She's here! Britannia arrives to rule the waves and I'm impressed!

Spring is a time of new beginnings and fresh outlooks, and our spring 2015 edition of Into The Blue celebrates the launch of P&O Cruises' newest ship Britannia; the most eagerly awaited cruise ship ever developed solely for the British market. Our bumper Britannia edition brings you closer than before to the names behind the ship. Read our exclusive interview with Captain Paul Brown, the man charged with taking the helm of the largest ship in the P&O Cruises fleet and find out what happened when we invited Food Hero Olly Smith to join us for an evening of wine tasting. This event raised £2,384 for Bluebell Wood Children's Hospice, thanks to the generosity of our VIP guests. Finally, join us as we become some of the very first passengers to board Britannia and witness its inaugural celebrations and regal naming ceremony.

The end of 2014 saw in the awards season and happily, our cabinet has seen many new additions, with accolades coming from across the industry. November saw us scoop both Agent of the Year for Swan Hellenic and Top Cruise Plus Agent for Travel2, whilst December brought great success at the Seabourn Cruise Awards; a glamorous event held at the beautiful Lainston House Hotel. Here, we were thrilled to receive the award for Top Midlands Travel Partner, before Sales Manager Helen Moore was recognised with the Seabourn Star Award for her ongoing help and dedication to the Seabourn product. We celebrated not once but twice in January, scooping the much-coveted top spot in the Travel Weekly 'Mystery Shopper' feature and receiving the '2014 Partnership Achievement' award from P&O Cruises, marking an amazing 28th consecutive year, at the UK Cruise Awards. It is such an honour to have our hard work recognised.

Friday 30th January 2015 marked a sad day for Bolsover Cruise Club, with the passing of my mother Audrey Wilson; a founding partner of the business. Many of you are familiar with the long-standing family history behind Bolsover Cruise Club, yet few are aware of the pivotal role Audrey played in our success. Our tribute to Audrey comes in celebration of her life and her unwavering devotion to the business.

Looking forward, the months ahead promise to exceed our expectations. As Britannia sets sail on her inaugural season, our attentions turn to Royal Caribbean International's Anthem of the Seas. Set to sail into her home port of Southampton this month, she joins Britannia as one of the big news stories of the season and promises to bring new innovations to the industry as her sister ship Quantum of the Seas did before her.

This edition's destination feature is Myanmar, a place deemed one of the 'must visit' destinations for 2015. Myanmar is a country shrouded in mystery and an opportunity to visit its unspoilt lands should be embraced. The river cruise industry continues to boom in popularity and Myanmar has become a popular itinerary for river cruisers who are keen to venture off the beaten path in search of new adventures.

I do hope you enjoy reading the latest edition of our magazine and that you will join us in making 2015 our best year yet.

Yours sincerely

Michael WilsonManaging Director

Meet Britannia's Captain - Paul Brown

It is an exciting time for P&O Cruises, as Britannia finally sets sail on her inaugural season. We took a moment to speak to Captain Paul Brown, just before he took the helm of one of the most anticipated cruise ships in recent years.

Hi Paul, firstly thank you being part of this edition of 'Into The Blue' and for offering our readers an insight into the life of a cruise ship Captain. Congratulations on your new role as master of P&O Cruises' newest vessel, Britannia. How does it feel to captain a ship that has captivated the attention of so many?

This will be a very proud moment for me; after 33 years at sea this is certainly the pinnacle of my career. Britannia epitomises everything which is great about cruising; she's stylish, elegant and contemporary. Passengers will be in awe.

At 1,082 feet long and with a gross tonnage of 141,000, Britannia is the largest cruise ship ever built for the British market. What challenges come with taking the helm of so large a ship? Britannia is a brand new class of ship for P&O Cruises and it's a bit like getting a new car - it takes time to learn how she handles and moves. The sea trials were a great opportunity to put her through her paces and fully test all systems and machinery.

How does Britannia compare to other ships you have captained in the P&O Cruises fleet?

The thought process that has gone into this ship over the last couple of years is massive. We spoke to over 20,000 people and Britannia is genuinely inspired by them - she is "the nation's ship" so their views and reactions really count. I can't wait to see passenger's faces!

Which of Britannia's features are you most excited about?

Where do I start? The atrium and central Star Burst sculpture is, without a shadow of a doubt, stunning. I defy anyone not to be impressed!

The Cookery Club is the very first cookery school at sea - and we have a star studded line up of chefs joining us; from baking queen Mary Berry, Antonio Carluccio and the legendary Pierre Koffmann to name but a few, as well as all our very own Food Heroes; James Martin, Marco Pierre White, Atul Kochhar, Eric Lanlard, Olly Smith and Charlie Turnbull.

