WELCOME

This is the first issue of Into the Blue for the new year, where I hope you find plenty of inspiration for your holiday plans in 2022 and beyond. There's a lot for us to look forward to over the next 12 months, including the launch of several new ships, many of which will be based here in the UK for their maiden seasons. One that we're especially excited about is Arvia, the latest Excel class ship from P&O Cruises, and I know many of you are already booked to set sail on her when she launches in December. Take a look at our Arvia feature and On the Horizon to find out more.

Cunard's summer 2023 programme is coming soon and we are currently taking pre-registrations. These will be on sale for World Club members on 1 Feb 2022 and on general sale the following day.

Norway has always been a top cruising destination, and this popularity is predicted to grow even further over the course of this year. It's certainly a booking trend we're seeing among our Cruise Club members, so if you're still undecided about whether a trip to Scandinavia is right for you, I'd recommend reading Norway, All Ways to see if that convinces you.

In this issue, we also predict what holidays might look like in years to come in our Future of Travel feature. If your journey takes you to the Canary Islands over the coming months, we've also put together some suggestions of how you should spend 36 hours in Tenerife.

I hope you enjoy reading.

Yours sincerely

Viking Octantis

VIKING OCTANTIS MARKS “A NEW ERA OF EXPLORATION”

Viking has taken delivery of Viking Octantis, the first of two expedition ships set to join the fleet. An official naming ceremony is planned for April 2022, before Viking Octantis will make her way to the Great Lakes for a series of spring and summer itineraries. The second purpose-built expedition ship, Viking Polaris, will be added to the fleet in August 2022.

Torstein Hagen, Chairman of Viking, hailed the welcoming of a “new era of exploration” for the cruise line.

“Leveraging our long history of destination-focused travel, enrichment and innovative ship design, we are now perfecting expedition voyages and offering curious travellers the opportunity to visit the world’s most pristine destinations in the most responsible way possible. With the arrival of Viking Octantis, Viking is now exploring all seven continents, and we look forward to welcoming her first guests on board in the coming weeks,” he commented.

Viking Octantis has a maximum capacity of 378 guests and was designed by the same team behind Viking’s longships and ocean ships. A number of exciting onboard features ensure the new Viking expedition ship is well-equipped to make the most of her destinations. Among them is The Hangar, an industry first, in-ship marina where passengers can embark and disembark excursion craft from an 85-foot slipway housed inside the ship.

Other highlights include The Science Lab, where a wide range of research activities can take place. Guests can access the area under supervision and see first-hand the work being undertaken by the scientists on board.

Each stateroom is kitted out with a unique floor-to-ceiling drying closet that circulates warm air, enabling guests to dry and store their clothing and expedition gear with ease.

Finse Terrace

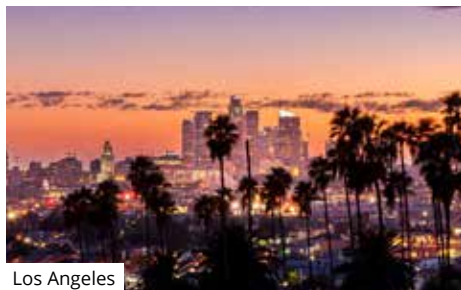

DISCOVERY PRINCESS SUCCESSFULLY COMPLETES SEA TRIALS

The latest addition to the Princess Cruises fleet, Discovery Princess, is one step closer to welcoming passengers as sea trials have successfully been completed by the vessel.

The new Princess Cruises ship left the construction dock at Fincantieri Shipyard in Monfalcone, Italy, where she was put through her paces. Sea trials lasted five days, during which Discovery Princess had her navigation equipment, steering and propulsion put to the test.

Discovery Princess is now back in the dockyard where further interior and exterior finishing will be completed. Her maiden voyage is scheduled for 27 March 2022, where the ship will depart the Port of Los Angeles for a seven-night cruise of the Mexican Riviera.

Discovery Princess will be the final Royal Class newbuild to join the fleet. She is the sister ship of Enchanted Princess, Sky Princess, Majestic Princess, Regal Princess and Royal Princess and will bring a wide range of luxury experiences to holidaymakers.

Los Angeles

Boasting one of the largest balconies at sea, Princess Cruises promises guests staying in its Sky Suite 270-degree views of their surroundings. Discovery Princess has a maximum capacity of 3,660 passengers and 1,346 crew.

After completing her maiden voyage, Discovery Princess will set sail on a series of Mexican Riviera and California Coast itineraries, running from 27 March to 24 April 2022. The new Princess Cruises ship will then head up the Pacific coast to undertake a season of seven-night Alaska cruises from Seattle.

PLANS FOR HULL CRUISE TERMINAL MOVE A STEP CLOSER

Yorkshire could welcome its own dedicated cruise terminal, as plans to construct a new facility in Hull continue to progress.

Hull City Council announced it had appointed specialist international firm Royal HaskoningDHV to provide support for the project, which would give cruise passengers another departure port to choose from in the north of England.

Councillor Daren Hale, Leader of Hull City Council, explained that the Cruise Hull Yorkshire terminal would boost job opportunities in the area, as well as increase tourism.

"Hull needs a dedicated cruise facility in the heart of the Old Town so that we can greet cruise passengers with a five-star welcome and an immediate experience of Hull, in addition to the region's world class visitor attractions. This could also be a carbon reduction measure, reducing the need for journey to south coast ports."

The design for the new cruise terminal in Hull currently includes shore-side electricity, enabling cruise ship operators to switch off their engines while in port. Instead, vessels will be able to rely more heavily on efficient power systems, in turn allowing them to cut overall emissions.

NORWAY

ALL WAYS

Lofoten Islands

Norway has a rugged and raw beauty that feels prehistoric, yet its cities sit firmly in the future. It is a destination unlike any other and there is really, truly, no better way to see it than by ship, the fjord walls rising around you like a hug and the inky sea as still as drinking water.

In summer, the Midnight Sun casts a peach glow. In winter, the Northern Lights dance overhead. There's no such thing as a bad time to visit Norway and just as you time your trip to coincide with the version you'd like to experience – a winter wonderland or a summer adventure – you can pick your ship based on the version of Norway you'd like it to show you. Here are some of the best Norwegian holidays for the hikers and the foodies, the families and the luxury lovers.

NORWAY... FOR FOODIES

Take a trip through the world's finest pantry and devour its wares in Hurtigruten's coastal kitchen. The cruise line has plied the same 1,500 miles of Norwegian coastline since 1893 and nobody knows it, or its produce, better.

