The exciting addition of this stylish choice ensures your accommodation will match your experience of our Excel class ships, living up to expectations and the high standard set everywhere else on board.

As a Conservatory Mini-suite guest, you'll have access to priority boarding so you'll feel like a VIP from the moment you arrive at the terminal. You'll find a chilled bottle of bubbly, chocolates, water from The Whent and fresh fruit waiting to welcome you.

Your well-lit en-suite bathroom is stocked with indulgent toiletries and products from The White Company that will leave you feeling fresh and smelling wonderful after every shower. You'll have a hairdryer and large mirror at the vanity / writing desk – ideal for getting ready for Celebration Nights or those special evening dinners.

Many of Iona's guests have commented on the really comfortable beds – and Arvia is just as comfy for a great night's rest after all the excitement of your days on board and adventures ashore.

If you have kids or extra guests sharing, the additional beds will be converted by your daily cabin steward, who'll come and go as if by magic, setting up and putting the beds away for you. Simply leave your 'Gone exploring' sign on the door to let them know your room is ready to be made up.

There are so many ways to take time out on board Arvia and Iona. There's the very latest in indulgent spa experiences, with a range of health and beauty treatments. Or you may prefer to unwind in a more active way with a dance class, swim or gym session. Sometimes, you might feel like you want to catch your breath and your air-conditioned Conservatory Mini-suite is the perfect place to do just that.

Simply step inside your spacious Conservatory Mini-suite and enjoy peace and privacy in comfort, including British plug sockets and your own tea and coffee-making facilities. Round-the-clock room service is available too. Your in-cabin TV offers hundreds of films and channels, with categories suitable for all ages and tastes so you'll always find something to suit your mood.

A P&O Cruises Conservatory Mini-suite offers great flexibility and the opportunity to create a distinctive relaxation and social space. Open up the floor-to-ceiling glass doors to maximise every inch of the innovative conservatory area.

On sea days, ocean views are all yours. Whether you're taking in the whitewashed houses of a Mediterranean hilltop or the wild, tumbling waterfalls of the Norwegian Fjords, you'll see it all from the comfort of your own private balcony. It's the perfect spot for a snooze or sunbathing.

You can still enjoy the great views when you seek some shade just inside the cosy conservatory area. Sit and read or write at the table provided, or lie back on the sofa among the comfy cushions and chill. You'll also have an atlas, binoculars, a dressing gown and slippers in your Conservatory Mini-suite. With all these little luxuries, don't forget to explore and enjoy the rest of the ship!

Here are the holidays waiting to be discovered

Our newest ship, Arvia, will be soaking up the sunshine all year round with Caribbean fly-cruise holidays and Mediterranean adventures sailing from Southampton. Kicking off her Caribbean fly-cruise season in January 2023, she'll take you to the likes of Antigua, Barbados, Martinique, St Kitts, St Lucia and St Maarten, and she'll also make a fleet maiden call to La Romana in the Dominican Republic.

In the summer, Arvia's all about the Med, exploring stellar cities in Spain, France and Italy.

Iona, P&O Cruises first Excel class ship, sails to the stunning Norwegian Fjords from April to September, where kayaking, glacier hikes and helicopter flights are just some of the adventures you might like to try. For the rest of the year, sunny Spain, Portugal and the Canary Islands, as well as exciting Northern European City Escapes, are yours for the taking.

WELCOME

After months of build-up, the new P&O Cruises ship Arvia recently arrived in her home port of Southampton. I'm sure many of you are as keen to sail on this incredible ship as we are, so to whet your appetite, we run through some of the never-before-seen features you can expect to find on board.

We're kick-starting the new year with a main feature that focuses on the value of cruising. Whether you're an avid cruiser or have yet to try a holiday at sea, I'm sure you'll agree that this article makes a compelling case for this type of getaway over a land-based adventure. Take a look and see if we can convince you!

Our interview for this issue is with Jo Rzymowska, EMEA Vice-President and Managing Director for Celebrity Cruises. The past 12 months have marked an exciting time for the cruise line, so read on to find out what else is in store for Celebrity, and her predictions for the wider travel industry.

As usual, members of our team have been out and about experiencing just some of the products we offer. Find out what we thought of the Princess Cruises MedallionClass technology, and discover our Luxury Marketing Executive Jade's highlights of sailing with Regent Seven Seas Cruises.

In our regular features, we show you how to spend 36 Hours in Budapest; a firm favourite river cruising destination, we reveal some of the standout sights along the Mekong and if you need some destination inspiration, the incredible site of Machu Picchu should be on your bucket list.

I hope you enjoy reading.

Yours sincerely

MACHU PICCHU

SQUATTED AMONG the chiselled Andes, Machu Picchu is veiled in a mystery that lay undiscovered until a little over a century ago. These days, the Incan citadel has manifested itself as a must-see for the intrepid traveller, who, once level with the lush forest that swaddles the unmistakable peaks, is afforded picture-perfect panoramas that must be seen to be believed.

CARNIVAL VENEZIA PROMISES 'BEAUTIFUL AND UNIQUE SPACES'

THE LATEST SHIP to join Carnival Cruise Line, Carnival Venezia, will feature a number of "beautiful and unique spaces" that have never been seen before across the fleet. The ship is due to set sail for the first time in June 2023 and will be inspired by Italian architecture, coupled with just some of the highlights that returning passengers know and love.

Many of the outdoor spaces are reminiscent of Italian design, with a Lido deck modelled on the country's Riviera. It also comes complete with a retractable roof that will enable guests to make the most of the area in which they are sailing, regardless of what the weather might have in store.

The Terrazza stateroom concept is also being introduced. Similar to the Havana staterooms on other Carnival ships, these cabins will have access to an exclusive space - Terrazza Carnevale - an outdoor decked area with two whirlpools, a bar and lounge.

Brand-new entertainment options on board Carnival Venezia include a drinks reception held in true Venetian style, where live music fills the atrium and cast members dress in Venetian costumes.

Carnival Venezia is due to sail from New York all-year round, where she will visit 25 ports across 14 different countries.

TIME OUT NAMED AS P&O CRUISES NEW EXPLORATION PARTNER

TIME OUT will provide exclusive travel content for P&O Cruises, as the company is named the cruise line's new exploration partner. A team of journalists will create bespoke content that includes suggestions on the best things to do, see and eat in each destination. This is designed to inspire and enrich the experience of existing guests and connect P&O Cruises with Time Out's existing audience of avid travellers. It will be phased in over the course of 2023.

Gareth Thomas, Time Out Media's Director of Strategic Client Partnerships, explained how the team will create new destination insights that will then be made available to guests when they get on board.