The Great British Beer Menu in Brodie's bar features 70 different bottled beers, ales and ciders from all over the UK. The Great British Gin Menu in The Crow's Nest includes 20 different gins with many small artisan brands from the UK. The art – we have Britain's largest floating art collection, containing more than 6,000 artworks, most of them British.

Master patissier Eric Lanlard's afternoon tea in the Epicurean takes tea and scones to a whole new level. It's contemporary with passion fruit candy floss and camera-worthy patisserie.

You have previously mentioned that, as a lad growing up in the major port of Kingston upon Hull, working at sea was a schoolboy's dream. With the dream now realised, how does it compare to your childhood expectations?

Well I attended the Hull Trinity House Navigation School at the age of thirteen as I always wanted to work at sea, but realistically no, I couldn't in my wildest dreams have imagined being Captain of such an amazing ship.

You have been with P&O Cruises since 1996, before which you spent many years in the Merchant Navy. Was there ever a career 'Plan B'?

Having gone to sea at the age of 16, it has really just become second nature and I couldn't imagine not working at sea now.

Could you give us an insight into 'a day in the life' of a cruise ship Captain?

Well the great thing about being Captain is there really isn't a 'typical' day and at times I have to adapt my plan perhaps to react to an issue which could have arisen during the night.

But if it was a normal day then I would start around 0730 hrs with a quick read through of e-mails before checking with the bridge on the ship's progress overnight and the prevailing weather conditions. I usually take my breakfast in the Officer's Mess and I walk through the crew areas en-route so that I may be visible and accessible to the crew. After breakfast I usually stop by the Engineer's Office for an update on the technical situation with the machinery plant together with fuel and water consumption figures. I then call in to the Hotel General Manager to get an update on passenger events and issues, and the commercial performance of the various outlets onboard; shops, bars, dining outlets, etc.

Sea days are typically when we schedule most of the meetings onboard and I chair the Senior Management Team with the Deputy Captain, Chief Engineer, Hotel General Manager and Human Resources Manager to ensure a smooth, harmonious delivery of services and business performance. We have meetings of the HESS Committee to review the Health, Environment, Safety and Security of the passengers and crew, and routinely engage the ship's company in 'Safety Conversations' to ensure they are aware of all of the procedures to ensure their safety whilst working onboard.

Sea days are also a great opportunity to get out and about to meet our passengers and hear of their holiday experiences and the great comments they make about the ship's staff.

On our Bermuda Registered ships a Captain's day is also taken up performing weddings at sea which I really enjoy. As Britannia will be registered in the United Kingdom we will not be able to offer weddings but I do expect many couples will choose to celebrate their Renewal of Vows which I am able to do. During the cruise there are a number of social functions and cocktail parties for the passengers, where they are welcome to enjoy a glass or two of their favourite tipple; however as Captain, wanting to set a good example to the crew, I stick to the still water!

Over the years you have married many couples aboard P&O Cruises' ships, including some of our customers here at Bolsover Cruise Club. What do you think makes a cruise ship wedding so special?

Weddings at sea can be a very intimate occasion and certainly have a unique backdrop! With everything in one place it makes the celebrations afterwards nice and easy with plenty of choice.

Your career at sea has seen you visit some of the world's most spectacular destinations. Which ports stand out as particular favourites?

Monte Carlo! It's the stuff of dreams; films, fast cars, princes and princesses. As a skyline, it has it all; tower blocks glinting in the sun, multi-million dollar apartments overlooking the famous Grand Prix track and, of course, the hill leading up to the famous Casino Square with the Hotel de Paris and Café de Paris.

When you travel the world for work, how do you decide where to spend your own holidays?

To be honest it's a real treat to spend some time at home after working away.

Wine Tasting with Olly Smith

As Britannia's resident wine expert and the man behind The Glass House, Olly Smith is in high demand. When the opportunity arose to join the man himself for an evening of wine tasting and fundraising, we couldn't possibly refuse.

Wines handpicked from Olly's Britannia collection...

OllySmithinfullflow...

When we were given the opportunity to spend an evening with Olly Smith, just days before he boarded Britannia for his latest Glass House venture, we couldn't possibly say no! Fast forward to Wednesday 25th February and Bolsover Cruise Club staff were joined by VIP guests, for an evening filled with fine wine, conversation and Olly's trademark anecdotes.

Prior to the evening, Bolsover Cruise Club auctioned tickets to the exclusive event, with all proceeds going to Bluebell Wood Children's Hospice. The auction was a great success, with over £900 raised for the charity. The twelve highest bidders received not only a pair of VIP tickets to the evening, but also a meet, greet and photo opportunity with Olly, a goody bag complete with a signed Olly Smith book, a bottle of wine chosen by Olly himself and other exclusive P&O Cruises merchandise.

As the evening drew closer, we were under strict instructions to begin opening the red wines in plenty of time, in order to allow them to breathe. Never ones to question opening a bottle of wine, we proceeded to pop the corks on the Carmel Road Pinot Noir and Quinta do Crasto chosen by Olly for the event.