A Hurtigruten cruise between Bergen and Kirkenes is a culinary journey that serves up Geiranger's lamb and Lofoten's cod, Finnmark's reindeer and the king crab of the Barents Sea. They describe it as nature's pantry and it is brimming with flavour. More appealing still is the cruise line's dedication to ethical procurement and sustainable sourcing, local purveyors handpicked from along the coast to deliver the highest quality produce for every meal. Calling at 34 ports daily means everything you eat is ultra-fresh too, supplies going from source to plate within hours.

Foodies won't find a profusion of restaurants on Hurtigruten's small ships, but it's a classic case of quality over quantity. Seafood mains and a grand finale of local cheeses are highlights in à la carte restaurant, Kysten, while Norwegian farm-to-table dinners in main restaurant Torget and open sandwiches in the Brygga Bistro keep things varied. And can we just say that the porridge on board a Hurtigruten ship was the best we have ever eaten, anywhere.

NORWAY... FOR THE ACTIVE

Norway is the greatest of the great outdoors, and scenery like this deserves a closer look. No other cruise serves up quite so many opportunities to get active, whether that's hiking, biking, kayaking, stand-up paddleboarding or teetering across via ferrata suspended closer to the clouds than the ground.

Norway has much to offer those in search of more leisurely days, but for active adventures it excels. Pulpit Rock is Norway's icon, its granite plateau standing 600 metres above sea level. The hike to reach it isn't an easy one by any stretch, and the views from the top are enough to make you weak at the knees in the very best and very worst way. It is an unmissable experience for anyone who found their hiking legs in lockdown and is one of countless hikes that can occupy hours on end of a Norwegian cruise.

Take to the water for a different perspective - you can kayak along Trondheim's River Sid or embark on a sea kayak expedition to the island of Håkøya on the Tromsø-area coastline. Norway is known as one of the best places in the world to kayak, its still waters made for the activity and its mountainous terrain taking on imposing new forms from way down below. And of course, with mountains come trails, Norway's scattered with adrenaline junkies giving new meaning to the phrase 'it's all downhill from here'. When P&O Cruises revealed mountain biking as one of the many active excursions on Iona's Norwegian Fjords itineraries, it confirmed that cruising today is anything but boring. The steep hairpin bends that weave outwards of Geiranger were made for two wheels, thundering waterfalls and the whirr of your wheels the only sounds piercing the silence and stillness.

NORWAY... FOR FAMILIES

"Do you want to build a snowman?"

If you've little ones at home, it's a line you'll have heard often since Disney's Frozen brought the icy kingdom of Arendelle to their screens. Norway with the kids brings the birthplace of Anna and Elsa to life before their eyes, especially if you opt for a winter trip when a white frost covers almost everything you can see each morning. A family cruise to Norway is a great multi-generational option; Mum, Dad, Nan and Grandad will appreciate the scenery, teens will lose their minds on RIB rides that career through the fjords, and younger kids will revel in seeing Frozen come to life around them.

An October sailing means more chance of seeing the Northern Lights paint the sky too, something that never fails to leave all ages amazed. If you're really lucky, they might even make an appearance mid-way through an outdoor screening at Movies Under the Stars.

Scenic Eclipse

NORWAY, PLUS MORE

Norway slots into longer European itineraries beautifully and this Scenic Eclipse sailing is a total immersion into not only some of Norway's fjords and cities at the height of summer, but also some of Western Europe and Scandinavia's gems in a 'Norway, plus more' style itinerary.

Scenic Eclipse itself is more luxury yacht than classic cruise ship, the experience shared with just 228 guests at a time. A Scenic sailing blends utter indulgence with exploration, your excursions led by a Specialist Discovery Team and your welcome back to the ship coming courtesy of the butler service that comes as standard with all suites.

After port calls in Portugal, Spain, France and the Netherlands, as well as a stop closer to home in Cowes, a 'Scenic Special Stay' sees you experience two contrasting Norwegian cities; rustic and colourful Bergen, and cosmopolitan Oslo, a destination that appeals to culture fiends fond of its architectural prowess and world-leading design. Stays in Stockholm and Copenhagen round off the luxury escorted land journey, which are capped at just 20 guests or less for a really intimate and friendly feel.

THE FRED. OLSEN FLEET WHY SMALLER IS BETTER

Fred. Olsen's ships are smaller for several reasons. Their size allows them to access places larger ships simply cannot reach, such as journeying through the impressive Corinth Canal, and docking closer to the heart of beautiful cities. With fewer passengers their crew get to know each of their guests, and the atmosphere on board is always warm and civilised.

As a family-run cruise line, Fred. Olsen really take your experience personally. Their Chairman, Fred. Olsen Jnr, is very hands on. It is his passion and attention to the smallest detail that ensures a wonderful journey, each time you sail with them.

While the cruise industry has gone for bigger ships, brimming with more and more people, Fred. Olsen have always believed that smaller is better. They treat passengers as guests, dock at smaller ports in more interesting places and avoid overcrowding both aboard and ashore. At capacity, their smaller ships will only ever sail with between 900 and 1,400 guests. Each area, venue and cabin on their ships have been hand-crafted by their creative teams and Fred. Olsen Jnr, to ensure each space is elegantly designed to make you feel relaxed and at home the moment you step on board.

Arvia

Captain
Robert Camby

You got your first taste of life at sea on SS Canberra aged 14. What are your standout memories of that sailing and what do you think it was that stoked that fire for cruising at such a young age?

On one of our family cruises on Canberra, we were lucky enough to sit on the Captain's table for dinner and he asked me what I wanted to do for a living. My Grandfather replied on my behalf, saying I wanted his job as Captain. This Captain then allowed me onto the Bridge a number of times, and also gave me all the details to apply for a cadetship. We are still in touch with him even now, although he is now retired, and he has followed my career. He very kindly sent his Captain stripes when I was promoted to Captain myself, which was the most wonderful gesture. He was a wonderful mentor. I recall standing on the Bridge with the Deck Officers when I was 14 years old, thinking 'this is the job for me'.

You currently command Iona and have spent the summer getting a feel for the special new P&O Cruises arrival. What has she brought to the seas?

Iona is an amazing ship with an equally amazing ship's company (all the crew members). We are all so excited to bring an LNG-powered ship into service, setting new standards in technology and supporting our 'Oceans Alive' environmental goals and commitments.

