What does exploring mean to you? Why not join P&O Cruises to find out. Maybe Seville's vibrant bars will draw you in? Perhaps you'll seek out the neo-gothic splendour of Gaudi's Barcelona or even opt to discover the sultry rainforests and gorgeous beaches of the Caribbean. Or why not venture to beautiful Norway where you can take on a very adventurous quest indeed; in pursuit of the shimmering Northern Lights.

Whatever you decide to do and however, or wherever, you choose to explore, P&O Cruises will ensure it's all there for the taking. Which is why they've gone out of their way to present the very best that these fascinating regions have to offer. Whether you venture ashore or explore life on board, P&O Cruises will be proud to give you a holiday that'll knock your socks off. You do you and P&O Cruises will do the rest.

WELCOME

The day before a government announcement prompted a flurry of cruise cancellations last March, we had been in London to see Into The Blue win silver in the prestigious Travel Marketing Awards. Now, after a year-long hiatus, I'm thrilled to see it arrive in letterboxes again.

Whilst this issue is smaller than usual, I hope you'll find every page filled with destination inspiration, along with some fantastic cruise deals to take you there. We've spent the last year dreaming about all the places we'd like to go; now is time to put those ideas into reality.

I think we'll all agree that we're a nation in need of a holiday and as the UK's leading independent travel agent, nobody is better trusted to take you there. With enhanced onboard protocols promising the safest sailings ever, plus reassurance policies that guarantee easy rebooking if the situation changes, the scene is set for some of your best cruise holidays yet.

I hope you enjoy reading.

Yours sincerely

SOUTHAMPTON SET FOR NEW CRUISE TERMINAL

A new cruise terminal will open in the port of Southampton in 2021

In a huge move towards sustainability, the £55m cruise terminal will let suitably-equipped ships plug in to a local power supply while in port, rather than using onboard generators.

Associated British Ports (ABP) said its opening this year would be a “vote of confidence” in the port. The new cruise terminal will be built in partnership with MSC Cruises and Norwegian Cruise Line Holdings Ltd, and will be the port’s fifth terminal for cruise passengers.

Alastair Welch, director of ABP Southampton, said: “We’re very pleased to announce this major advance in our cruise infrastructure at the port, delivering further access to Southampton for the industry, whilst supporting our commitment to accelerate improvements in local air quality.”

Robert Courts MP, Minister for Maritime at the Department for Transport, said: “As we continue to support the cruise sector in its restart and recovery, it’s great to see government funding being used to help deliver better services for passengers. This next-generation facility also showcases to ports around the world how we’re pioneering the use of green technology.”

No date has been given for the new opening of the new port, though ABP said it would be ‘in time for the 2021 cruise season’.

PRINCESS CRUISES ANNOUNCES LONGEST EVER UK SEASON

Princess Cruises has announced that 2022 will see its longest UK season ever and will include cruises on Sky Princess, which recently joined the fleet in October 2019.

Sky Princess will be cruising from Southampton between March and October 2022, with its total season of 215 days a month longer than any previous UK season. It will also include the most school holiday sailings ever. Sky Princess will also be the largest homeport ship the UK has ever seen.

Sky Princess will be joined in Europe by four other Princess Cruises ships for the summer 2022 season; Crown Princess will also be based in Southampton offering British Isles itineraries, the fleet's newest ship Enchanted Princess will sail Scandinavia and Russia roundtrip from Copenhagen, Regal Princess will cover the Mediterranean, while Island Princess will visit a variety of European destinations.

Sky Princess will offer the choice of 18 voyages from Southampton, including seven school holiday sailings across the season. The ship will depart for the Mediterranean, northern Europe and Canada & New England.

For Princess MedallionClass™ ships, the multi award-winning OceanMedallion wearable device transforms holidays by making the entire cruise experience effortless, delivering highly personalised service and enabling touchless interactive experiences and entertainment. Among enhancements, guests enjoy streamlined boarding; on-demand food, beverage, retail and service delivery; keyless stateroom entry; contactless payment; friends and family locator; anywhere wagering; interactive games; and movies/live TV on the go.

