparken and when you realise that the world seems to have fallen silent as you watch the sun drop into the Oslofjord before dinner.

But don't be fooled into thinking it's all sheepskin and cosy; Oslo is cool. Admittedly, it's a word thrown around with wild abandon, but the city that feels a lot like the future sure does the term justice with its so-hip-it-hurts locals and electric-powered everything. From electric scooters that are a fast-track to child-like excitement and futuristic Teslas at every stop sign – Oslo is the electric vehicle capital of the world – the European Green Capital 2019 is leading the way with innovations in sustainability and ways to protect the planet. Because why wouldn't you, when your little piece of it looks as good as theirs does? You probably aren't cool enough for Oslo, but that's okay; neither are we.

Don't miss

The light is different in Oslo, white blue and bright in a morning, warming to coral as the sun sets. When it sets. You notice it most in the way it illuminates the Opera House, a hulking angular slice of Italian marble that teeters on the brink of the fjord, merging once the water starts to freeze until it becomes impossible to see the building's edge for the ice.

Biting cold is a fact of life here at times, but Norwegians were never ones to let a little thing like sub-zero temperatures deter them from living their best life. Hike to the top of the Opera House and look towards the Langkaia pier for the fjordside saunas that are a sign of an urban sauna culture taking the city by storm. Ancient and ritualistic, winter ice bathing is nothing new to Norway but KOK Oslo's wood-fired sauna boats are; each eco-friendly hut cruises the inner fjord to combine sightseeing with cold-water swimming.

Further around the waterfront is SALT, a cluster of nomadic wooden pyramids that wouldn't look out of place at Glastonbury. SALT's steam baths vary in size, from the Árdna, one of the biggest in the world, to the Barrel, a smaller sauna built inside a 100-year-old, 7,000-litre aquavit barrel. With food shacks and a bar, art projects, improv theatre and live music, plus daytime activities for the kids, SALT has turned the ritual of sauna into something worth taking up a whole weekend.

Cold water swimming is the tip of the iceberg as far as Norway's obsession with being at one with Mother Nature goes and you needn't strap on your skis to experience it. Friluftsliv is a term first coined by Norwegian playwright Henrik Ibsen in 1859, but the concept it describes – of time spent outdoors, reconnecting with nature – is one that has been intrinsic to the culture here for hundreds of years. Best of all, it's free.

We're going to level with you here; Oslo isn't cheap. Norwegian salaries are some of the highest in the world and sticker shock can hit hard on things like food, drink and activities. That's not to say the city isn't worth every penny and, fortunately, an inclination towards time spent outdoors means plenty of urban parks on the outskirts of the city centre, all of which are within walking distance of the port, open all hours and free to visit.

There's an eeriness to the sculptures in Ekebergparken, where views overlook either the peaceful fjord islands or the space-age Barcode District, depending where you stand. On the other side of town, Vigeland is the largest sculpture park in the world by a single artist. Gustav Vigeland created more than 200 works in bronze, granite and cast iron, charting the circle of life from birth to death in various, often bizarre, manners. The installation celebrated 150 years since Vigeland's birth in 2019 and remains one of Norway's top tourist attractions.

Even with parks excluded, Oslo's proximity to nature is unique. Ferries wait to shuttle you to the smattering of islands off the mainland, where talk inevitably turns to how good life would be lived in your cabin on the water, your morning commute made by boat. On dry land, trams trundle the 20 minutes or so to wildernesses such as Nordmarka. This forest looks just like any other, but a thousand of the trees growing here for the last five years are destined for great things, albeit not for almost a century yet.

Created by Scottish artist Katie Paterson, the Future Library project will unfold between now and 2114, the trees continuing to grow like the roll call of writers set to fill the paper they'll eventually become with text. In 2014, Margaret Atwood became the first author announced for the project but, annoyingly, we'll never get to know what she has written; the acclaimed author has said that wild horses could not drag the story out of her for an early reveal. In the meantime, elements of the Future Library will have a home in the city at the Diechmanske Bjørvika, the state-of-the-art library opening in 2020 as part of a huge expansion project in the city. The same district will also host the impressive aluminium-clad Munch Museum, a new, not-so-humble abode for many of the 28,000 works of art Edvard Munch created over his lifetime, including The Scream.

Mathallen Food Hall

Tuck In...

Like any hipster hangout worth its artisanal Himalayan rock salt, Grunerløkka started out as a gritty industrial district in a part of town that doesn't warrant sticking around in for long. Fast-forward a few years and the red-brick warehouses down by the Akerselva river have replaced industry with culinary utopia.