The ship has a new SkyDome venue, the first for P&O Cruises. It's a multi-purpose entertainment venue. The atrium also has double-sided glass on three decks, giving everyone fantastic views of the sea on both sides of the ship. These features, as well as many new dining choices such as Olive Grove and The Quays and The Keel & Cow as well as tapas from renowned Jose Pizarro, will make cruising the Norwegian Fjords stunning.

Arvia will underpin the sustainability credentials established by Iona. How has this ever-increasing focus on sustainability and environment changed your role and that of your crew?

All the ship's company has an environmental focus at the centre of all they do. Carnival Corporation has an Oceans Alive programme which underpins our commitment to protecting the waters in which we sail, and the places and communities we visit for future generations.

The technology and standards upon which Arvia and Iona have been built enable us to support this commitment, not only with our recycling centre and with the LNG fuel usage, but especially with our extensive environmental training and the culture amongst our people

How else do you expect Arvia might elevate those new standards set by Iona more generally?

I recall standing on the Bridge with the Deck Officers when I was 14 years old, thinking ‘this is the job for me’.

Arvia as a sister ship to Iona continues to highlight P&O Cruises’ commitment to new standards and technology. Having two LNG ships demonstrates our commitment to the future of clean fuels. We will also have new dining concepts, extraordinary new activities and entertainment.

Having captained almost every ship in the P&O Cruises fleet, which one occupies a particular soft spot?

Oriana was my first command and also where I met my wife, who was a singer onboard at the time. I served on Oriana

Arvia Conservatory Mini-Suite

as a cadet back in 1996 and to return 16 years later in 2012 as Captain was a special moment.

And in your opinion, what is the magic that sets P&O Cruises apart and which has created such a loyal legion of cruisers?

The magic of P&O Cruises comes from the crew. We have 50 nationalities working onboard and it’s this diversity that gives the ship its true identity and a huge sense of unity as a team working and socialising together to deliver holiday happiness on a daily basis.

We have so many loyal guests and so many loyal crew. This combination really makes working for the company a pleasure and generates such a welcoming personal atmosphere onboard for every cruise. Our guests love this. The most frequent comment I receive is how friendly the crew are and this makes me so proud.

Can you tell us how an average day at sea looks for you?

Being a cruise ship captain is like being a Mayor of a small city and also a managing director. My prime responsibility is for the safety of the ship and all on board, and I drive the ship in and out of each port. Furthermore, I spend time each day with the navigator looking at future tracks and ports, and I help mentor the younger officers in their goals and ambitions of becoming P&O Cruises ship captains.

Outside of my navigational duties, I spend a great deal of time in the crew areas visiting all aspects of operation, from the butcher and baker to the recycling centre team, the engine room crew to the back of house operations in the galley, entertainment and housekeeping. I think it is so important that the ship's company has access to the Captain all the time. We work together like a family, so welfare of the crew is a high focus.

Of course, I attend many guest events and walk the guest decks as often as I can as, again, it's important to me that the guests see the Captain.

I also have a wedding licence and have had the honour of marrying well over a hundred couples on several of our ships during my career.

A day in the life of a cruise ship captain is always varied and the hours ever changing as the arrival and departures from ports can be early in the morning and late at night. It is certainly never boring and with the guests changing every cruise and the crew frequently changing as they come and go from leave, it constantly keeps you engaged and busy.

Your 26 years with Carnival UK must have given you some incredible experiences in places around the world. Can you share any that stand out in your memory as some of the best?

I had the pleasure of commanding Oceana during the maiden Dubai season. The cruising and destinations were fantastic. Overnight calls in Dubai and Abu Dhabi meant our guests and crew could really enjoy and experience the cultures during the extended stays in these extraordinary places.

In 2012 I also got to take Oriana to Mumbai. Taking a P&O Cruises ship to India with so many of our crew being Indian is a really special moment. Being on the dock side, meeting so many of their family and friends, was emotional and such a pleasure.

Antigua

When I was a young cadet, one of the ships I worked on also went to the Philippines and, again, with so many Filipino crew the atmosphere onboard was amazing. Seeing our crew with their family and friends always brings a lump to your throat.

How does time off look when you travel for a living? Will we find you in search of sun or adventure seeking, or are you more likely to be relishing the time at home?

As a family we do like to go on holiday. All of us love the sun, so a hot

One of my favourite places was Alaska, where I spent four seasons cruising. Also, more recently I did Oceana's Dubai season, which was a career highlight.

destination would be our choice. However, having said that I do love to spend time at home working on the house and catching up with friends.

And which destinations haven't you quite managed to tick off the bucket list yet?

I have been so fortunate that during the 26 years I have worked for the company, I have travelled to all the major cruise destinations and completed 14 world cruises. One of my favourite places was Alaska, where I spent four seasons cruising. Also, more recently I did Oceana's Dubai season, which was a career highlight. The guest feedback on the destination was overwhelmingly positive.

Meet P&O Cruises newest Local Food Hero

SHIVI RAMOUTAR

The culinary queen bringing the colourful flavours of the Caribbean to Arvia

P&O Cruises is excited to welcome celebrity chef and cookbook author Shivi Ramoutar to their Local Food Heroes team. The rising star in contemporary Caribbean cuisine will be bringing her vibrant and flavoursome recipes to Arvia's maiden season in the Caribbean from January to March 2023. You can celebrate the zesty flavours of this sun-drenched region by tasting Shivi's exclusive range of dishes in Taste 360 and The Beach House.

Shivi, who grew up in Trinidad before moving to New York and Leicestershire, now lives with her young family in London. And as one of P&O Cruises Local Food Heroes, she will join José Pizarro and Kjartan Skjelde in bringing your holiday destinations to life through authentic creations on board. With Shivi's bold flavours and joyful style coming to Arvia, you'll now be able to taste your way around the Caribbean's idyllic islands like never before.

Speaking about her Local Food Hero role, Shivi said: "I'm so excited to share my food with Arvia's guests. Caribbean food is proper fusion food, influenced by all the people who have travelled through the region. I hope to make the dining experience on Arvia as much about limin' (the Caribbean art of relaxing with friends) as it is about the food."

Designed to let in the tropical sunshine and blue skies, there's no better ship to explore the Caribbean with than Arvia. With her retractable glass-roofed SkyDome and luminous wide-open spaces, you'll never miss out on the stunning scenery all around you. And nobody is more excited to experience this P&O Cruises Excel class ship than Shivi herself: "I've been poring over the images of Arvia and can't wait to experience the luxury and diversity of her.

"I think I'll spend a lot of time sitting and eating and gazing out on the gorgeous decks and terraces with a glass of something chilled in my hand. Then there will be a spot of swimming, some time at the spa and a movie in the cinema. Can you tell I've spent a lot of time daydreaming about it all?"