"Our trusted expert journalists create content that helps P&O Cruises holidaymakers discover and explore their destinations, connecting with places and really getting to know the local people, culture and food. The partnership is a great testament to our inspirational content, valuable audience and trusted brand," he added.

Guests will be able to access a digital content hub on Time Out which features quizzes and local guides. This will also provide insider secrets for P&O Cruises destinations and include an interactive 'Scrap the Tourist Trap' quiz, enabling cruisers to build a personalised bucket list of things to do while they are in each destination.

SHE'S HERE!

ARVIA ARRIVES IN SOUTHAMPTON

AFTER MONTHS (or should that be years?) of anticipation, the new P&O Cruises ship Arvia has officially arrived. And oh, what a journey it has been!

From the glitzy Grand Atrium to the magnificent SkyDome, Arvia came together piece by piece in spectacular fashion at the Meyer Werft shipyard in Papenburg, Germany.

She was then officially handed over to P&O Cruises in Bremerhaven where, as hands were shaken and documents signed, the brand-new ship became destined for British shores. She arrived on 18 December 2022, and to see the finished result for the first time as she glided into Southampton was nothing short of remarkable.

WELCOME HOME

Arvia is hailed as the epitome of a sunshine ship, so her appearance on a dreary and drizzly December day hardly seemed in her DNA. However, as she sliced through the winter chill, she couldn't have looked more at home or received a warmer welcome; Southampton is, after all, Arvia's home port, and one she'll frequently be visiting when she's not sunning herself on those Caribbean itineraries.

Although the weather may have left a lot to be desired, it didn't stop spectators from descending in their droves along Arvia's route as she entered the Solent. Viewpoints in Portsmouth, Gosport and the Isle of Wight were lined with eagle-eyed spectators, keen to witness the historic moment. And it wasn't just members of the public who were eager to revel in the atmosphere. Crew members gathered on Arvia's open deck to celebrate, and the Bridge crew on board Saga's Spirit of Discovery couldn't help but gather for what was sure to be an epic view of the new P&O Cruises ship as she paraded past.

As Arvia sidled closer to the Ocean Cruise Terminal, some of the traditions we know and love when welcoming a new ship started to take hold. She sounded her horn as she passed key points along her route, and was greeted by a customary water salute as she entered Southampton Water. Trailed by a pilot boat at the stern firing a water cannon metres into the sky - and another at the bow - the sunshine ship arrived with all the fanfare she deserved.

Barbados

FAMILY VALUES

It's been a little over two years since Arvia's sister ship Iona joined the P&O Cruises family and, not one to be outdone by her sibling, the first glimpses of Arvia certainly didn't disappoint.

Her traditional P&O Cruises blue and red livery and signature name on the aft pierced through the grey skies of Southampton, conjuring a striking (if a little hazy) silhouette as she made her debut. There's no mistaking the family resemblance to her sister, and if you're game for a round of spot the difference, you may have your work cut out. But don't let first impressions deceive you; despite Arvia's near-identical construction, there are some features that give the two ships their distinct personalities ... more on that later.

As if Arvia's arrival couldn't be any more historic - she's the biggest ship ever built for the British market, no less - it also marked a special occasion for Captain Robert Camby. Not only was he given the honour of taking the helm of this brand-new ship, but, in the most elaborate gift to end all gifts, he navigated her safely into her home port for the first time on his birthday.

But this is only the beginning. Keep an eye on future editions of Into the Blue where we'll be experiencing everything Arvia has to offer for ourselves. In the meantime, all that's left to say is...

Welcome to the fleet, Arvia!

Arvia Infinity Pool and Bar

ARVIA: P&O CRUISES FIRSTS

THINK YOU'VE SEEN EVERYTHING there is to see on board a P&O Cruises ship? Think again. Arvia is a trailblazer in more ways than one, and as she sets sail on her inaugural season, we thought we'd take a closer look at some of her headline-grabbing features.

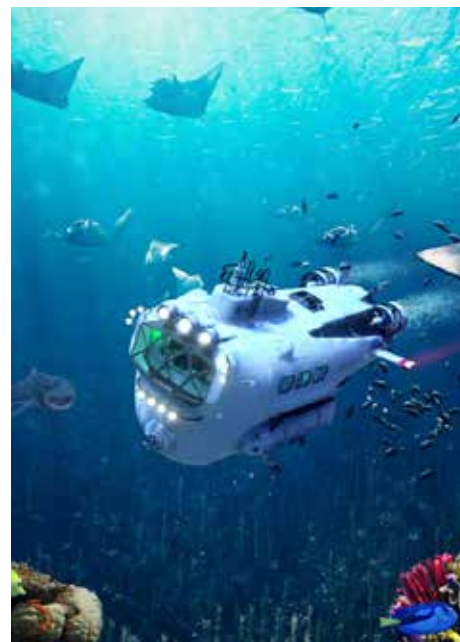

Retractable SkyDome

We get it, you've already seen the SkyDome on board Iona and we're pretty impressed. Not one to be outdone by her sister, Arvia's comes with the added benefit of being fully retractable, which will come in pretty handy indeed as she relocates to those Caribbean climes. Pass us a pina colada...

Altitude

Altitude on Arvia promises a trio of adventures, but it's the Skywalk that has really caught our attention. Sure, the Mini Golf and Splash Valley are surefire hits for all the family, but there's something quite exhilarating (or terrifying, depending on your penchant for heights) about attempting a high ropes experience 54 metres in the air. Take in the views or simply focus your efforts on making it to the bottom, this is sure to be one for the memory books.

Mission Control

While you won't be short of entertainment options on board Arvia, Mission Control presents something a little out of the ordinary. Trade your voyage above the ocean waves for a multimedia experience beneath them in the first P&O Cruises escape room. Groups of up to 10 people can get involved, and there's even an option for the younger members of your family.