The Mathallen Food Hall is compact but bijoux and its independent traders are a tasty bunch. Whether it's a bowl of oysters in creamy broth at Vulkanfisk, Asian street food but not as you know it at Hitchhiker, duck confit on crusty bread at Galopin, or all of the above, shared with friends at one of the long communal tables, the amount of choice alone makes it too tasty an option to miss. Finish up with drinks at Smelteverket in the basement, home to Oslo's longest bar and one of the best craft beer selections in the city.

Finish up with drinks at Smelteverket in the basement, home to Oslo's longest bar and one of the best craft beer selections in the city.

When nothing will do but a burger after an afternoon spent working up an appetite shopping Grunerløkka's vintage treasures, head for Illegal

Burger. With names like 'Sweet Baby Cheesus' and 'Lookin' for truffle?', the tongue-in-cheek menu is enough to lure you in and the perfectly-cooked beef patties topped with everything from truffle oil mushrooms to chipotle hummus will make it worth your while. Everything on the menu can be made suitable for vegans and vegetarians too.

Oslo has taken a while to catch up with its more culinary-inclined neighbours like Copenhagen and Stockholm, but a penchant for new Nordic cuisine has seen the city gain traction on the foodie front in recent years. Maaemo retained its three Michelin stars in the 2019 guide, but you'll need to plan ahead if you want to experience the sixteen-course tasting menu. For fine dining with a slightly more palatable price tag, Ekebergrestauranten in the Ekebergparken serves food as delicious as the views from its windows are stunning.

Drink Up...

Oslo is Scandinavia's coffee capital and if you only drink one cup of joe during your time here, make it an espresso at Tim Wendelboe on Grünersgate 1. Wendelboe was Oslo's original coffee pioneer, an award-winner and innovator whose namesake coffee shop has turned his and our favourite hot drink into an all-out experience for coffee connoisseurs.

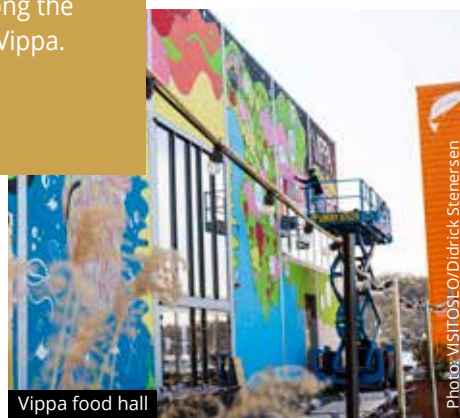

For something a little more intoxicating, delve into the alchemistic rabbit hole that is Himkok. Tucked behind the number 27 on a grey door on the Storgata, the bar reminiscent of a Prohibition-era hideaway doesn't just pour spirits, it makes them. Every night of the week until 3am, white-jacketed mixologists combine Nordic flavours like seaweed, cloudberry, pine needle and Brunost cheese with Himkok aquavit, gin and vodka distilled on site. Such uncommon concoctions have earned Himkok a place on The World's 50 Best Bars list numerous times, while an unshakeable dedication to local produce and on-site processes saw it awarded the first-ever Ketel One Sustainable Bar Award in 2018.

For a cold brew with a view, jump on one of the many electric scooters used by locals to get around and tear along the harbour to Vippa. This multicultural food and drink court gazes upon the kind of scenery that leaves you unable to resist photographing your beer with a fjord backdrop. If a picture really speaks a thousand words, this one says that Oslo has the natural beauty and intoxicating personality to make its price tags feel totally and utterly bearable.

For a cold brew with a view, jump on one of the many electric scooters used by locals to get around and tear along the harbour to Vippa.

Scandinavian Cities

Departing Southampton

29 March 2020 | 12 nights
Aboard Spirit of Discovery

ALL INCLUSIVE

from £2,615pp

Discover what makes Scandinavia special as you cruise to three countries, visiting six different cities. In Denmark experience the magic of Copenhagen and its famous Tivoli Gardens, the Rainbow Panorama of Aarhus' ARoS Museum and the four monolithic sculptures of 'Man Meets the Sea' at Esbjerg. In Sweden, treat yourself to a little 'fika' time as you visit Gothenburg, Sweden's second city with its canals and tramways, while in Norway, Oslo beckons with its host of museums, stylish architecture, shops and more.

From furniture to fabrics, glass and lighting, Scandinavian design came to prominence during the early 20th century and continues to enjoy great popularity today.

On your cruise look forward to talks from guest speakers on Scandinavian architecture, jewellery and the art scene, to enhance your visits to these Scandinavian cities, their buildings and art works.