P&O Cruises president Paul Ludlow said: "As Shivi joins Marco Pierre White and Olly Smith as well as José and Kjartan, I am so proud that we have an extraordinary line-up of chefs lending their skills and talents to our dining choice."

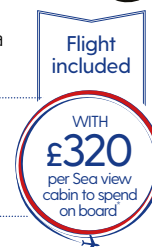

P&O Cruises will offer 14-night Caribbean fly-cruise itineraries on Arvia from January 2023 to March 2023 and from October 2023 to March 2024.

ARVIA

EVERYTHING WE KNOW SO FAR

It's only a matter of months until Arvia hits the ocean waves and if you're as excited as us, you'll be counting down the days until you can hop on board. Until that day comes, we thought we'd share the inside scoop on everything we know about Arvia so far.

With a name meaning 'from the seashore', Arvia is the latest Excel class ship to be added to the P&O Cruises fleet. She's LNG powered like her sister ship Iona - and if you're wondering what that means, then wonder no more. LNG (or liquefied natural gas to give its full name) is billed as the cleanest, most efficient fuel system to be used on cruise ships to date. Like many operators, P&O Cruises is sailing towards a greener future, and using LNG is one step towards this.

And if you're not familiar with the P&O Cruises Excel class of ships? Well, they've been designed to deliver an immersive onboard experience.

"A what?" we hear you ask. For the straight-talkers among us, it's about inviting the outdoors in to give you a front-row seat to the scenery that surrounds you.

Arvia is your opportunity to 'see the world in widescreen'. Gigantic windows, a spectacular glass roof - there's no better way to take in the spotless skies and sparkling seas. Pull up a sun lounger, this is a journey you're not going to want to miss.

What's on board?

Arvia has more features than you can shake your keycard at. If you're part of the P&O Cruises loyal band of followers then you won't be disappointed - Headliners Theatre and The Crow's Nest are never far away, but Arvia wouldn't be worthy of its Excel class status without a few not-so-little extras thrown in.

SkyDome

If you've already stepped aboard Iona, then you can't have failed to notice her spectacular SkyDome. Arvia's is much the same, but with one major difference - it's retractable. Measuring a whopping 40.96 meters by 34.24 meters, this glass dome will be open or closed depending on what the weather has in store. By day, you can stare at clear blue skies as you chill out by the pool. Once the sun sets (which you will, of course, have watched from one of the many viewpoints on board), decks 16 and 17 come alive with evening entertainment. Aerial artists, cookery demos and DJ sets under the stars - SkyDome looks set to be the beating heart of Arvia.

Oasis Spa and Health Club

If the thought of all that activity already has you feeling like you need a lie down (we're right there with you), then Arvia's next feature will go down a real treat. From feel-good facials to steam rooms that will help you sweat all your troubles away, an onboard spa is a must-have for ultimate rest and relaxation.

Oasis Spa and Health Club makes a reappearance on this brand new ship, but this time with a twist. Enjoy two new VIP Couple Suites, each complete with a hammam and steam room, therapeutic cool room and restorative salt sauna. If you've never tried a Kneipp Walk before, then this is your chance. Never heard of it? Us, neither. But we're reliably informed it involves walking through hot and cold water treatments and a pebble foot massage. A treat, indeed.

Ocean Studios

Is there anything more relaxing than sitting back in front of a blockbuster flick on a sea day? With Ocean Studios, you'll get a proper big-screen experience from the comfort of your ship. The multi-screen boutique cinema has ultra-comfy seats and a myriad of movies to choose from, complete with all the popcorn and ice cream you could ever want.

If you'd rather sit under the SkyDome and soak up the rays while you munch your way through a selection of movies, the ever-popular SeaScreen has you covered.

Altitude Skywalk, Minigolf and Splash Valley

Just when you think you've seen it all on board a P&O Cruises ship, they go and knock it out of the park with this sky-high spectacle. If you're afraid of heights then look away now. Altitude Skywalk includes two courses scaling 54 metres above the ocean waves in the first P&O Cruises high ropes experience.

Rather keep your feet on the ground? pick up a putter and try your hand at nine holes of tropical-themed Altitude Minigolf on the level below. For the youngsters in your party, head to Altitude Splash Valley, a colourful outdoor play area with interactive water features. That should keep them happy for a good few hours!

Mission Control Escape Room

Thought you couldn't handle any more P&O Cruises firsts? Arvia will also feature a submarine-themed, multi-sensory escape room experience. With two storylines to choose from and a host of twists and turns to navigate, Mission Control is sure to be a sea day hit.

Food, glorious food

If you're anything like us, then you'll already be wondering what your dining options will be on board Arvia. As you'd expect from a ship of this magnitude, you're not going to go hungry. With no fewer than 20 different eateries to choose from, elasticated waistbands are highly advisable. There's all the P&O Cruises usuals you would expect, but also a few extraordinary dining experiences to tick off your list. Here are just a few.

Green & Co, featuring Mizuhana

Bonnie and Clyde, Sonny and Cher ... everyone loves a legendary pairing and Arvia is no exception. Head to deck 8 where you'll find Green & Co, home of exquisitely-crafted fish and plant-based dishes. But that's not all. There will also be a selection of sushi courtesy of Mizuhana, where you can see for yourself how the chefs roll. Literally. Soak up some drink-pairing advice to really complete your experience.

6th Street Diner

This eatery is, perhaps unsurprisingly, located on deck 6. Get your fill of Stateside bites, set to the sweet sounds of a jukebox. It's cool, it's laid back and we're pretty sure it's going to be lots of fun in what is a first for a P&O Cruises ship.

Roast in The Quays

Is there anything better than dining at sea? How about a Sunday roast at sea? We thought that might get your attention. Knowing what makes the British tick, P&O Cruises have brought one of our national dishes to the forefront of Arvia at this multi-venue dining piazza on deck 8. Form an orderly queue!

Introducing Arvia's Local Food Hero

P&O Cruises has made a name for itself as a real destination for foodies. Celebrity chef and TV cookery show favourite Shivi Ramoutar was recently named Arvia's Local Food Hero, following in the footsteps of legends such as Marco Pierre White and José Pizarro.

She'll be bringing some Caribbean flair on board as she showcases her exclusive collection of dishes at Taste 360 and The Beach House. Expect plenty of Caribbean fusion food and a whole calypso of culinary delights!