Olly arrived early, mingling with staff and ensuring the wine was prepared to perfection. The first VIP guests followed soon after, greeted with a glass of Peller Estates Signature Series Ice Cuvée; a fizz highly recommended by the wine master himself. At 5.45pm the evening commenced, with Bolsover Cruise Club Managing Director Michael Wilson on hand to welcome everyone to the event. Next to take to the stage was Jeremy McKenna, Head of Sales for P&O Cruises and Cunard Line. Jeremy firstly thanked our VIP guests for their generosity, before referencing the longstanding relationship between P&O Cruises and Bolsover Cruise Club. Giving us an exclusive insight into the creation of P&O Cruises' newest ship Britannia, Jeremy spoke about the innovations and designer touches that those who step aboard can expect to discover.

Finally, the star of the night took to the stage; Olly Smith was introduced to great applause and entertained us in a manner befitting his charming and enthusiastic reputation.

Having stepped aboard Britannia for the very first time on the weekend prior to the event, Olly began by explaining that he couldn't quite find the words to describe the ship and his excitement to see her launch. Britannia contains the fourth Glass House of the P&O Cruises fleet, and Olly celebrated the occasion by selecting four wines from his Britannia collection to taste on the evening. First up were the white wines; Eradus Sauvignon Blanc and Ken Forrester FMC Chenin. Olly described the taste, character and origin of each wine, injecting his own unique sense of humour into the tales that accompanied each tasting, prompting outbursts of laughter between sips.

With the official tasting over, the wine continued to flow and canapés worked their way around the room as Olly gave a behind the scenes insight into life as an award-winning wine expert, foodie, columnist and author. Bottles of wine were offered as a reward for any 'cheeky' questions posed by the audience and Olly passed on his insider knowledge regarding some of the best wines around to suit all price ranges. To round off the night, each VIP guest joined Olly for a photo opportunity and book signing, before receiving a Britannia goody bag as a thank you for their generosity.

The evening was a roaring success; with the initial ticket auction combined with an in-office raffle, the total raised for Bluebell Wood Children's Hospice was a fantastic £1,192. As the cheque was presented to charity representative Rachel Dawes, Chris Truscott, Sales and Distribution Support Director for P&O Cruises interjected with an offer to double the amount to £2,384; an incredibly generous offer and a moment that captured the essence of the evening perfectly.

All Aboard Britannia

With Her Majesty the Queen as Godmother and an atrium dominated by a spectacular Star Burst sculpture likened to one of Beyoncé's earrings by comedian Rob Brydon, Britannia was always going to be special. As we joined P&O Cruises for the inaugural celebrations, Britain's newest icon certainly didn't disappoint.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

If you're one of the thousands who follow Bolsover Cruise Club on Facebook and Twitter, you'll already know how excited we were for the arrival of Britannia. Anticipation had gathered momentum in recent months and by the time we had made our way to Southampton for a weekend of inaugural celebrations, we were bursting with expectation.

Ocean Terminal was looking suitably regal for the occasion, with a red carpet and swathes of patriotic floral arrangements in place to welcome us. With Her Majesty the Queen due aboard within days, security was tight as we proceeded through the terminal and onto the ship. Passing a Union Flag created entirely from flowers on our way, it was impossible to avoid getting swept away in such a patriotic display and the subtle touches of red, white and blue really added to the sense of occasion. British bloodlines run through Britannia and P&O Cruises were making sure everybody knew it.

Upon boarding, we immediately came face-to-face with the Jona Hoad designed Star Burst sculpture. Part chandelier, part sculpture and soaring 8 metres through the centre of the decks that encircle it, the structure dominates the atrium and makes for an almighty first impression. The Star Burst's 320 LED's reflect across 280 golden glass shards in an explosion of light that bounces around the atrium; a nod to the days when ships used the stars to navigate the seas.

Having made our acquaintance with Britannia's impressive atrium, we headed to our balcony cabin, where we were struck by the size of the wardrobe area. Sectioned away from the main bedroom, the space has ample storage for even the most ambitiously packed suitcases. With storage beneath the bed, a sizeable balcony and a light, neutral colour scheme, the stateroom felt spacious and airy. Britannia also offers solo travellers the option to book single cabins with their own balcony; something new to the P&O Cruises fleet.

GRAND DESIGNS

Britannia's interiors took 3 years to complete, with leading interior designer Richmond International coming on board to create luxury surroundings more reminiscent of a 5-star boutique hotel than a family cruise ship. With previous projects including the Sandy Lane resort in Barbados, The Dorchester and Mandarin Oriental hotels in London and Four Seasons hotels across the world, the bar was set high. The result is astounding; rich jewel tones and plush velvet create an opulent feel, with marble accents and gilded fretwork drawing art deco inspirations throughout the ship. Britannia feels thoroughly British, yet far from classical. P&O Cruises describe her as 'inspired by the past, designed for the future', and the combination of traditional influences with modern styling creates a space that is glamorous, yet inviting and unpretentious.