Greatest Days: The Take That Musical

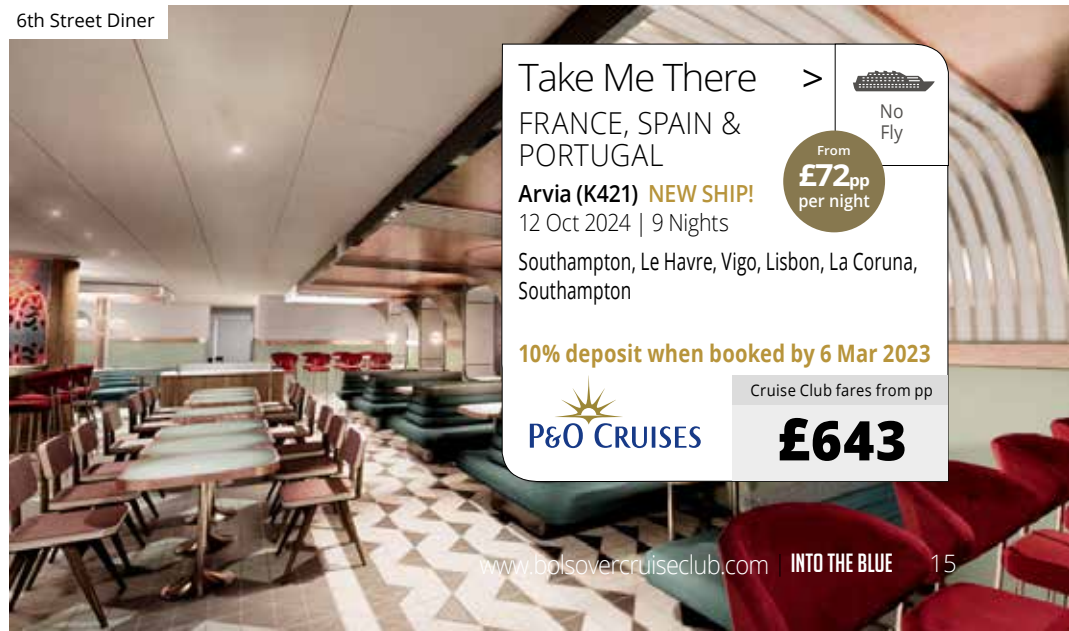

The Headliners Theatre Company always bring energy in abundance when they hit the stage on any P&O Cruises ship, and they'll be sure to shine when they take on a brand-new musical for Arvia. Greatest Days - The Take That Musical has been put together by none other than Tim Firth and is guaranteed to deliver an experience you'll never forget. Proving that Arvia really does rule the world when it comes to quality entertainment, this is the only place on the planet you'll be able to see this West End-inspired production.

Dining options

What would a new ship be without an array of new food to try? Whatever your craving might be, Arvia has all bases covered. Green & Co feat. Mizuhana delivers fish and plant-based dishes alongside exquisite sushi in a combination we never knew we needed but cannot wait to try. Meanwhile, 6th Street Diner is the home to freakshakes and dishes inspired by the good ol' US of A, as Roast in the Quays pays homage to the Sunday Roast. Elasticated waistbands at the ready!

6th Street Diner

Shore excursions

It's not only Arvia's on board adventures that are worth a mention, as P&O Cruises will also be offering some new and pretty unforgettable shore excursions whilst docked in the Caribbean. Whether you want to tear up the streets of St. Lucia on a big-wheel electric scooter, get crafty making batik in St. Kitts, or sample the signature tipples of Barbados, there's an option to do just that.

Barbados naming ceremony

Speaking of Barbados, P&O Cruises will be lapping up the island's trademark welcoming hospitality for Arvia's naming ceremony. For the first time ever, the cruise line will officially inaugurate its latest ship away from home shores, and while the exact details are still under wraps, we've been promised a party like no other. Make sure you add 16 March 2023 to your diary, as the star-studded event is due to be live-streamed across the globe.

MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

Revealing the true value of a cruise holiday

WATCHING THE PENNIES, tightening the purse strings - whichever cliché you choose, we're all a little more eagle-eyed than usual when it comes to money matters. But with the need to holiday perhaps even greater than ever, how do you find a getaway that satisfies your sense of wanderlust without breaking the bank?

Fear not, because all things considered, cruising is as much a cost-effective way to holiday as it has always been. Let us deconstruct everything you know and love about cruising, before reaching the inevitable conclusion that it does, in fact, offer very good value indeed.

Altitude, P&O Cruises Arvia

Main dining room, P&O Cruises Iona

Jacuzzi, P&O Cruises Iona

On the 'Take Me Theres' and Cruise & Stay packages in this issue, we've calculated the cost of the holiday on a per person, per night basis to help you see the value it really delivers.

We'll begin by figuring out exactly what it is we mean by 'value'. Not ones to rely on the Oxford English Dictionary for these things, we'll work on the assumption that when it comes to a cruise, value is all about securing a holiday that delivers everything you want and need at a fair price. Your budget will also play a big part; it might be that you've set a certain amount aside for a family holiday, or squirrelled away savings for a trip of a lifetime. Either way, this will help establish how much you're willing to spend.

Let's get the next obvious question out of the way - what is the average cost of a cruise? Brace yourself for a phrase we're going to rely a lot on here: it depends. An unhelpful response maybe, but hear us out. There are so many different cruise lines out there, from ocean to river, family-friendly to adults-only, that it just isn't possible or practical to compare every single one on a like-for-like basis. A two-week, six-star cruise to the Maldives, will (perhaps unsurprisingly) cost much more than a three-night short break to Bruges, making blanket comparisons little-to-no use to anyone.

OK, we know what you're thinking - in that case, how exactly do you weigh up how much value a cruise really delivers? Time to dig out your calculator, as a good place to start is to look at the price of a cruise based on the cost per person, per night. If you bear in mind that a budget hotel room can easily set you back £60 a night minus any food and drink (or, let's face it, luxury), the overall cost of a cruise represents pretty good value when you do a spot of number crunching. With so much included in the fare, it can often turn out to be a no-brainer over a land-based holiday.

Maldives hut

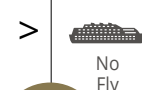

Bruges at sunrise

Travel from A to B (and beyond)

This might not come as a surprise, but the very least you can expect from a cruise holiday is that your sea-based transportation will be covered. As soon as you step on board, you'll be chauffeured by your captain across countless destinations, depending on what your itinerary dictates. Imagine if you set off across the Mediterranean on a journey that covers as many miles as a week-long cruise. Logistical headaches aside, you'd soon find your fuel costs racking up - and don't get us started on how to find a half-decent hotel at every location. Gone are the days when globetrotting involved taking a 'gap year' and scraping together every last shrapnel of your savings; cruising invites you to leave your backpack, interailing pass and hitchhiking etiquette at home and embrace the world with nothing short of convenience and, all things considered, value for money.

Set off in style

Granted, you still need to make your way to the cruise terminal, but you do have options if you'd rather make sure this is included in the upfront cost of your holiday. A number of cruise lines offer a door-to-door service for your entire journey, including the likes of Saga and Silversea. If you'd rather go it alone, an ever-growing number of regional departure ports are becoming available across the UK, making it even simpler to get your holiday started. Whether it's easy for you to get to Edinburgh, you're a limp away from Liverpool or within touching distance of Tilbury, look at a regional departure to keep your travel time and costs to a minimum. If you've got more time on your hands - or simply aren't keen on flying - then sailing from the UK can also transport you to those far-flung destinations you've always wanted to visit.