"I hope to make the dining experience on Arvia as much about limin' (the Caribbean art of relaxing with friends) as it is about the food. The dishes will be my interpretation of the Caribbean flavours which have influenced my life."

Where is Arvia going?

Haven't yet booked yourself on Arvia? Where have you been! She's already poised to take on a host of itineraries from December 2022 onwards, ranging from seven nights right up to 22 if you fancy trying a repositioning cruise.

Arvia's maiden voyage sets sail from Southampton on 9 December 2022, when guests will head down to the Iberian Peninsula in search of flamenco, fiestas and well-earned siestas. Madeira, Tenerife, Gran Canaria, Lanzarote, Cadiz and Lisbon are all on the itinerary for this inaugural cruise.

Then Arvia will be heading westwards to Barbados for the winter 2022/23 season. If you're lucky enough to be on board, the ports of call are Antigua, Barbados, Curaçao, Dominican Republic, Martinique, St. Kitts, St. Lucia and St. Maarten. New ship + winter sun = a total winner in our book!

Even further into the future (and who doesn't want a holiday or six to look forward to?), it's now possible to book Arvia as far ahead as 2024. More Caribbean and Transatlantic itineraries await, so if you want a countdown to beat all holiday countdowns, add Arvia to your list.

Drink up

Whether you're a kicking off your day with a speciality coffee kinda person, or prefer to sip on a chilled glass of sauvignon in the evening, you won't be short of places to drink on Arvia. P&O Cruises favourites such as Brodie's and The Glass House are still on board, but so are some new additions that will excite even the most ardent of fans.

Infinity and Panorama Pool and Bar

OK, so poolside bars are hardly the most revolutionary addition to a cruise ship. But, in another P&O Cruises first, Arvia has a swim-up bar. Yes, you read that right. Forget towelling yourself dry before you strut to the waiter to order your next cocktail, they'll do it right there for you.

Sunset Bar

If the thought of watching the sun go down with an expertly-crafted drink in your hand fills you with pure joy, we'd recommend taking a trip to Sunset Bar on deck 8. Super slick, chilled and kitted out with swinging seats? Yes, please.

Amber Lounge

Sophistication is the order of the day in Amber Lounge on deck 6. Expect exclusive cocktails served against the backdrop of the Grand Atrium and stunning views of the ocean, garnished with performances from aerial artists and live entertainment.

Anderson's Bar

Deck 6 is also home to Anderson's Bar. We hear you, you've been there before on other P&O Cruises ships and already tried every drink on the menu. What if we told you that in true Arvia style, this is Anderson's Bar on a completely different level? There's a boutique gin and rum distillery on board, where you can sample some tantalising tipples and even try your hand at becoming a mixologist.

At first glance, Arvia looks set to live up to the hype. She marks a step forward for P&O Cruises, while keeping her roots firmly inside everything we know and love about them.

If you want to be among the first on board - and who wouldn't be - Arvia will be launching in December 2022. Mediterranean and Caribbean itineraries are now available for the 2022/2023 season and beyond.

Holland America Line®
SAVOR THE JOURNEY

ON THE HORIZON

From the world's biggest cruise ship to the UK's first new cruise line in over a decade, 2022 has a lot lined up for cruise lovers. We take a look at just some of the new arrivals debuting this year and it's safe to say, there's something for everyone, from the small ship appreciators and intrepid expeditioners to the classic cruise enthusiasts.

AMBIENCE

It isn't every day a new cruise line emerges. In fact, Ambassador will be the UK's first for a decade. The debutante won't reinvent the wheel, instead taking a tried and tested method of classic cruising that combines premium value with a little extra pizzazz. Ambience will be the fleet flagship, or the first 'lady of the sea' in the words of Ambassador, and the appealingly mid-sized ship is poised to deliver the camaraderie we crave after time away from the high seas and all we love about it.

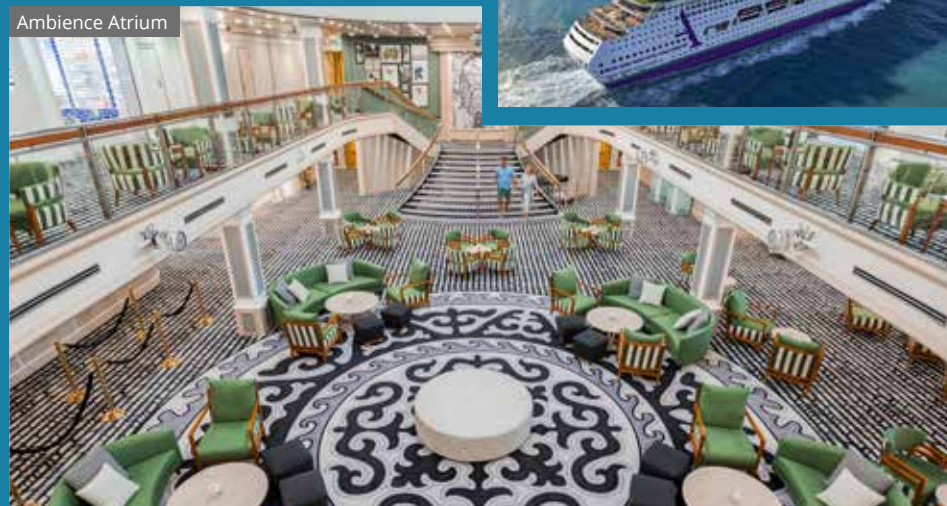

The dining and entertainment is delightfully British – think dinner at Borough Market and drinks at the Purple Turtle Pub, followed by late evening ensembles in The Palladium. If you're averse to oversized ships and like your time at sea to err on the side of traditional, Ambassador Cruise Line could be a real contender for your 2022 trip.

VALIANT & RESILIENT LADY

Virgin Voyages have proved naysayers wrong with their totally unique way to spend time at sea. This isn't traditional, it certainly isn't classic, and some might say it isn't for the light of heart, but if you're looking for a new take on ocean endeavours, nobody is doing it quite like Branson's ladies. Scarlet will be joined by Valiant and Resilient in 2022, an accumulation of extroverted ocean-goers resulting from pandemic pauses in construction. It's a lot of fabulousness for one year, but Virgin will be spreading the rockstar vibes near and far, with sailings spanning from the Mediterranean to the Caribbean.

Both new Virgin Voyages ships will follow in the well-heeled footsteps of Scarlet Lady in bringing an intoxicating mix of rest and rejuvenation spiked with less angelic evenings in venues like

The Manor, where Studio 54-inspired hedonism lives on. That said, there's nothing crass about cruising with Virgin Voyages; the food is truly delicious – comparable to any of the best you've had at sea, if even more inventive and imaginative – and the service is second to none, just as you'd expect from a travel industry veteran.