Cream leather and bronze cutlery and metalwork lend an oriental air to Atul Kochhar's Sindhu restaurant, while Brodie's feels homely thanks to dark wood and red leather; the trademarks of a traditional British pub. It is here that guests will find a beer menu of 6 British lagers, 53 British ales, 4 British ciders and 7 British speciality beers. Live football filled the screens while we were on board and the venue will undoubtedly become a home from home for those who love an evening in their local.

It is difficult to imagine a more glamorous place to ballroom dance than in The Crystal Room, where a beautiful wooden dancefloor tempts you to your feet, chandeliers hang overhead and a white grand piano sits to the side. Another of Britannia's key entertainment venues is The Limelight Club; indulgent, opulent and sultry, we are certain that this supper club setting will prove to be very popular with guests. The Crow's Nest is a signature feature across the P&O Cruises fleet, and aboard Britannia it is more elegant than ever. It is also here that you will find The Great British Gin Menu, with 20 gins and several tonics to choose from, along with an extensive cocktail menu for those preferring something more exotic. We enjoyed the soothing sounds of cocktail pianist Sam Joseph as we sipped our drinks and enjoyed the ambience, before heading to The Live Lounge for a hefty dose of 80's nostalgia and dancing late into the night.

FOOD HEROES ASSEMBLE

Along with 13 bars, Britannia also offers her 3,647 passengers 13 restaurants in which to enjoy everything from antipasti and charcuterie to indulgent gala dinners designed by the ship's Food Heroes.

Our time exploring the Lido Deck was punctuated with a stop-off at The Lido Grill and The Pizzeria, where the burgers, hot dogs and pizza on offer were incredibly fresh. Southampton's weather was relatively kind to us, but we felt to experience the Lido Deck at its best you would need a cocktail in hand and the hot sun streaming onto the deck's two pools!

In the evening we dined in The Peninsula Restaurant, which joins the Oriental and Mandarin Restaurants as Britannia's main dining rooms. Our Gala Dinner menu came courtesy of Marco Pierre-White, with a Trio of Smoked Fish being offered, followed by a Double Chicken Consommé and Marco's Classic Beef Wellington with a Wild Mushroom and Madeira Reduction Duxelle. The food was delicious, served promptly and accompanied by a trio of the Bon Viveur wines carefully selected by our favourite wine connoisseur, Olly Smith.

The Food Heroes play a prominent role aboard Britannia, acknowledging a very British love of food. Earlier in the day, as we gathered in the 936-seat Headliner's Theatre, celebrity chef James Martin spoke passionately about The Cookery Club and the world-renowned chefs who would be populating the state-of-the-art space over the coming months. Mary Berry CBE will fly the flag for desserts, while foodies will have the unique opportunity to master a signature Pistachio Soufflé with Pierre Koffmann; one of the most influential chefs of our time. The Chef's Table will see guest chefs, including Mary and Pierre, craft specially selected menus each week for an intimate group of just 18 people; another once in a lifetime experience.

Fans of P&O Cruises' Seventeen restaurant will be thrilled to hear that a similar creative menu will be offered at The Epicurean; a restaurant that combines the traditions of fine dining with the sophistication of modern cuisine.

DOWN WITH THE KIDS

For all that Britannia is elegant, she is also incredibly modern, and nowhere is this more apparent than on Deck 17. Here, we found The Reef; an area dedicated to children, with everything from nautical-inspired playgrounds to splash pools and interactive dancefloors. Adjacent to The Reef is the ship's aerobics studio and gym, where spinning bikes line the walls and TRX straps hang from the ceiling; this is a seriously well-equipped gym by any standards.

The Retreat sits forward of Deck 17, with plush cabanas and a zingy lime colour scheme creating an area of calm that is second only to the impressive Oasis Spa located on Deck 5. Here, gleaming black marble and tempting Elemis rituals create the most impressive spa of the whole fleet; the hydrotherapy suite and pool is as impressive and inviting as any of those we have seen in the country's leading spa retreats.

A RIGHT ROYAL WELCOME

As we reluctantly disembarked, Britannia's crew busied themselves in preparation for the arrival of Her Majesty the Queen. The following day's naming ceremony was a star-studded affair of pomp and celebration that epitomised the Great British character and stereotype; and as the Queen released a Nebuchadnezzar of British Wiston Estate
Brut NV against the ship's bow, Britannia cemented her place in British history.

It is hard to put your finger on what it is about this ship, yet she feels iconic. We expect that Britannia will indeed rule the waves.