Queen Mary 2 at Southampton Port

Come fly with me

Fly-cruises can prove a cost-effective choice if your travel ambitions take you a little further afield, or you're limited for time. You won't be surprised to learn that this option also represents good value, as most cruise lines, including P&O Cruises, will transfer you to and from the airport to the ship if you have booked flights as part of your package. Alas, this means that navigating the complexities of an alien public transport system or negotiating a taxi fare in your best broken Spanish are a thing of the past.

Balcony cabin on P&O Cruises Iona

Home comforts

Now for the fun part - exploring what's on board! The good news is the inclusions don't stop there and, without running the risk of stating the obvious, you are guaranteed to have somewhere to rest your head for the duration of the cruise. Regardless of whether your cruise line refers to it as a cabin, suite or stateroom, your home from home will offer all the perks of a land-based holiday with the added benefit of not having to pack and unpack from one destination to the next. Your accommodation can be as affordable or exquisite as your budget allows, and the very least you can expect is a daily visit from your cabin steward and, if you're really lucky, a towel animal or two.

Cheap as chips?

Even on board the smallest of ships, cruise fare is included in, well, the cruise fare. Whether you're a gorge yourself on the buffet type or nothing less than starched napkins and silverware will do, we're confident in saying that every taste bud will be catered for. And the quality is not to be underestimated; it's not uncommon to find steak, seafood and other delicacies on the nightly menu, all of which would cost you a fair fortune back home. If you're keeping an eye on the coffers then stick to the included choices on your cruise, but if you'd rather push the boat out (pun intended) you can always pay a small supplement to upgrade to a speciality restaurant.

Let them entertain you

Most cruise lines will offer at least one evening entertainment option and on larger ships, it's not uncommon for a big-production show to be held every night. Then there's the other choices to consider; from live music in the lounges to expert talks and even feature film showings, the cost of these would soon rack up on a land-based break.

Crowd pleasers

Speaking of tastes, pandering to individual likes and dislikes can be nothing short of a nightmare when it comes to planning a holiday. From adrenaline junkies to those who want to do as little as possible, it can be difficult to tailor a getaway that suits all involved. Although not every activity on every cruise ship will be included in the fare, there are usually a fair few options if you don't want to spend a single penny (or cent) while you're out at sea. Dance classes, quizzes, kids' clubs, karaoke, it's not an overstatement to say there is something for everyone on a cruise. And if you'd rather do absolutely nothing? There's an option for that, too. Take up residence on a sun lounger if the weather permits, or seek sanctuary in a secluded corner - it is your holiday, after all.

FlowRider, Royal Caribbean's Anthem of the Seas

Little extras

A round of ice cream and a trip to the nearby waterpark may seem like relatively small expenses while you're on holiday, but they can soon start to add up. And guess what? On many cruises, they're included. The same goes for taking a dip in the pool or hitting the gym, and the best part is you don't have to go far to find them. Do some thorough research before you sail - or pick the brains of one of our Cruise Experts - if you're keen to know the ins and outs of what's included.

The whole package?

One of the biggest questions cruisers have is whether extra packages are really worth it, with drinks and Wi-Fi among the most common add-ons. Our answer? Well, you guessed it ... it depends.

Most cruise lines have their own all-inclusive offering, whether it's Princess Plus or Princess Premier from Princess Cruises, Celebrity's All-Included package or Holland America's Have It All promotion. Without wanting to sound like a broken record, looking closely at the numbers will pay off in the long run. If your usual drink choices are limited to a couple of cups of steaming coffee as a pick-me-up throughout the day, and maybe a cheeky gin and tonic as a nightcap, a drinks package is unlikely to be worth it. If you want the freedom and flexibility of being able to drink what you want, when you want, then that's a whole different story.

The same goes for Wi-Fi. For some, being out on the ocean waves without a sniff of an internet connection offers absolute bliss, while for others, it's just too alien-a concept to contend with. Our best advice? Weigh up the value to you personally and go from there.

AN INSIDE LOOK AT PRINCESS CRUISES MEDALLIONCLASS

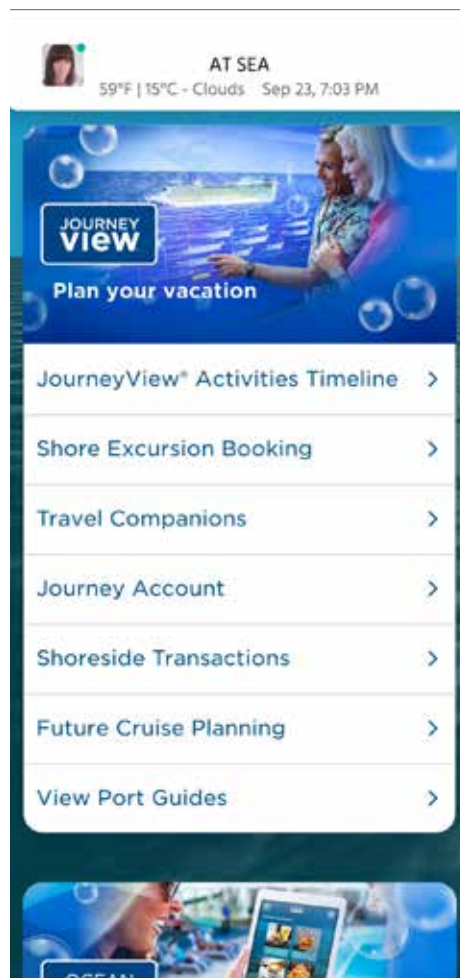

WHEN PRINCESS CRUISES launched their MedallionClass ships back in 2017, the cruise line promised to bring never-before-seen features to the ocean waves. We recently judged the technology for ourselves on board Emerald Princess, one of the fleet's growing number of MedallionClass ships. Here's how it fared.

WHAT IS MEDALLIONCLASS?

Princess Cruises bills its MedallionClass ships as offering "the ultimate in effortless, personalised cruising", and the entire experience begins with your Medallion. This ten-pence-sized wearable device is the key to unlocking your time on board (literally at times, but more on that later).

Upon embarkation, you will be given a rather trendy (or not) lanyard from which to hang your Medallion, but there's always the option to upgrade to a watch strap or other wearable if you're particularly fashion conscious.

Once you're armed with your Medallion, it's time for the real fun to begin. This was our first experience of a MedallionClass ship and now it's hard to imagine embarking on a Princess Cruises holiday without it.