Wonder of the Seas

WONDER OF THE SEAS

Wonder of the Seas might be the fifth Oasis Class ship in the Royal Caribbean International fleet, but she's by no means a cookie-cutter copy of her fleetmates. Firstly, notably, Wonder will be the biggest ship in the world. Symphony of the Seas may have lost her crown, but the new Royal Caribbean ship will keep things in the family with her record-breaking stature.

So, what else can you expect that's a bit different? Wonder of the Seas shows the Oasis Class top deck almost entirely redesigned, with Wonder Playscape bringing outdoor fun for little ones and a whole new neighbourhood for Suite guests, complete with an elevated pool deck, Coastal Kitchen, a private restaurant, and an exclusive Suite Lounge. If you've toyed with blowing the budget on a suite stay at sea after a couple of years at home, this is the one you have been waiting for.

CELEBRITY BEYOND

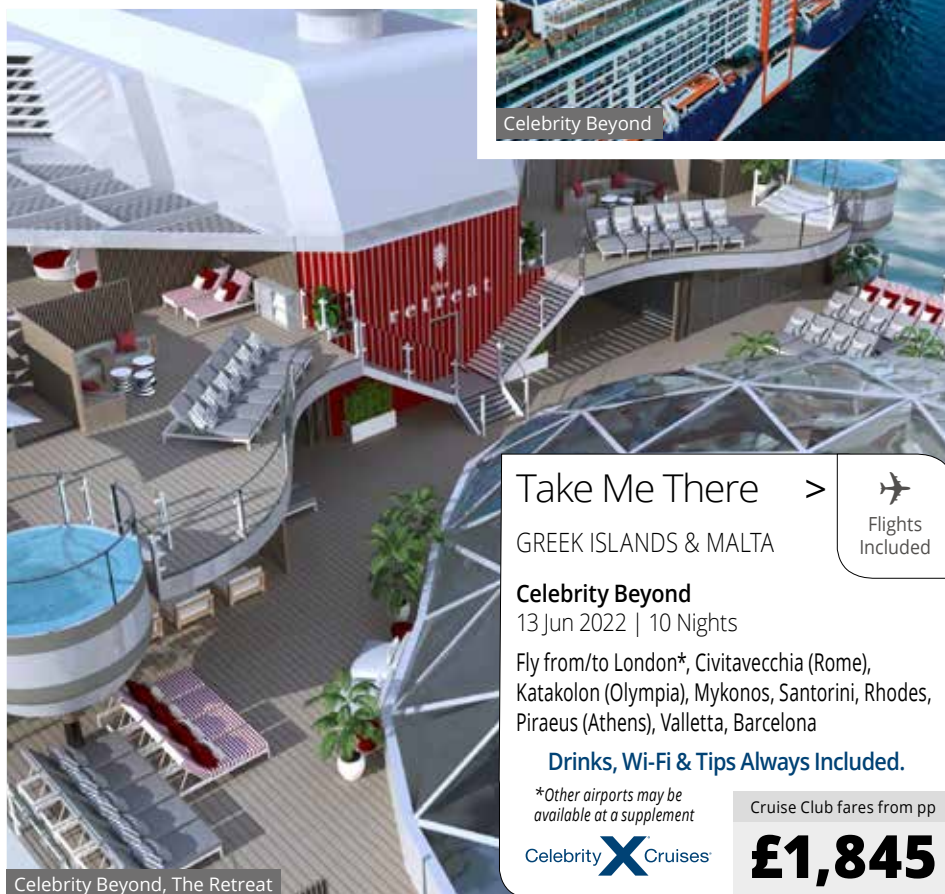

Every so often, a ship comes along with the power to change the industry. Celebrity Edge was that ship. The well-honed skills of world-renowned artisans Kelly Hoppen CBE, Nate Berkus and Tom Wright came together to deliver never-seen-before design features that totally reimagined the way we eat, drink, move, party and play at sea. The team returns in 2022 and this time they've had more say than ever in the way the ship looks and feels. Celebrity Beyond will see much of what you loved aboard Celebrity Edge, only this time the ship has been stretched, meaning a Sunset Bar twice the size, a Grand Plaza several storeys high and a main deck 40% bigger than those found on her sister ships.

Celebrity Beyond levels up on the stateroom front too, with the widest range of staterooms and suites in the entire Celebrity fleet. The beauty of this is something for all budgets, whether you're looking for an Edge Single Stateroom – there are double the amount on Celebrity Beyond - or an epic two-storey Edge Villa complete with your very own private plunge pool and room for the whole family. There'll be new dining experiences too, courtesy of Le Voyage by Daniel Boulud. The French chef is best known for Daniel, his Manhattan flagship restaurant holding two Michelin stars and responsible for seeing him voted as the best chef in the world by foodie organisation Les Grandes Tables du Monde just weeks ago.

Viking Octantis

VIKING OCTANTIS

Mysteriously little has been made about Viking's first foray into expedition cruising, but one thing we do know for certain is that the company that invented river cruising – and which brought a unique, revolutionised Scandi chic to ocean cruising – won't compromise style in search of adventure.

Viking are real world travellers, their itineraries tending to feature lesser visited locales, which bodes excitingly well for its expedition arm. Viking Octantis will transport just 378 guests to the most remote regions in the world, including Antarctica, the Americas and Canada, the Chilean Fjords and Patagonia, all while occupying a passenger-to-space ratio that puts the ship on a par with ultra-luxury vessels. Space and style will meet science and substance on Viking Octantis, with The Laboratory creating an area for guests to meet the ship's Resident Scientists and serving as base camp for field research projects ashore, something no other expedition cruise line has done with quite so much vigour.

Viking has carved a reputation as the thinking person's cruise and Viking Octantis looks set to cement that, but it'll appeal to design buffs and explorers too.

MSC WORLD EUROPA

MSC Cruises describes it as 'the future of cruising' and the first MSC World-class vessel looks set to be enough of a trailblazer to back up the claim. MSC World Europa will be LNG powered and heavy on the cutting-edge environmental technology that'll help move the cruise line towards its pledge to become a 'zero emissions operation' in the near future. But the futuristic approach lends itself to design elements too, the ship itself cutting a striking space-age silhouette from the outside and featuring sleek architectural elements within. A 104-metre-long Europa Promenade offers expanses of ocean view and features The Spiral, the longest slide at sea. Spanning 11 decks, it leaves stairs and elevators in its wake based on fun factor alone.