Tony Roberts, Princess Cruises vice president UK & Europe, said: "At Princess, we're using this current pause to strengthen our operations and enhance our offering in order to deliver our best cruise holidays yet. This includes taking this time to add leading-edge technology to more of our fleet, so even more guests can enjoy our touchless, personalised MedallionClass experience. In addition guests can take advantage of our all-inclusive added value package 'Princess Plus', which includes premium drinks, the best Wi-Fi at sea and gratuities. With lots of options available, we are confident that every guest will find a great holiday that they can look forward to in 2022."

All Princess Cruises Europe 2022 voyages are on sale now.

VIKING OCTANTIS BECOMES FIRST VIKING EXPEDITION SHIP

Viking has taken a step closer towards expedition cruising with the launch of Viking Octantis, with the line successfully floating out its first purpose-built expedition vessel.

The 378-guest ship is set to debut in early 2022, following construction at Fincantieri's VARD shipyard in Norway, and will spend its maiden season in Antarctica and North America's Great Lakes region.

Viking Octantis will be followed by Viking Polaris in late 2022, which will offer voyages to the Arctic and Antarctic. The two ships will become the first vessels to make up Viking's new Viking Expedition brand, with plans for several more ships to launch over the coming years.

All Viking expedition vessels will feature a fleet of zodiac rafts for exploring ashore, along with a scientific laboratory; faux firepits; and both indoor and outdoor swimming pools.

ANNE DIAMOND REVEALED AS VIKING VENUS GODMOTHER

Viking has revealed that TV presenter Anne Diamond will become godmother of its newest ship, Viking Venus.

Anne became one of the original morning TV presenters in the 1980s and has more recently fronted Viking.TV, the cruise line's virtual content platform which launched in March last year. She also became an inspirational campaigner for cot death awareness in the 1990s, following the loss of her own son, Sebastian. The campaign saved over 20,000 babies and saw Anne become the only non-medic ever to be awarded the Medal of the Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health.

930-passenger Viking Venus is undergoing final outfitting at Fincantieri's shipyard in Ancona, Italy. When launched later this year, it will become the seventh ship in the cruise line's rapidly expanding ocean fleet, sailing itineraries across Northern Europe.

"On behalf of the entire Viking family, we are delighted and honoured to have Anne serve as the godmother of Viking Venus," said Karine Hagen, Executive Vice President of Viking.

Anne Diamond said: "I am thrilled and honoured to be entrusted as godmother to Viking Venus and cannot wait until we can celebrate her inaugural cruise in a safer and happier 2021.

"Back in March 2020, at the start of the global lockdown, when I rang my good friend Karine to ask if there was anything I could do, never did I think it might lead to such a fascinating journey. But exhilarating journeys are what Viking is all about! I am so proud to be part of the growth."

Viking Venus sailings are available to book now.

HEBRIDES SET FOR CRUISE INDUSTRY BOOST

A £49million investment in a deep water terminal at Stornoway is set to boost the Hebrides cruise industry and create more than 100 jobs in the region.

Set to become operational in May 2023, the new terminal will be the only deep water berth on the west coast of Scotland and will offer visitors the opportunity to visit some of the region's most popular attractions, including the Callanish Stones and Blackhouse villages.

Speaking about the boost to the cruise industry and wider economy alike, Stornoway Port Authority chief executive Alex MacLeod said: "We are extremely pleased to announce this major investment in the port's cruise infrastructure, which will deliver a wealth of opportunities to both our community and the cruise industry.

"This significant project will allow Stornoway to welcome the world, as our epic landscape, living Gaelic culture, history with mystery and limitless landmarks, provides the perfect offering for cruise lines and tourists alike as they seek to explore Scotland and beyond.

"This project will bring transformative change to the entire region, most notably to the local economy. It gives us immense excitement to see the collaborative approach between all the local partners, which will be essential to ensure the operational success of the terminal.

"Our own announcement comes just three weeks after the confirmation of Southampton's new fifth terminal, which will greatly enhance the cruise itineraries and volume of ships cruising from Southampton and neighbouring ports."

LOOKING AHEAD

We're poised to see the world again. But where? Do we scratch the itch for adventure after months with our wings clipped, booking bucket list escapes that make up for lost holidays and then some? Or will you holiday closer to home, embarking on an itinerary that puts the finery of the British Isles on display in all its glory, or embracing the great outdoors in the awe-inspiring surrounds of the Norwegian Fjords? Wherever you have spent the last however-many-months thinking about, it's time to start putting plans into practice and rediscovering a love of travel. The wait is almost over...