Cruise Itinerary:

Sydney, Bay of Islands, Auckland, Noumea, Isle of Pines, Mystery Island, Sydney

You'll be greeted by the Sydney Harbour Bridge and the white sails of the Sydney Opera House as you check in at the 4* Radisson Blu for 5 nights. Amidst your adventure you'll set sail aboard Royal Caribbean's Voyager of the Seas, destined for 13 nights of exploration in the South Pacific. You'll return to Sydney for an overnight stay, before flying to Perth for 5 nights.

Cruise Highlights:

Bay of Islands: For those that love beaches and water sports, Bay of Islands is paradise. Penguins, dolphins, marlin and whales make the Bay of Islands their playground, and tranquil seaside towns are dotted along the coastline.

Auckland: Even in the urban centre of New Zealand's largest city, you're never more than 30 minutes from a beach. Auckland has something for all, with lush rainforest and black sand beaches to the west, rolling vineyards and picturesque coast to the north, and dense forest and sheltered bays to the south.

Noumea: As the relaxed capital of French territory of New Caledonia, Noumea sees the Pacific lifestyle meet French sophistication. Foodies will fall hard for fine wine and French gastronomy, whilst those who love to explore the ocean will be in their element.

Isle of Pines: The UNESCO World Heritage Site of Isle of Pines is dominated by the peak Nga, surrounded by untamed wilderness and circling an emerald lagoon. It has been dubbed 'the closest island to paradise'.

Mystery Island: Difficult to reach, unless by ship, Mystery Island has remained virtually untouched and wholly unspoilt. Buy handcrafted wares from friendly locals, make the most of endless photo opportunities, or walk the entire circumference of the island.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF AUDREY WILSON

1936 - 2015

Friday 30th January 2015 marked a sad day for Bolsover Cruise Club, with the passing of Audrey Wilson; a founding partner of the business.

While many are familiar with the long-standing family history behind Bolsover Cruise Club, few are aware of the key role played by Audrey in the company's transition from local travel agent to one of the UK's most successful cruise specialists.

Born in Derby, Mrs Wilson was raised in Duckmanton before moving to Warsop, and then to Cuckney in 1983. She had various careers at Marks & Spencer, the DHSS, and (after qualifying as a Nursery Nurse) at Birklands School, Warsop.

The early 1980's saw Audrey take the helm of Bolsover Travel, running the independent travel agency for several years, before going on to become a director. From humble beginnings, and with just a handful of employees, Audrey played a central role in the huge success and growth of the business. With the transition from local independent agent to nationwide cruise specialist well underway, Audrey was joined by husband Derek, son Michael and daughter Julie.

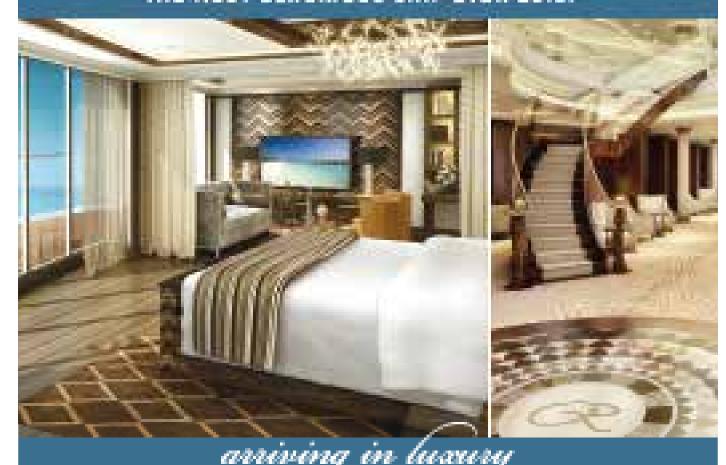

Audrey remained entirely dedicated to a business that was now very much a family affair, taking great pride as the company continued to grow and was eventually awarded the Canberra Cruises Top Agent Award, at that time an engraved 8-day carriage clock, for the very first time in 1987. Bolsover Cruise Club went on to receive the award again in 1988 and has since retained the coveted title of P&O Cruises Top UK Agent for an incredible 28 consecutive years; the most recent of which was awarded in January at the UK Cruise Awards. In more recent years, Audrey's devotion to Bolsover Cruise Club has been unwavering, with an active and valued consultancy role held until very recently.

As the company continues to grow and enjoy even greater success, it holds a special place in its heart for the unsung hero so pivotal in its creation.

Anthem of the Seas

This month sees the launch of the newest and most innovative ship in Royal Caribbean International's Quantum-class fleet. As Anthem of the Seas arrives in Southampton, we give you all the latest news surrounding the eagerly awaited ship.