MSC World Europa has acres of space and architects have revelled in the fact, running wild with distinct design districts that range from tranquil adult-only havens and partially-open shopping promenades, to a family district that brings the countless kid-friendly facilities together. There'll be a world of experiences on offer, quite literally.

The FUTURE of TRAVEL

As a new year emerges, so too does a new wave of travel trends. We're already travelling more sustainably than ever and we're taking the slow road, extending shorter sojourns with pre- and post-cruise stays, and even rail journeys. We're getting the whole family together for multi-generational trips and we're spending more time in destinations, shunning whistle stops for overnight stays and land tours that get under the skin of a country, its cultures and the lives of its locals. But what else does the future hold for travel? We take a look.

Pressing pause with restorative wellness

The pandemic left us with little choice but to slow down, while adapting post-pandemic has left many of us feeling like we may just burn out. The result is a renewed focus on wellness and a realisation that standing still in an ever-moving world – pressing pause – isn't just a luxury, but a necessity.

This translates into travel, too. Cruise lines have never made wellness such high priority. Spas and gyms have been around at sea since the '80s, but cruise lines are going beyond saunas, steam rooms and step classes. Viking's ocean ships are serene havens of age-old Nordic wellness rituals and Scenic have introduced 'halotherapy' lounges to eight of their 12 river ships, designed to boost the immune system, aid respiratory health and ease skin conditions. Virgin Voyages debuted a spa akin to land-based resorts, encompassing rest and rejuvenation rounded off with body and soul-cleansing green juices.

And were that not enough wellness, Blue World Voyages will soon become the first-ever cruise line to be 100% focused on health and wellness. Launching in 2023, its yacht-like first ship will feature a recovery-based 'medical wellness and physical therapy' spa occupying a whole deck, with another reserved for the fitness centre. All excursions will focus on moving the body in some way, from restorative yoga to hikes and bike rides that'll give the heart a workout.

Blue World Voyages will soon become the first-ever cruise line to be 100% focused on health and wellness.

The rise of the World Cruise

Unpack once, see the world. It's this recipe for adventure and for ticking off your bucket list that has seen world cruises become one of life's most coveted travel experiences since the day Cunard debuted that first itinerary way back in 1922. You can see more on a world cruise spanning a hundred or so days than you can see in 10 or 20 years' worth of holidays, all the while with a camaraderie at sea that makes the bits in between as much a part of it as the beach stops and city sights.

World voyages were always popular, but now they sell-out in minutes or hours, not days. Regent Seven Seas Cruises sold out of their 2024 World Cruise in 90 minutes. This isn't a spur of the moment holiday. After all, some voyages edge towards 180 days at sea; it is a considerable trip and one that comes with some serious financial consideration. Most book two years in advance and more than ever are joining the queue to do so.

Regent Seven Seas Explorer

Galapagos Islands

Expeditions where once there were holidays

Once upon a time, holidays were for decamping to deck chairs and loungers, holiday read and cocktail in hand with little inclination for movement. Perhaps you'd find your favourite beach, or stroll the flagstones of European cities without a destination in mind, aside from somewhere for a lengthy lunch. But times they are a changing. In recent years, expedition cruising has exploded in popularity, and in future years its set to go from strength to strength. Cruise lines have had expedition-specific ships on the order books of shipyards for several years now, Crystal, Seabourn and Viking just three of those who have recently or will soon launch the adventure seekers.

At present, expedition cruises have steered towards the Poles, but the future will see more warm water versions to those bits of the world that are notoriously hard to reach. Having conquered expedition cruising in Norway and the Arctic, Hurtigruten recently introduced the Galapagos Archipelago and Africa to its roster. It's a forward plan that doesn't just promise growth for the sector, but also means treasured spots like the Arctic and Antarctica don't risk becoming overcrowded.

But why an expedition cruise? Isn't trekking and climbing in and out of Zodiacs a lot like hard work in the name of a holiday? Some might say, but when you consider the butler service on Silver Origin or the helicopters poised on the decks of Crystal Endeavour or Scenic Eclipse, there's a rugged-meets-refined category emerging that means the luxury traveller with a voracious appetite for an adventure no longer has to compromise.

Saudi Arabia

Introducing the world to Saudi Arabia

Saudi Arabia is a country that until very recently remained unexplored by holidaymakers. The tourist visa only came into effect a couple of years ago and it's now a country that can't wait to throw its doors open to overseas travellers. There's something exciting about setting foot in a new country, but one that's remained something of an enigma for so long? Even better.

There's no shortage of grand plans in the pipeline to make this happen. Among them is Vision 2030, a major strategy that's been designed to boost the region's economy and change global perceptions. Cruise Saudi are also on board, working closely with the nation's tourist agency to well and truly put the destination on the cruising map. For Saudis, enticing tourists is about more than just generating income - it's about bringing new culture, new perspective, and ultimately new opportunities to the locals.

What can we expect from Saudi Arabia? Like many of its counterparts on the Arabian Peninsula, anticipate a country that's steeped in history and tradition, with rolling deserts, fragrant cuisine and spectacular architecture.

There might still be some way to go, but Saudi Arabia has all the makings of an exciting new destination and will be one to watch in 2022 and beyond.

HOURS IN TENERIFE

Temperatures rarely dip below 20°C, it's on the same latitude as Florida and is home to the world's third-highest volcano - it's no surprise that Tenerife is hot property for travellers. Side-step the tourist hotspots and you'll find an island that's brimming with culture, gastronomy and striking scenery. The largest of the Canaries reels in seafood lovers, leaves stargazers well, starstruck, and as for wine buffs ... you're about to find out.

Las Teresitas Beach Tenerife

Playa de Las Teresitas

Candelaria Town

DO THIS

Puerto de la Cruz, Tenerife

You'll find it almost impossible not to stumble upon Tenerife's capital Santa Cruz. The city has an infectious energy about it, providing the perfect contrast to some of the more tranquil corners of the island.

Highlights include the Auditorio de Tenerife, a far-from-unassuming cultural space that stands proudly in the port. With 23,000 square metres of architectural excellence to marvel at, it's well worth a quick stop-off. There are guided tours if you really want to get under the skin of this modern masterpiece, but a couple of snaps outside should do the trick. Whatever you do, just don't compare it to the Sydney Opera House.