Okinawa

Isle of Skye

Fishguard

Not all British Isles itineraries are created equal and those in 2021 are set to be as diverse as the destinations.

British Isles

If there is one thing 2020 taught us, it was to pause and appreciate everything we already have. Amongst this was our home shores. First we explored within an hour of our doorsteps, filling every second of our permitted 60 minutes with as close to adventure as we could get in that first lockdown. Eventually, as restrictions eased and we longed to explore more, we ventured further. With friends and family, or alone, seeking silence from the noise of the news and solace in the great outdoors at a time when our own four walls had started closing in. As we move into 2021 and beyond, that determination to explore more of what makes Britain great remains. Most of us have spent years – decades even – leaving the UK behind in search of escape; now we're realising that there's a whole world right there on our doorstep.

Chesil Beach, Portland

British Isles itineraries are certain to be some of the first to resume when the green light is given, taking 'I can't believe I've never been here!'

Cork, Ireland

UK locales and adding a sprinkle of the cruise magic we're all missing. When the service, the ships and the sights combine, amazing happens, and when it comes to cruising our own fair isles, that special blend of rest and relaxation doesn't have an airport in sight either. Take Cunard's historic first scenic sailings, filled with the promise of blissfully undisturbed opportunity to see what makes the esteemed Queens quite so special. Just as we all have a favourite drive that sees your heart leap into your throat without leaving the wheel, guests of Queen Elizabeth are promised a front row seat at the most scenic of shows.

Not all British Isles itineraries are created equal and those in 2021 are set to be as diverse as the destinations. While England, Scotland and Ireland courtesy of Cunard promises comfort and indulgence, Hurtigruten's promise is one of adventure. Delving off the beaten track has never held such appeal as it does today, and sailings with the soft expedition cruise line will dip into the most secluded of our shores, from near-silent Rathlin Island to the rugged limestone charm of Portland and quaint Fishguard on the Pembrokeshire coast. It's a big bucket list UK expedition, starting from the doorstep port of Dover.

Japan

Culture shock is the antidote to months of monotony. Japan is a cacophony of experiences, mixing the old with the new in a way only it knows how. In spring, there's cherry blossom; in winter, snowy mountains and steaming-hot matcha. Cities like Kyoto see neon towers sit beside gilded temples and zen rock gardens, charcoal-suited businessmen rubbing shoulders with geishas in the lunchtime hurry. Feel the stress melt away with an afternoon onsen experience or take the bullet train to Mount Fuji, Japan's poster girl and inspiration for its painters and poets. And when you crave clean air, head for Okinawa and the Southwest Islands; with sugar sands and swaying palms, you could be forgiven for thinking you've sailed off track and arrived in the Caribbean. Bask, swim, dive and snorkel, relishing the feeling of being a million miles away for the mundane.

Princess Cruises are the experts in immersive Japanese itineraries; our favourites are long and lingering explorer sailings designed to give every angle of this unique destination the attention it deserves.

Norway

As the backdrop for Iona's maiden season, Norway looked set to be the star of the show for spring last year. Instead, we're looking ahead to those epic vistas and lungs full of alpine air on the new P&O Cruises arrival. Norway's appeal is beautifully uncomplicated; the coffee is hot when the days are cold, open fires roaring and candles lit to create a cosiness that makes it impossible to rush. The days of summer are endless, midnight sun leaving more hours in which to experience everything that proves why those who call this part of the world home are the happiest on earth.

For natural beauty with a side of sophistication, Silversea promises 'a myriad of magic, mystery and midnight sun' on its Northern Europe and British Isles roundtrip sailing from Southampton in September 2022. Nordic nirvanas like Alesund and Nordfjordeid sit side-by-side with the inky waters and green slopes of al fresco highlights like Eidfjord on the itinerary aboard new ship, Silver Moon. With shore excursions now included with the luxury line for selected 2022 sailings onwards, there's the promise of high-end adventure.

Fred Olsen's Corinth Canal and Greek Islands sailing sees Braemar dip into Mediterranean icons.