ANTHEM OF THE SEAS EXCLUSIVE ENTERTAINMENT UNVEILED

Royal Caribbean International will debut two brand new shows as part of the entertainment on offer aboard Anthem of the Seas, with previously announced Broadway favourite 'We Will Rock You' set to be joined by two original Royal Caribbean International productions when the ship launches this month.

Joining 'We Will Rock You' in the Royal Theater will be an original production show 'The Gift', described by Royal Caribbean International as a 'musical journey of fantasy and illusion that begins one stormy night with the arrival of a 'Magical Gift'.

Created by multi-media experts Moment Factory and staged in Two70, 'Spectra's Cabaret' will be Anthem of the Seas' second original and exclusive production. The Two70 entertainment venue proved incredibly popular when debuted aboard Quantum of the Seas last year, with its location at the very aft of the ship creating a stunning backdrop against which performances are staged to dramatic effect.

Two70 will be transformed for the futuristic production of 'Spectra's Cabaret', featuring the Maestro and his agents of Rhythm in an 'electric multi-dimensional cabaret'. The special effects laden show will combine live performances, pop music and digital imagery to transport the audience to other realms of entertainment.

DYNAMIC DINING TAKES A MORE CLASSIC APPROACH ABOARD

Royal Caribbean International has announced that Dynamic Dining is to be reimagined aboard Anthem of the Seas. Dynamic Dining, as debuted aboard Quantum of the Seas, will continue to offer guests flexible dining at any of the ship's 18 restaurants (including five complimentary), however those who prefer a more traditional cruise dining experience can instead opt for Dynamic Dining Classic.

This new approach will see guests choose from two set dining times rotating through the ship's four complimentary restaurants for the duration of their cruise, whilst retaining the same table companions and assigned waiter throughout. Guests opting for Dynamic Dining Classic will still have the option of dining in the ship's speciality restaurants, while retaining the more orderly approach to mealtimes often favoured by traditional cruisers.

TRAVEL AGENT AS GODMOTHER

Royal Caribbean International has announced that the Godmother of Anthem of the Seas will be a travel agent, and has partnered with trade magazine Travel Weekly to find the perfect agent to take on the role. The chosen agent will not only become Godmother to Anthem of the Seas when the ship launches, but will also have the opportunity to perform a specially selected song – Anthem's anthem – at the exclusive naming ceremony in Southampton this month and at Travel Weekly's Awards in July.

The agent will also receive 'X Factor' style voice coaching in the run-up to the inaugural celebrations, along with a full makeover for the naming ceremony and an exclusive 7-night cruise in Anthem of the Seas' Royal Suite. Agents have been asked to submit a clip of them singing one of 19 shortlisted songs, with a team of judges set to whittle the applicants down to just five finalists. The winning songstress will sing the song chosen by Heart FM listeners, who are voting for the 'Anthem for Anthem'.

Speaking about the opportunity, Royal Caribbean UK managing director Stuart Leven said: "This is another wow moment for our agency partners. We want to give an agent the chance to not only grab 15 minutes of fame, but to be part of history". Royal Caribbean International is renowned for thinking 'outside the box' when it comes to ship Godmothers, and those previously gifted with the prestigious title include teacher Kathy Mellow and representatives of the New York Police Department and Fire Department of New York, alongside entertainment greats Whoopi Goldberg, Gloria Estefan and Kristin Chenoweth.

Our Recent Cruise Awards

It's been a great year for Bolsover Cruise Club!

Our awards cabinet has seen many new additions, with accolades received from throughout the industry.

In the last 12 months our prestigious awards include:

UK Cruise Awards Winner

Bolsover Cruise Club is celebrating once again, after scooping the 'Partnership Acheivement Award 2014' from P&O Cruises for an amazing 28th consecutive year.

The UK Cruise Awards are a prestigious event in the cruise calendar, with the best names in the industry recognised for their hard work and dedication throughout the year. Thursday 29th January 2015 saw the glamorous Quaglino's in London's Mayfair provide an opulent backdrop for the 1920's Great Gatsby themed evening, with the industry coming together for a night of awards, dining and dancing until late.

The Partnership Achievment Award 2014 was presented by celebrity presenter Mark Durden-Smith on behalf of P&O Cruises and staff members Katie and Rebecca were delighted to take to the stage to collect the shining new addition to our awards cabinet.

"I am delighted that Bolsover Cruise Club has won the Partnership Achievement Award for P&O Cruises for 2014. Not only is this an amazing achievement in itself, but this is the 28th consecutive year we have won this award, which is testament to the ongoing commitment and dedication of my team, of which I am immensely proud. For our customers, this award is an endorsement of the unrivalled service and expertise we provide, and I thank them for their loyalty and for playing their part in this significant achievement!" said Managing Director, Michael Wilson.

Travel Weekly Mystery Shopper 2015

Each week, trade publication
Travel Weekly send out their Mystery
Shopper to test three agencies in a specific location. In January 2015 they ran a special cruise edition which included ourselves and two of our competitors.
Here's how it went...