Make time to saunter down the Santa Cruz Rambla. While it might not be as brazen as its Barcelonian counterpart, this tree-flanked walkway is punctuated with restaurants and cafes and is a great place to while away an hour or so. It's also the perfect excuse to get some much-needed shade from the searing Mediterranean sun during the hottest months of the year.

If Santa Cruz doesn't whisk you off your feet, Teide National Park certainly will. Aside from the small matter of a volcano, take one slight step into this lunar-like landscape and you'll feel light-years away from the rest of the island. The quickest way to reach the summit is by cable car. In just eight minutes you'll feel like you're on top of the world, and towering at 3,555 metres above sea level, you won't be far off. Here you'll find the petrified lava and kooky rock formations that provided the backdrop for Clash of the Titans - and if it's good enough for Hollywood, then it's good enough for us.

Time it right and ascend the peak just before sunset for an experience like no other. Sit back amid the deafening silence as the inky hues of the night sky take hold - pink, red, purple, it's a colour palette that only Mother Nature knows how to work with.

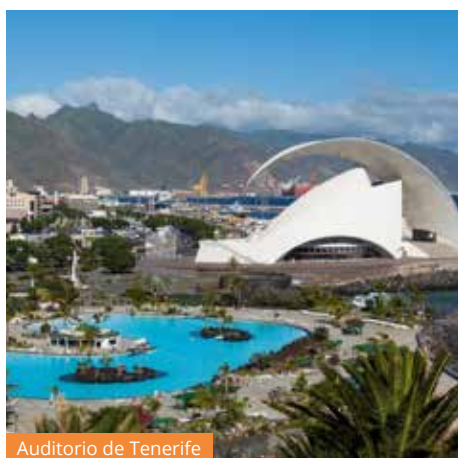

Once you've been treated to this epic display, it's time for a spot of stargazing. Tenerife's clean air, clear skies and high altitude provide the perfect recipe of conditions for letting the night sky really show off.

No fewer than 83 of the 88 officially-recognised constellations can be seen from Mount Teide - that's one to put in your memory bank for the next time you hit the pub quiz. If you'd rather stick to scoping out The Plough and The Big Dipper, that's fine by us. Grab yourself a guide if you really want to come away feeling like you've done Sir Patrick Moore proud.

While you won't be short of seafood stop-offs during your time in Tenerife, there are few as stunning as La Caleta.

Set aside those preconceptions of tattered tourist menus touting egg and chips. Tenerife has seriously upped its gastronomic game, and you're invited to pull up a chair.

Canarian food is as welcoming and authentic as its inhabitants. The island's temperate climate makes for some pretty spectacular growing conditions - from papaya to pineapple, avocado to kidney beans, Tenerife eats fresh and it eats well. And providing you know where to head, you're guaranteed a feast for the senses.

While you won't be short of seafood stop-offs during your time in Tenerife, there are few as stunning as La Caleta. It's cool, relaxed and has some of the best views on the island - oh, and did we mention it's made a name for itself as one of Tenerife's foodie hotspots? Think of La Caleta as the quiet, more reserved cousin of Santa Cruz. Framed by rocky outcrops and secluded bays, it's the perfect place to enjoy the morsels of local loveliness that are chipirones and lapas (that's baby squid and limpets, in case you were wondering). Enjoy them a la plancha or cooked to perfection in a Canary Islands paella.

DRINK UP

Tenerife Wine Cellar

No gastronomic adventure to Tenerife is complete without a trip to a guachinche, a modest, low-key establishment serving local wine that's usually been concocted on the premises. Get any thoughts of amateur chemistry sets and demijohns out of your mind - the Canarians really know what they're doing, and guachinches are testament to this.

You'll find most guachinches in the wine-growing regions in north Tenerife, making the likes of Tegueste, Los Realejos and Santa Ursula must-have additions to your itinerary. Each one can only open for a maximum of four months a year - think of them like pop-up taverns. Most will also serve a limited food menu to help you soak up the vino.

Another local tipple you'll have to try is barraquito. Billed as the most famous coffee in Tenerife, it's a sumptuous combination of layered condensed and steamed milk, Licor 43 and espresso. There's even an alcohol-free variation if your guachinche expedition has left you a little worse for wear.

FRED. OLSEN'S

• BEEF WELLINGTON •

This show-stopping dish from Fred. Olsen is a staple of any dinner party repertoire. Served with a rich Madeira gravy, you'll run the risk of your guests wanting to dine at your place time and time again.

INGREDIENTS

Serves 6

For the beef wellington:

- > 1kg of beef tenderloin
- > Ready-rolled puff pastry
- > Egg wash

For the mushroom duxelle:

- > 480g button mushrooms
- > 180g chicken liver pâté
- > 75g shallots
- > 50g butter

For the Madeira gravy:

- > 360ml beef gravy
- > 120ml Madeira sherry wine
- > 500g finely chopped shallots
- > 3-4 cloves of finely chopped garlic
- > 40g diced butter
- > A few sprigs of thyme

METHOD

To make the beef wellington:

- > Trim and sear the beef tenderloin on all sides. Leave to cool.
- > Clean the mushrooms and finely chop with the shallots in a food processor.
- > Melt the butter in a frying pan and add the mushrooms and shallots. Cook until the liquid has evaporated and the mixture appears dry.
- > Add the chicken liver pâté and season with salt and pepper before leaving to cool.
- > Roll out the pastry into a rectangle and place half the mushroom duxelle down the middle, leaving a border on each side.
- > Place the beef tenderloin on top and cover with the rest of the mixture.
- > Brush the pastry border with a beaten egg and fold over the sides to encase the beef. Add the remainder of the egg wash to the top.
- > Allow to chill in the fridge for an hour before cooking.
- > Heat the oven to 210°C and bake for 40 minutes if you like your beef medium. Leave it a little longer if you prefer well-done.
- > Once cooked, cut open the end of the beef wellington to allow the steam to escape. This will avoid the pastry going soggy.

- > Leave to rest for 10 minutes before carving.

To make the Madeira gravy:

- > Add the shallots and garlic to a large pan on a medium heat with the butter and thyme. Cook until translucent.
- > Add the Madeira sherry wine and cook off the alcohol. Pour in the beef gravy and simmer for around 20 minutes, or until you reach your desired consistency.
- > Blend and pass through a sieve or leave it chunky - it's up to you!

Sognefjord is the longest and deepest of the Norwegian Fjords. Known as 'King of the Fjords', the UNESCO World Heritage-listed site stretches 204 kilometres from the coast just north of Bergen. The landscape is renowned for its glassy emerald green waters, created by melting water that's cascaded down from surrounding glaciers and snow.