Sabatini's Italian Restaurant,
Emerald Princess

Emerald Princess in Santorini, Greece

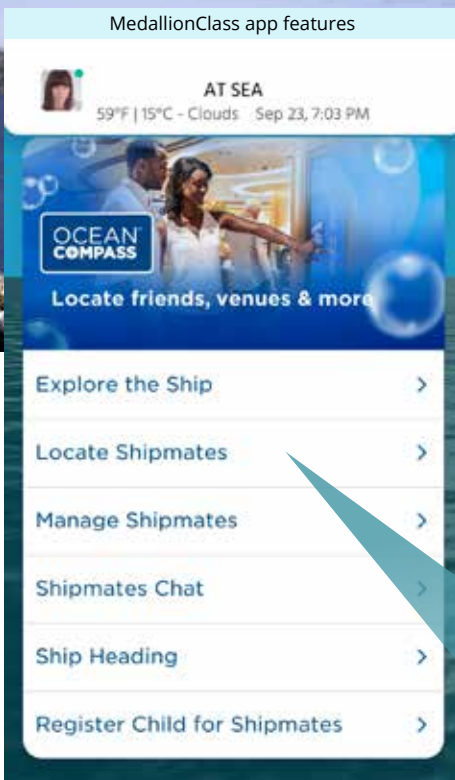

FEELING 'APPY

As with anything these days, your MedallionClass experience starts with an app. Free to download before you travel, this will prove critical to your time on board - and it's pretty handy before you set sail, too.

Use it to upload all your personal details and documentation before you travel. A major advantage is that you can upload a security photograph of your own choosing, which eliminates the need to have another taken when you arrive at the port looking completely dishevelled. You'll be guided through the process step-by-step and, once complete, you'll progress to the 'green lane', which pretty much means you've done everything you can in preparation for boarding.

The best way we can describe the Medallion is like a turbocharged version of the traditional key card, only it does so much more. This is probably the opportunity to get the rest of the boring stuff out of the way; your Medallion is what you'll use to tap on and off the ship and charge items to your onboard account. But the technology wouldn't be innovative if it didn't do something a little out of the ordinary - and we're confident in saying the Medallion delivered.

One of the first 'wow' moments you'll encounter with your Medallion is the keyless door entry system. Your stateroom door will automatically unlock as soon as you're close by. OK, so it might not sound that impressive, but as soon as you realise that fumbling around in your handbag/pocket/wallet for your key card is a thing of the past, it will soon become one of your favourite features.

Then it's time to explore the ship with the aid of no other than your OceanCompass. Found in the app, it's a quick and easy way to figure out exactly where you are on the ship and, perhaps more importantly, where your travel buddies are hiding out. If you're on the same booking then your companions will automatically appear on the app, but there's the option to add any other 'Shipmates' you might befriend along the way. All you have to do is load the map and it will show where everyone is on the ship - perfect for locating that husband who is useless at answering his messages, or kids who never seem to be where they say they are.

This leads us nicely to the next feature you'll find on a MedallionClass ship - the ability to message. If you're out in the middle of the ocean with no signal - and don't want to run the risk of running up extortionate roaming charges - the app will come to the rescue. Not only can you communicate with your fellow passengers, but there's also the option to message Guest Services if you can't face queuing at the desk or figuring out which deck it's on. We tried it one day from the comfort of a lounge next to the pool and received a response in under five minutes!

As with anything these days, your MedallionClass experience starts with an app.

SERVICE, PLEASE!

The next feature of the MedallionClass app is perhaps the one we found most impressive - the ability to order food and drink wherever you are. As ships have become bigger, the chances of bartenders remembering your favourite tipple have become increasingly remote, but with your Medallion, it really isn't an issue.

Your wearable will pick up exactly where you are on the ship, so all that's left for you to do is open up your app and select your drink, whether it's a cocktail, mocktail, hot drink or soft drink. Track your order right from ordering through to preparation and delivery if you're that way inclined, or simply sit back and wait for it to appear. Some drinks even come with the option of being available 'to go', just in case you want to stroll around the deck with a caffeinated pick-me-up before tackling the day ahead.

Remember that photo we mentioned at the start? The friendly crew will use that to identify you in a lounge full of other thirsty passengers. What's more, the app will remember your preferences and make personalised drink suggestions based on what you've previously ordered; these will be saved for any future sailings you have with Princess Cruises. Clever stuff, indeed.

And the capabilities of the app don't stop there. If the munchies get the better of you during your cruise and you fancy a plate of nachos or something else to nibble on, you can order those on the app, too. Oh, and we must mention that everything is charged to your account via your Medallion, or deducted from your Princess Plus or Premier package if you have one.

AND THAT'S NOT ALL...

The potential of MedallionClass ships is seemingly endless, more so than we could ever possibly do justice. Other features we tried included requesting a turndown service in our stateroom and viewing our onboard account, but there is so much more to be discovered.

Sign up for whatever events you want to take part in (although this is by no means necessary), make dining reservations and carry out your onboard safety training using the app. It really is an incredible piece of technology and certainly ensures that MedallionClass cruising is nothing like guests have ever experienced before.

THE REGENT

EXPERIENCE

WHEN YOU'RE PROMISED an unrivalled experience, it's fair to say your expectations are set at the very highest level. Bags packed and with preconceptions of what a six-star luxury cruise would really be like, our Luxury Marketing Executive Jade embarked on Regent Seven Seas Voyager. Here, she shares her highlights.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

'She's a beauty' was my first thought as I spotted the prestige white ship standing proud against others in the port of Civitavecchia. Embarkation was swift and as soon as I stepped on board, the ship's dazzling interiors came into focus. From the grand furniture to modern art and sculptures, it's fair to say I was amazed. As soft, relaxing music fluttered in the background, I knew this experience was going to be far from ordinary.

The small-but-perfectly-formed Seven Seas Voyager holds just 680 guests, but don't let the numbers deceive you. If you prefer staying active then there's an onboard gym (which, as I discovered, comes complete with views over the horizon as you hit the treadmill), a mini golf course and tennis court, while the high-end stores, library and spa provide more relaxing options. As I meandered around deck after deck of pure opulence - now with an included cocktail in hand, crafted using premium spirits, no less - I couldn't have been any more awe-struck ... or so I thought.

Seven Seas Suite

Main Deck

UNRIVALLED SPACE AT SEA

One of Regent's biggest claims - if you'll pardon the expression - is that they offer unrivalled space at sea. I'd already seen this for myself in the public areas, where expansive lounges meant you could sit back and be served a glass of perfectly chilled champagne, or offered canapes so delicate they were (almost) too good to eat.