The enquiry for all three agents was to find a cruise for a pair of first-timers who wanted a 14-night fly-cruise in May or June. They were novices and required an agent's advice to choose the right cruise line. Their budget was £4,500 and they requested that the ship had good spa facilities. The winning agent is chosen using a scoring system. 50% of the score is based on advice and product knowledge, 25% on customer service,

15% on external/internal appearance and the final 10% on their overall experience dealing with the agent. Our staff member Kirsty scored an excellent 90% with our competitors following behind at 81% and 60%

What the Mystery Shopper had to say: "Bolsover Cruise Club were thorough and knowledgeable. Their website was well laid out and easy to use. I felt that I could have easily found something to suit my requirements. The phone number was prominent and my call was answered quickly by an enthusiastic and friendly agent. She gave me her contact details, and also those of a colleague. The agent had a great cruise knowledge and readily gave recommendations. The first was with P&O Cruises, sailing on Oceana for £3,398 in an outside cabin. The agent said it would include £260 on-board credit. The second was for £4,010, also in an outside cabin on Royal Caribbean's Vision of the Seas. I was given balcony quotes for both lines but they were overbudget, and I was also given a final quote for an ex-UK option with Celebrity Cruises for £4,710. The agent gave full details of the extras I could get if I booked early and followed up with an email. This was first-class service and I would have been happy to book."

Seabourn Cruise Awards

December 2014 saw the beautiful Lainston House Hotel in Winchester set the scene for the Seabourn Cruise Awards, an event attended by our Director Julie Straw and Sales Manager Helen Moore.

Following an exciting presentation about the future of the luxury cruise line, Bolsover Cruise Club were thrilled to receive two awards during the evening's glittering ceremony. We were presented with the covetable Top Midlands Travel Partner Award by John Delaney, Senior Vice President of Sales & Marketing and Lynn Narraway, Managing Director of UK Business. Next. Helen was overwhelmed to receive the Seabourn Star Award in recognition of her ongoing help and dedication to the product.

Swan Hellenic Agent of the Year

In November, Bolsover Cruise Club Director Julie Straw boarded the Hebridean Princess cruise ship in the Scottish port of Greenock to attend the All Leisure Holidays Awards.

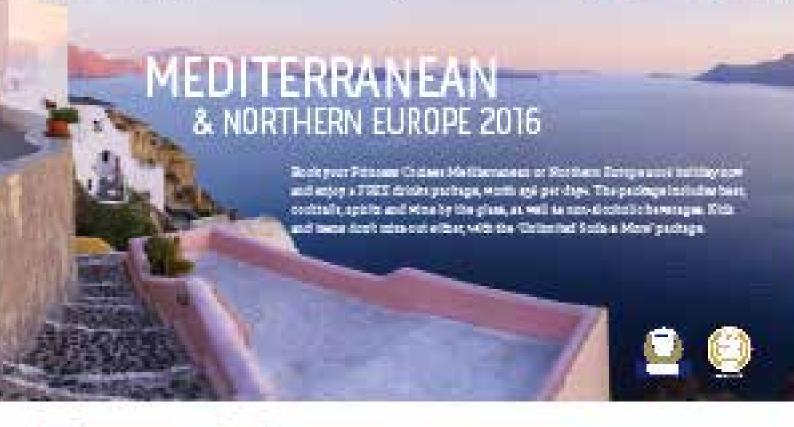

The evening began with a champagne reception held in the ship's Tiree Lounge, before guests enjoyed a gourmet dinner in the Columba Restaurant. Dinner was followed with a traditional recital of Robert Burns' poem 'Address to a Haggis', after which the awards ceremony began. Bolsover Cruise Club were delighted to be awarded 'Travel Agent of the Year 2014' for Swan Hellenic cruises, in recognition of consistent growth and dominating the trade share of cruise bookings for this brand, with Julie accepting the award on the company's behalf.

Following the awards ceremony, guests returned to the Tiree Lounge for the evening's entertainment, before retiring to their staterooms. The sound of traditional Scottish bagpipes woke guests the following morning before a hearty breakfast.

Travel 2 Top Cruise Plus Agent

November also saw us venture north to Cameron House on Loch Lomond, where Travel 2 held a glamorous awards ceremony in recognition of the best achievements throughout the industry in 2014. Katie Anderson and Nathalie Avis joined the industry's finest at the event and were on hand to collect our award for Top Cruise Plus Agent; an accolade recognising Bolsover Cruise Club as the biggest selling agent of the year.

Discover the Magic of Myanmar

It has been deemed the 'Next Big Thing for 2015' by those in the know, but there is nothing new about Myanmar. The country is suffused with ancient history and untainted traditions; its land scattered with sacred golden temples and that is why you need to visit now, before it becomes new!