Designed for life

- Expert talks on Scandinavian architecture and landmarks
- Scandinavian jewellery-making workshops
- Speaker on the Scandinavian art scene

Overnight stays

Scenes of Dunkirk

Departing Southampton

19 May 2020 | 7 nights
Aboard Spirit of Discovery

ALL INCLUSIVE

from £1,547pp

The world in which we live today was shaped by the success of Operation Dynamo. This seven-night cruise has been arranged to coincide with the 80th anniversary of this heroic mission.

At the height of World War II the Allies were facing a monumental defeat at the hands of the rapidly advancing German troops, something Churchill feared would be 'the greatest military disaster in our long history.' With hundreds of thousands of troops penned along the northern coast of France and Belgium in May 1940, British military leaders decided their only option was to evacuate across the Channel.

Learn how the operation was masterminded and carried out and visit some of the key locations involved, not least making a poignant visit to the vast expanse of sand stretching to the east of Dunkirk where many thousands of lives were lost, but so many more were saved.

- On-board talks from a World War II historian
- Vintage-themed entertainment on board
- Visit Dover Castle with its labyrinth of wartime tunnels

Ports of call

19 May - Southampton
20 May - St Helier, Jersey
21 May - Plymouth
22 May - Sea day
23 May - Dover
24 May - Dunkirk
25 May - Dunkirk
26 May - Dover

Visit the Norwegian Fjords!

Cruise from just £679pp

Sail on mirror-calm waters surrounded by cloud-capped peaks in the pristine landscape of Norway. Soaring mountains and stunning waterfalls belie the martial history of the area renowned for its Viking inhabitants and fearsome rulers, as you ease past rugged cliffs on a Norwegian Fjords cruise.

Millions of years of glacial activity created Norway's uniquely spectacular coastline. It is an astonishing landscape of intricately-carved fjords that leave you awestruck by their natural grandeur. An endless trove of breathtakingly beautiful natural wonders, Fjordland is 'hidden Norway' aching to be discovered.

Summertime Fjordland

from £959pp

CHOCOLATE PECAN PIE

Holland America Line's divine pecan pie is a taste of New England in the fall.

SERVES 12

INGREDIENTS

For the pie crust:

190g plain flour

1tsp sugar

½tsp salt

6tbsp unsalted butter, chilled and cut into pieces

3tbsp vegetable shortening (cooking fat), chilled and cut into pieces

250ml water

A few ice cubes

For the filling:

200g pecan halves

200g dark chocolate, chopped into small pieces

3tbsp plain flour

12tbsp unsalted butter, softened

220g dark brown sugar

6 eggs (at room temperature)

250ml light corn syrup

85ml molasses

1.5tbsp Cointreau

2tsp vanilla extract

½tsp salt

Lightly sweetened whipped cream for serving

INSTRUCTIONS

For the pie crust:

1. In a large bowl, whisk together the flour, sugar and salt. Using your fingertips, work the butter and shortening into the mixture until it resembles coarse crumbs. Alternatively, combine the ingredients in a food processor, using short pulses.

2. In a small bowl, add a few cubes of ice to 250ml of water. Using a fork, stir the water into the flour mixture a tablespoon at a time, using only as much as needed to gather the mixture into a soft ball. Pat the dough into a disc, cover it with clingfilm, and refrigerate for at least 1 hour.

3. Heat the oven to 200°C / 180°C fan. On a lightly-floured surface, roll out the dough into a round shape about 1/8 inch thick. Drape the dough over a rolling pin and fit it into a 10-inch pie dish. Fold the edge under and crimp. Place the pie shell in the freezer for 20 minutes.

4. Prick the dough all over with a fork to prevent bubbling during baking. Place a piece of foil over it and fill it with pie weights or dried beans. Place the pie shell in the oven and bake for 10 to 12 minutes. Remove the foil and weights and continue baking for an additional 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from the oven and place it on a wire rack to cool completely.

For the filling:

1. Reduce the oven temperature to 175°C / 160°C fan.

Spread the pecans on a baking sheet and bake for 7 to 10 minutes, until fragrant. Leave to cool, before chopping roughly, then place them in a medium mixing bowl. Add the chopped chocolate and flour, then stir to mix. Set aside.

2. In a large mixing bowl, beat the butter and brown sugar with an electric whisk until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in the eggs, one at a time, stopping two or three times to scrape down the sides of the bowl. Beat in the corn syrup, molasses, Cointreau, vanilla, and salt until fully incorporated.

3. Add the chocolate mixture to the egg mixture and stir until well combined. Pour the filling into the prepared pie shell and bake for 1 hour or until lightly set in the centre. Transfer the pie to a wire rack and allow to cool completely before serving.

Serve at room temperature, topped with lightly sweetened whipped cream.