As impressed as I was by these spaces, I can't even begin to describe the excitement as I stepped into my Regent Seven Seas Suite for the first time. To say my room was huge is an understatement; it was beautifully adorned with contrasts of marble and abstract artwork, and prepared with such precision (including a bottle of champagne and chocolates) that I could easily have believed I was the first person ever to set foot in it. The balcony extended around the back of the ship, giving me plenty of room to soak up the Mediterranean sun on my lounge, or enjoy a relaxing moment in my plush robe and slippers.

The little extras didn't stop there. L'Occitane bath products were carefully lined up in the bathroom, ready for when I asked my in-suite butler to run me a bath. The cashmere bedding and pillow menu gave me the best possible chance of a good night's sleep - and I'm glad to say they worked! This was certainly another-level luxury like I'd never encountered before.

Versace dinnerware

Welcome champagne and chocolates

PERSONALISED SERVICE

You may have noticed I slipped in a mention of my butler. I'll admit that before I embarked Seven Seas Voyager, I thought this might be a strange experience as I'm very much keen on having my own space. After Esther introduced herself on the first day, she was there as much or as little as I liked. I returned to my suite every night to find it prepared as if it were brand new - this is something I could get used to!

The personalised service didn't stop there. With a staff-to-guest ratio of almost one-to-one, you can't help but notice the subtle touches from the crew members, such as greeting you by name whilst you're strolling along the deck, remembering your favourite wine at dinner, or even being able to recall your entire breakfast order from the day before.

Jade with Regent Seven Seas Voyager

THE VERDICT

Like many people, I had some ideas of what I thought luxury cruising would (and should) be like. Yes, standards were held high during my time on board, but there was absolutely nothing pretentious about it. All the luxury aspects of the experience are subtle yet memorable, delivered in a way that was much more laid-back than I could ever have imagined.

There were plenty of 'wow' moments to be marvelled at, from realising there's Versace dinnerware in front of you that literally costs thousands of pounds, to the crystal chandeliers that just ooze glitz and glamour.

The main question is, would I sail with Regent Seven Seas Cruises again, and did they deliver the unrivalled experience I was promised? Absolutely.

TALKING TRAVEL

WITH JO RZYMOWSKA,
VICE-PRESIDENT AND MANAGING DIRECTOR
IN EMEA FOR CELEBRITY CRUISES

AS A NEW YEAR OF TRAVEL gets underway, Jo Rzymowska Vice-President and Managing Director in Europe, the Middle East and Africa for Celebrity Cruises, speaks to us exclusively about her standout moments, and looks forward to what the future holds for the cruise line and industry as a whole.

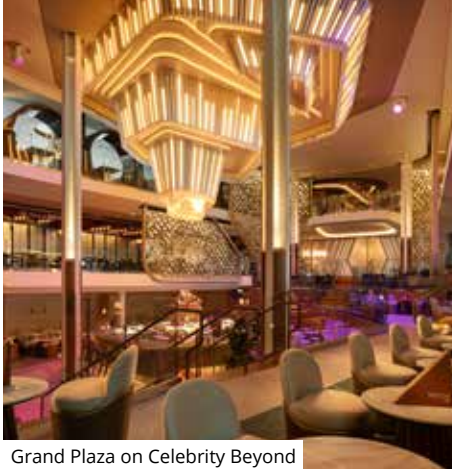

LOOKING BACK OVER THE PAST 12 MONTHS, WHAT WERE YOUR PERSONAL HIGHLIGHTS FOR CELEBRITY CRUISES?

Launching Celebrity Beyond from Southampton, with rave reviews from everyone who stepped on board, has to be the biggest highlight of the past year. Celebrity Beyond, our third ship in the revolutionary Edge® Series, represents what we stand for as a business – we continue to innovate and bring guests on an incredible journey on all our ships. I was lucky enough to sail around the Greek Isles for my own holiday onboard Beyond in July of last year, and it was so special to be back.

At the end of last year, I had the honour of breaking the news that the award-winning Celebrity Apex will call Southampton ‘home’ for her European season in 2024, truly raising the bar for cruising from the UK. With 18 incredible sailings, including brand new ports in the Arctic Circle and as well as Mediterranean gems such as Ibiza, Apex will uniquely combine distinctive design with world-class service, right from our doorstep. This is the first time an Edge Series ship has homeported from the UK and is testament to the value we place on our British guests.

IN YOUR MIND, WHAT IS IT THAT SETS CELEBRITY CRUISES SHIPS AND THE OVERALL EXPERIENCE APART FROM OTHER CRUISE LINES?

Across our fleet of 15 ships - soon to be 16 - we sail to more than 250 destinations in every corner of the world, offering a perfect itinerary for every guest. We are the cruise line for those who enjoy the finer things in life, for guests who enjoy the feeling of knowing that everything is taken care of, and for those who have a thirst for discovering new cultures and authentic local experiences. A holiday onboard one of our ships offers a uniquely relaxed luxury resort at sea. Collectively, we call it ‘Journey WonderFULL’, where you spend time with loved ones watching the sunset over the ocean at our aptly named Sunset Bar; or delving into a decadent meal crafted by Michelin-starred chefs at one of our incredible restaurants; taking a mindful moment at sunrise with a yoga class; or interacting with our incredible crew, experiencing our renowned thoughtful and intuitive service.

This is the first time an Edge Series ship has homeported from the UK and is testament to the value we place on our British guests.

Celebrity Cruises has always been a trailblazer in the industry, continuing to think outside the box, and always engaging in our mantra of continuous improvement. When we launched our Edge Series ships, they were beautifully crafted by an expert-led team who had never designed a cruise ship before, giving a truly new perspective on how a cruise ship should be designed.

DESIGN OBVIOUSLY PLAYS AN IMPORTANT ROLE IN THE CELEBRITY CRUISES BRAND, HOW DO YOU INTEND TO KEEP PUSHING THE BOUNDARIES OF WHAT GUESTS CAN EXPECT TO SEE ON BOARD?

We collaborate with a dream team of designers and architects who think outside the realms of cruise to come up with experiences and spaces that go further than imagined possible for a ship. The Magic Carpet on our Edge Series ships is an engineering feat, soaring above the sea offering guests uninterrupted vistas while sipping cocktails or having dinner. And the Grand Plaza is a design marvel – the chandelier, which is the focal point of the space, took over 15,000 hours to design and build.