THE TEMPLES OF BAGAN

Between the 11th and 13th centuries, the Kings of Bagan commissioned the building of thousands of Buddhist temples and monasteries. Spread across an expanse of 40 square-miles, the Temples of Bagan are an awe-inspiring sight; lilac skies and saffron sunsets are the perfect backdrop for each gilded stupa, while the 'sound of silence' fills its cavernous interior.

Photographers favour shots of maroon hot air balloons soaring above the temples, but the best way to see everything the area has to offer is undoubtedly on the ground and on two wheels; hire a bicycle and spend the day weaving through the arid landscape that juxtaposes so spectacularly with the glittering pagodas.

Midway between Thatbyinnyu and Dhammayangyi is Shwesandaw Paya; Bagan's most famous sunset-viewing spot. The 360° views from this white pyramid-style pagoda attract many camera-toting tourists, but arrive earlier in the day and you will be almost alone. Sunrise is a magical time to visit Shwesandaw Paya; the skies tinged a shade of orange that mirrors the robes of the local monks going about their business around you. Spend the day delving inside Bagan's temples, exploring the frescoes, carvings and statues within. As sunset nears, climb the five levels to the pinnacle of Shwesandaw and see for yourself why the pagoda is so deserving of its moniker.

Built by King Kyanzittha in the 11th century, Ananda Pahto is one of the largest and most beautiful temples in Bagan. Notable for its perfect symmetry and four 30ft tall gilded Buddha's, Ananda Pahto was the first of Bagan's great temples. Its temple spires were gilded in 1990 to celebrate the sacred site's 900th anniversary.

Ananda Pahto plays host to one of Bagan's biggest events; the Ananda Temple Festival. Buddhist's from across Myanmar make the long pilgrimage for the 22 day festival, offering alms-bowls filled with crops to the monks who form long lines outside the temple. Held from the 8th Working Day of Pyatho to the 14th Waning Day, the actual dates for the Ananda Temple Festival vary each year, but usually fall in January.

YANGON

Yangon is Myanmar's biggest city and the country's British Colonial heritage is reflected in the buildings that create the city skyline; one dominated by the soaring 90 metre golden stupa of the Shwedagon Pagoda.

Rising 168ft above the city and visible from almost anywhere in Yangon, Shwedagon Pagoda is swathed with 27 metric tons of gold leaf and encrusted with thousands of diamonds and precious gems; a single 76 carat diamond providing its crowning glory. Considered one of Buddhism's most sacred sites, the 2,500 year old Shwedagon Pagoda attracts an unusual combination of eager tourists and earnest pilgrims, many of whom travel thousands of miles across Myanmar to worship at the temple. A visit to the sacred spot provides a privileged and fascinating insight into local life; processions, ceremonies, prayer and recitals are all daily occurrences.

Another highly revered icon of Buddhism can be discovered less than two miles north east of the Shwedagon Pagoda; the Chaukhtatgyi Buddha is one of the biggest and most graceful reclining Buddhas in Southeast Asia. The importance of the Chaukhtatgyi Buddha to the Burmese people is evident in their willingness to donate to its renovation; devout Buddhist locals donated huge sums for the restoration and extension of the holy figure in 1966.

Measuring 66 metres long and 17 metres high, Chaukhtatgyi Buddha is an imposing sight. Sacred relics and precious gems rest inside the head and under the arm, and the Buddha's footprint is inscribed with 108 sacred Buddhist symbols. Few tourists venture in search of the Chaukhtatgyi Buddha, but it is well worth the short journey; not just for the sheer size and vibrancy of the icon, but also for the opportunity to witness local monks from nearby monasteries honouring Buddha's teachings. Take the opportunity to observe as they wander the grounds around the Chaukhtatgyi; the air thick with the scent of burning incense and the area bright with fresh flowers.

INLE LAKE

In Myanmar's north eastern Shan State, at the heart of the Shan Plateau, is the freshwater Inle Lake. Covering an expanse 13.5 miles long and 7 miles wide, Inle Lake is home to many flourishing ethnicities and breathtaking scenery, and will reward you with unforgettable experiences; no trip to Myanmar should overlook this enthralling area.

Manoeuvring by boat through long scenic channels, you will encounter the intriguing lifestyles of the Intha people or 'children of the lake'. Buy fresh produce from the farmers who cultivate their floating gardens on the water or shop at the '5 Day Market' alongside locals who buy spices, fish and flowers for their own rickety wooden homes. Purchase handrolled cigars or hand-woven wares from artisans who spend their days crafting them in traditional fashion. Back on the water, leg-rowers glide past you in their teak boats, one leg precariously wrapped around the oar while the other skilfully balances on the very tip of the vessel.

Myanmar's boom in popularity has rippled through Inle Lake, yet much like the rest of the country, this iconic destination still retains its authenticity.