Greece

Oh, how we miss having sea salt in our hair and skin sticky with SPF. From warm sand to ocean sunsets and ancient history, some of life's simplest pleasures rank high on the list of things we miss about summer holidays and they're in abundance in Greece and its islands.

Fred Olsen's Corinth Canal and Greek Islands sailing sees Braemar dip into Mediterranean icons and slip into the remarkable Corinth Canal. Sleepy Syros and Kefalonia deliver the leisurely days of late summer, while there are Byzantine treasures on show in Agios Nikolaos and an effortless transit of the manmade marvel canal, where cliffs pinch to a gap unnavigable to most cruise ships. Were Greece not enough to satisfy your appetite for a good old sun holiday, Braemar's sailing will sample a mix of idyllic hideouts in Spain, Italy, Malta and Portugal too.

If the thought of island-hopping around the Cyclades has been your go-to when in desperate need of a daydream to see you through talk of tiers and local lockdowns, Star Clippers have a reality that exceeds even the loftiest of expectation in 2022. The tall ship specialist will have the wind in its sails as it departs Piraeus for the Southern Cyclades on 7-night sailings through the Samos Strait into Kusadasi, where Ephesus awaits with the history bit. Onwards from there, Greece is poised to reveal its gems, including Patmos, Amorgos, Spetses and the ever-popular hedonistic Eden of Mykonos.

A place where getting back to nature is a given.

Alaska

Alaska became one of the first destinations to have its cruise season side-lined last year, with 2021 following soon after. And so 2022 looks set to become the year of Alaskan adventures that have been at least two years in the making.

A place where getting back to nature is a given, Alaska is wild and untamed lands in all their glory. Cruises here dabble between friendly gold rush towns and glacial plains where you're unlikely to see a soul for miles. Unchanged in areas since dinosaurs roamed, it's a place which feels a million miles away from the norm in the most exciting way possible. The scenery alone is worth the trip, but for a holiday worthy of the wait we've all endured, pair an Alaskan cruise with a jaunt to the Rockies or a few days at the Calgary Stampede; all boot-kicking cowboys and rodeo displays, the 'Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth' is an escape and a half from the humdrum of everyday.

Princess Cruises recently launched 2022 itineraries on six ships, including the newest addition to the fleet, Discovery Princess. She'll sail from Seattle on a seven-day Inside Passage itinerary, with the option to add on one of Princess Cruises' award-winning Alaska Cruisetour land packages to incorporate a wilderness lodge stay in the sprawling Denali National Park.

Adventure

Where will your adventure take you? You could delve into the many ancient secrets of the Eternal City of Rome, dig out your hiking boots for a trip to Norway's majestic fjords or enjoy two full days to explore St Petersburg. Or maybe it's time for something a little more leisurely such as Aurora's 24-night cruise along Canada's eastern coastline.

With plenty of time to enjoy life on board too during your holiday, why not make the most of your ship? Perhaps a rejuvenating spa treatment? Maybe a flutter in the casino? Or how about treating yourself to a delectable meal in one of the speciality dining venues? However you choose to spend your time – be it exploring ashore, or chilling out on board – you do you and P&O Cruises will do the rest.

THE FUTURE OF

TRAVEL

In 2021, our desire to travel is truly alive and kicking; here's how the trends are shaping up for the years ahead.

It took having our freedom to roam taken away to fully appreciate what it meant to us. With the world stood still and time slowed, we finally had the chance to take stock of the things we've seen, the places we've been and the places we'll go 'once normality resumes' – a phrase that's up there with 'unprecedented turn of events' in the dictionary of 2020.

It's difficult to make predictions in the midst of a pandemic. Would we want to travel the same way again? Could we travel the same way again, even if we wanted to? As the year drew to a close and news of a vaccine brought light to the horizon, it became glaringly obvious that we were all more keen to explore than ever. We missed planning and booking, marking the date in our diaries when for a week or two we'd be blissfully unoccupied. We missed Med cities in hot summers and longed for white sands where the only Corona on our lips was the beer. We even missed airports. Now, travel is back on the horizon; this is how it'll look.