One of the most sought-after interior designers in the world, Kelly Hoppen CBE, is responsible for the design of The Retreat, our unrivalled and exclusive resort space for suite guests, including the two-storey Edge Villas with their own private plunge pools. The Retreat Sundeck offers unadulterated outdoor bliss to rejuvenate in the fresh ocean air with secluded cabanas, chic seating areas and the exclusive Retreat Bar. The warm and inviting Retreat Lounge is a stylish space to unwind; while the adjacent private restaurant Luminae is a space where every corner provides a new experience with each visit, in keeping with the changing daily menu.

Magic Carpet on Celebrity Edge

Art has always been a keen focus of ours when we think about the design of our ships, and when Celebrity Apex arrives in Southampton in spring 2024, she will do so with over 4,000 pieces of artwork on board - that's 1,000 more than the Acropolis in Athens!

HOW HAS CRUISING CHANGED AND DEVELOPED DURING YOUR TIME IN THE INDUSTRY AND WHAT ARE YOUR PREDICTIONS FOR 2023 AND BEYOND?

When I started in the cruise industry 17 years ago, I could never have imagined engineering feats such as a bar that extends over the side of a ship or sundecks stretching across two storeys. But that is the joy of being a part of a brand that continues to innovate and challenge itself on how it can continue to enhance the guest experience.

However, our commitment to service excellence and dedication to continuous improvement hasn't changed. Throughout our 30-year history, intuitive service has always set us apart from other cruise brands. From the welcoming stateroom attendants and suite butlers to the attentive pool attendants and entertainment team, our crew has always been there with a smile, a helping hand and the uncanny ability to remember your favourite dessert!

Looking ahead, cruise holidays continue to be the preferred holiday choice for so many people, due to the vast itinerary options available and the incredible value for money they offer, all with that personalised touch. With our All Included and Cruise-Only pricing options, guests can choose what is important to them when reserving a holiday, for as little as £150 per person deposit.

WHAT EMERGING CRUISE DESTINATIONS ARE YOU EXCITED FOR YOUR CUSTOMERS TO EXPLORE OVER THE COMING YEAR?

Celebrity Cruises journeys to over 250 destinations across 70 countries, so there is always an itinerary that will offer something new to every traveller. Seven ships will be based in Europe in summer 2023, including all three of our ground-breaking Edge Series ships; itineraries will vary from a four-day mini cruise to Bruges and Amsterdam for a first taste of a Celebrity holiday, to a 10-night Greek Isles adventure exploring the best of the Aegean, plus bucket-list sailings to Iceland and Ireland. There really is a Celebrity holiday to satisfy everyone's wanderlust.

We are now offering more seven-night cruises than ever before, so guests have the opportunity to explore their departure port before or after their sailing. Cities such as Barcelona and Athens are truly magical by night, so I always recommend taking advantage of a hotel stay before or after a cruise.

And because European cities have something truly special to offer by night, we have more overnight stays than ever before, across 45 different cities, giving our guests the chance to explore the destination like a local.

In 2024, Celebrity Apex will sail from Southampton with brand new itineraries, from the majestic destinations of Tromsø and Honningsvåg in the Arctic Circle in the north, and culturally vibrant Ibiza in the south.

We are now offering more seven-night cruises than ever before, so guests have the opportunity to explore their departure port before or after their sailing.

Celebrity X Cruises®

IS THERE ANY ADVICE YOU WOULD OFFER ANYONE WHO IS NEW TO CRUISING AND WHO MAY NOT HAVE CONSIDERED THIS TYPE OF HOLIDAY BEFORE?

A cruise offers so much more than a traditional holiday. Our ships are relaxed luxury resorts at sea that offer unrivalled culinary experiences and unparalleled wellbeing, all whilst exploring up to eight countries in one sailing. So whether a guest is looking for an ultimate luxury getaway in The Retreat or a cultural exploration with overnight stays in Europe's most vibrant cities, a holiday with Celebrity Cruises offers a truly unique journey.

RIVER CRUISING GUIDE

THE MAGIC OF THE MEKONG

THERE'S SOMETHING STRIKINGLY MAJESTIC about the Mekong. A river of contrasts, it weaves its way through a hotchpotch of fishing villages, thriving paddy fields and some of Asia's most captivating cities.

River cruising presents one of the finest ways to take in the sights, sounds and scents of Vietnam and Cambodia. From iconic cities to notable landmarks, here are just a handful of the must-see attractions you'll encounter on a meander along the Mekong.

VIETNAM

THE CITY: HO CHI MINH

Ho Chi Minh may have shed its former name of Saigon, but tradition still permeates through every pore. Sure, there are pockets of the contemporary where you'll discover soaring skyscrapers and funky art galleries, but an amble through the historic District 1 will convince you that history is never far away. Temples, pagodas and tea houses invite you to revel in the warmest of hospitality that Ho Chi Minh delivers in droves. Find time to gorge on a bowl of steaming pho and soak up the buzz of a city that never fails to excite the senses.

Aerial view of Ho Chi Minh

Inside the Cao Dai Temple in Ho Chi Minh City

Cu Chi Tunnels

THE MAIN ATTRACTION: CU CHI TUNNELS

No visit to Vietnam would be complete without spending a few eye-opening hours at the Cu Chi Tunnels, a sobering example of real hardship and ingenuity. This impressive 120-mile warren of subterranean hideaways was largely dug by hand, providing a hiding place for troops during the Vietnam War and a safe place for supplies and communications. Lower yourself into one of the tunnels to appreciate just how restrictive they really are, and quite literally be immersed in a portion of relatively recent history.

THE CITY: PHNOM PENH

Phnom Penh may be one of the lesser-known of the Asian capitals, but its offering is no less intoxicating. Unmistakable Oriental temples are juxtaposed with nods to the city's French past, while hip hangouts prove that Phnom Penh isn't afraid to move with the times. And the paradoxes don't stop there. For every moped that screeches past there's an enclave of calm waiting to be discovered; Wat Langka pagoda offers inner-city solace, while Odom Garden invites you to take a seat and catch your breath.

The National Museum In Phnom Penh

CAMBODIA

Angkor Wat

THE MAIN ATTRACTION: ANGKOR WAT

Few attractions epitomise Cambodia's history in quite the same way as Angkor Wat, a 12th-century temple complex that's firmly planted itself among the great cultural wonders of the world. Sprawling some 160 hectares, it's the largest religious monument on earth, where the temple walls are etched with captivating carvings, as creepers clamour their way up the ancient structures. A visit at sunrise or sunset bathes the site in the most magnificent of light, creating an instantly recognisable silhouette you just can't help but photograph.

Hungarian Parliament Building

36 HOURS In Budapest

BUDAPEST is festooned with fascination and smattered with a past unlike elsewhere on the European mainland. It shouldn't come as a surprise that the home of the Rubik's Cube presents square after square of colourful history, perfectly aligned architecture and a handful of frankly puzzling traditions that make for a beguiling city break.

Buda Castle

Budapest is split into two halves called - you guessed it - Buda and Pest. We could enthusiastically rake over each and every difference between the two, but in reality, they are just two sides to one mighty fine city. As the Danube slices through its core, it's hardly surprising the Hungarian capital remains a mecca for river cruisers the world over.

OK, so there is one major geological difference worth considering; Buda is a darn sight hillier than its neighbour across the river. You've therefore got two options if Buda Castle is on your sightseeing hitlist - tackle Castle Hill on foot, or take the funicular railway. The latter is undoubtedly the time and aching calves-saving choice, where in just a few minutes you will be transported to the top and rewarded with views of the city below.

Whether you're the type who likes to immerse themselves in historical wonderment or are quite happy taking the odd photo as you glance over statues and exhibits, Buda Castle ticks all the right boxes. If there's one statue to find time for, make it that of Andras Hadik. The soldier sits proudly on a horse, where local legend dictates that touching a certain part of the equine anatomy will bless you with good luck. We're unsure of how true that is, but who are we to question? If a ground-level assessment of the castle will suffice, look skywards once night falls where it will be illuminated in all its Gothic glory.

Speaking of sight-snapping, one of the main benefits of your bumble across Budapest is that much of its architecture is best admired from the outside. From the Parliament Building to the State

Opera House, this city is certainly up there in the aesthetic stakes. You can quickly tick the highlights off your list and return home with all the iconic images you will ever want, all without parting with a single Hungarian forint.

Of course, to avoid burn-out on any city break it's essential to book some R&R, so luckily we're here to reveal that one of Budapest's biggest draws is its thermal baths. No longer the reserve of its Turkish cousins, these spa retreats entice visitors from far and wide and provide the perfect antidote to all that Buda-based hill climbing should you ever need it. Veli Bej Turkish Bath is one of the best examples; nestled in the depths of Buda's district II, it's among the oldest the city has to offer and after a recent renovation, you can be sure of a few modern novelties such as an infrared sauna to complement the ancient rituals.

Anyone who has previously spent 36 hours with us in a city will know we're big fans of the ferris wheel.

If your ascent up Castle Hill hasn't already satisfied your craving for city vistas, the top of the Basilica of St. Stephen's dome beckons. Depending on how your energy levels are faring by this point, either take the lift and tackle the remaining 42 steps on foot, or revel in the sense of pride you'll get knowing you have cleared the whole 302 steps unaided. Whichever you choose, the 360-degree views at the top will be nothing short of impressive, and a welcome distraction from inevitably having to make the entire journey in reverse.

Anyone who has previously spent 36 hours with us in a city will know we're big fans of the ferris wheel. Affectionately known as the Budapest Eye, the one in Erzsebet Square is the largest in Europe no less, scaling 65 metres into the sky. It's the least physically demanding of the options, and one your legs will thank you for after your whistle-stop tour.

EAT AND DRINK

Unicum, Hungarian herbal liqueur

Budapest may not be the first European city that springs to mind when you think about gastronomy, but its credentials speak for themselves. It lays claim to hosting more Michelin-starred restaurants than any other city in the former Eastern Bloc, so foodies are sure to be rewarded in their droves.

If hearty Hungarian fare is more your (or your wallet's) thing, you can't go far wrong at Kéhli Vendéglő. The servings are generous and the options are rustic; visit here for your fix of steaming goulash or fish soup, served with the warmest of welcomes as a chorus of live local music flutters through the air.

For an on-the-go gastronomic fix, hunt down a chimney cake. The cone-shaped dough is basted in butter and baked on a spit before being caked with whatever filling your heart desires. Puritans will tell you it's a sweet snack, but savoury iterations have more recently started to take centre stage. Food trucks dotted throughout the city streets are your best bet, but be warned that it's not easy to eat in a dignified fashion.

Hungary's impact on the global drinks scene is much like its contribution to the culinary world: quietly confident. The country's wine has begun to earn its well-deserved place at the table with vintners, but in Budapest we wholeheartedly recommend those less-polished drinking experiences.

Abandoned buildings throughout the Old Jewish Quarter have slowly transformed into quirky drinking holes, where strings of fairy lights, secluded alcoves and the odd candle make for moody-yet-welcoming environs once evening cloaks the city. If you want a truly local experience, order yourself a thimble of Unicum, a herbal liqueur distilled from 40 different herbs and spices. Originally brewed as a cure for indigestion, it's not one for the faint-hearted. It will hit the back of your throat with all the subtlety of a steam train, but as the saying goes ... 'when in Rome'. Be safe in the knowledge you can wash it down with something a little more quaffable, whether that's a splash of palinka, a fruit brandy that packs a slightly less offensive punch, or the altogether safer bet of a glass of palatable Hungarian wine.

LAMB KLEFTIKO

Evoke memories of summer evenings spent in Greece with this traditional dish.
Slow-cooked for ultimate flavour, it's a surefire dinner party pleaser.

Serves 4

INGREDIENTS:

- > 1kg boneless leg of lamb, cut into 10cm or four-inch pieces
- > 1 diced red onion
- > 1 diced red pepper
- > 5 chopped cloves of garlic
- > 12 cherry tomatoes, cut in half
- > Zest and juice of 2 lemons
- > A small bunch each of chopped oregano, rosemary, thyme and parsley
- > 1 cinnamon stick, or a good pinch of cinnamon powder
- > 2 bay leaves
- > 120ml of olive oil
- > Salt and pepper to taste

METHOD

1. Preheat the oven to 180°C.
2. In a large bowl, combine the lamb pieces with all ingredients and coat them with olive oil. Season generously with salt and pepper and mix well.
3. Place the lamb, herb and vegetable mixture in the centre of the bottom half of a large sheet of parchment paper. Wrap it well, folding in the sides, so the juices from the meat and the vegetables can't escape. If you prefer, you can make four smaller packages for individual servings.
4. After wrapping, place in a roasting tray with enough water to cover halfway up the sides of the package(s).
5. Bake in the oven for three-and-a-half to four hours. Open the parcels at the table and serve with roast potatoes or a Greek salad.

One of the highlights of a Cunard cruise in the mid-1900s was the Fancy Hat Parade, which saw passengers compete against each other to create a dazzling piece of headwear. The Balloon Dance was also popular, and held on every voyage from the 1920s to the early-1960s.