THE RETURN OF THE TRAVEL AGENT

Few could have predicted the blizzard of cancellations which would begin in March and continue throughout the year, throwing holiday plans into disarray for millions of us. In the flurry of refunds and rebookings that followed, it became apparent that having a travel agent on your side made the process a whole lot easier. But you're biased, we hear you say. It's true, we are. But with every travel-disrupting natural disaster or in this case worldwide pandemic, comes the realisation that it pays to have someone fighting your corner for your money back and exploring all the options with you when it comes to finding an amazing alternative.

We have endless opportunity at our fingertips to travel and the age of the internet has made it easier than ever to do our own research. But with new ships and hotels debuting near-monthly, plus a destination for every day of the year, we're facing information overload. When it comes to booking a cruise holiday with a travel agent, knowledge is power, from which cabin promises the best night's sleep, to which visas you'll need and how to holiday with dietary needs. Lastly, it's all about the money. Booking with a travel agent means the chance to plan ahead and spread the cost, and thanks to ABTA and ATOL protection, you'll be guaranteed a far smoother refund process should the worst happen.

Norwegian Epic

MULTI-GENERATIONAL TRAVEL

We've missed travel, but we've missed our nearest and dearest more. In an ideal world - which is what we're all hoping for in 2021, isn't it? - we'll combine the two on holidays that reunite family and friends in memory-making get-togethers around the globe.

The popularity of multi-generational travel has soared in recent years. When Norwegian Cruise Line launched Norwegian Epic back in 2016, it did so with all ages in mind, acknowledging the fact that while the kids want action-packed entertainment at all hours, Grandad might well want to be left alone with a book by the pool.

Beyond facilities, itineraries have also had a multi-gen makeover with lines like P&O Cruises. When Iona launches in spring, the most family-focused ship in the fleet so far will offer itineraries tailored towards appealing to all generations. In the Norwegian Fjords, for example, activities span from mountain biking and kayaking to leisurely hikes in the hills and sampling local specialities with your feet up in hygge mountain cabins.

Geiranger fjord

FLEXIBILITY

With rules and regulations around travel continuing to change on a weekly basis, cruise lines have modified their payment and cancellation policies to provide reassurance and flexibility to passengers planning ahead.

There's no better feeling than having a holiday booked and while most policies won't be in place long term, they do mean you can get to work on planning a well-deserved trip with absolute peace of mind whilst we all wait for the situation to stabilise.

As we look ahead, it's likely we'll continue to see many airlines offer flight changes without fees and hotels permitting cancellations up to 24 hours prior to arrival too. When it comes to the cruise lines, reassurance policies differ, however many will currently allow you to cancel up to 48 hours before departure and receive a future cruise credit for the full amount.

The Great Wall of China

BIG

TICKET TRIPS

There's an old saying that goes something along the lines of 'if we were meant to stay in the same place, we'd have roots instead of feet'. After a year spent almost unanimously rooted, it appears that we're a nation with big plans for the next few years.

A go big or stay home mentality will see those big trips finally leave the bucket list and become reality. We've realised that life is too short to wait for 'one day' and having our worlds shrunk has reminded us how much is out there to see. A survey by travel insights company Amadeus found that well over half of us will look to travel for longer, while 60% of us will take less trips but go all out on making them once-in-a-lifetime escapes.

Bora Bora

Pura Ulun Danu Bratan Temple in Bali

Sydney

RESPONSIBLE TOURISM

Nature kept us going in 2020, through the hour-long walks that kept us sane each evening and the weekends spent in the woods with the kids, blowing off steam after the traumas of home-schooling. In 2021 and beyond, we'll return the favour, placing more importance on travelling in a way that works with the environment, not against it.

More than 25 million people cruise each year and the industry has become laser focused on reducing its undeniably sizeable carbon footprint. Single use plastics have long since been shunned and new vessels are powered on everything from the ultra-clean LNG (liquified natural gas) set to power P&O Cruises' Iona, to liquified biogas (LBG) made from dead fish on Hurtigruten's latest vessels.

Responsible tourism will see us make more of an effort than ever to support the economies of destinations too, conscious that many will have had a year or more without visitors. We'll be travelling more during shoulder season, when coincidentally fares are cheaper too, and there'll be more effort to eat at really authentic local restaurants rather than chains.

TOUCHLESS TECH

2020 saw cash become near obsolete as contactless payment limits were increased, but cruising was ahead of the touchless tech curve and revolutionising holidays long before then. Princess Cruises led the change with the introduction of the Ocean Medallion. Debuted in 2017, the 10p piece-sized wearable device was intended to make the passenger experience more streamlined and personalised. From touchless stateroom entry, to locating friends and family around the ship, not to mention ordering food and drinks without leaving your sun lounger, the technology was unlike anything we'd seen at sea before.

Shortly after Princess came MSC Cruises with MSC for Me, a digital innovation three years in the making, with the family-favourite cruise line working alongside the world's leading digital, tech and behavioural science experts on its development. Like Princess's Ocean Medallion, the wearable tech can access cabins without contact with surfaces, and can also be used to book restaurants and excursions in real-time, as well as keeping parents informed on the whereabouts of little ones at kids club.

As cruise lines implement new technology to guarantee safe sailings over the years ahead, we'll see more touchless technology come to the fore. All operators in the Royal Caribbean Group will return to the seas with a new and improved smartphone app available, almost completely redesigned to encourage effective social distancing. The technology will include Muster 2.0, an electronic muster drill function that will encourage passengers to complete the obligatory safety procedure in their own time rather than encouraging groups to gather. It'll also mean staggered arrivals at the port and more widely available mobile check-in, as well as stateroom automation on Edge-class ships onwards.

SICILIAN CASSATA INFORNATA

With the arrival of Silver Moon comes the debut of Silversea's innovative Sea And Land Taste Program (S.A.L.T.). Heralding a new dawn for fervent foodies, the gastronomic concept is all about connecting travellers to destinations through the lens of food and drink. This rustic Cassata Infornata recipe takes us to Sicily, its creamy ricotta filling floating like a cloud on a bed of Italian sponge cake and light shortbread.

INGREDIENTS

For the dough:

- > 500g plain flour
- > 100g sugar
- > 4g baking powder
- > 170g butter
- > 1 egg plus enough milk to equal 100 ml
- > 8g honey
- > 12ml dessert wine
- > Pinch of salt
- > Zest of ½ lemon

For the sponge cake:

- > 3 eggs
- > 75g sugar
- > 75g plain flour, sifted
- > ¼tsp lemon zest.

For the ricotta cream:

- > 1.25kg fresh sheep's milk ricotta, left to strain overnight
- > 350g granulated sugar
- > 50g chocolate chips or chopped bittersweet chocolate
- > 25g candied mandarin or orange (optional), chopped.

METHOD

For the dough:

1. Mix the flour, sugar, salt, and baking powder in a bowl.
2. Work the butter into the flour until mixture is crumbly.
3. Make a well in the centre, add the egg, milk, honey and wine then stir. Knead just until dough is soft.
4. Wrap dough in plastic and rest in the fridge for at least 30 minutes.

For the sponge cake:

1. Preheat the oven to 175°C
2. Butter and flour a 6" round cake pan. Put the eggs into a mixer and beat for 10 minutes. Add the sugar and lemon zest and continue to beat until the mixture forms a ribbon.
3. Gently fold in the sifted flour, then pour into the pan and bake for 20-25 minutes, until a toothpick inserted into the centre comes out clean. Cool on a cake rack.
4. In a bowl, whip the ricotta and sugar together. Fold in the chocolate chips, then refrigerate until needed.

To assemble:

1. Butter the 9-inch spring-form pan and dust with breadcrumbs.
2. Divide the pastry dough into two pieces, one slightly bigger than the other. Roll out the larger piece of pastry dough between two pieces of lightly floured parchment paper until 1cm thick.

3. Peel off one layer of parchment paper, invert the pan over the dough and carefully flip it over. Peel off the second layer of parchment paper and press the dough into the bottom and sides of the pan, smoothing as much as possible.
4. Crumble two thirds of the sponge cake evenly onto the bottom of the dough. Spread the ricotta cream on top of the crumbled sponge, then crumble the remaining sponge on top, pressing down lightly.
5. Roll out the smaller piece of pastry dough to fit the top of the cake and pinch the edges to seal.
6. With a sharp knife, cross the top to allow air to escape. Bake at 175°C for 30 minutes until golden.
7. Rest until cooled slightly, then remove from the pan and leave to cool completely.
8. Dust with powdered sugar before serving.
